Marines Guard Ships

By The Associated Press

About 700 Marines have been sent to protect U.S. Navy ships while they evacuate civilian refugees from South Vietnam, the Pentagon announced Tuesday.

It said the Marines, in four rifle companies, will not leave the ships but "will be used for individual ship security and shipboard evacuation control."

The Pentagon also said "modest quantities" of military equipment from National Guard units in the United States are being rushed to Vietnam for emergency resupply of Vietnamese forces.

Meanwhile, presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the United States is involved in diplomatic attempts — so far futile — to help alleviate the crisis situation in Vietnam.

Nessen, speaking to reporters at the desert White House in Palm Springs, Calif., was asked if the Ford administration seeks a cease-fire or perhaps establishment of a coalition government in South Vietnam.

He replied that the American effort was aimed at persuading the North Vietnamese to live up to the 1973 Paris peace accords, which marked the end of U.S. troop involvement in Vietnam.

Nessen later called a news conference to clarify that he did not mean to imply that the United States had undertaken a brand new initiative. Instead, he said, it was only continuing to work through normal diplomatic channels to have other countries try to influence North Vietnam to honor to the Paris accords.

"So the record will be accurate, these diplomatic efforts should not be considered as new specific initiatives," he said.

In a statement on the emergency resupply moves, the Pentagon said:

"The materiel is being provided under already approved and funded military assistance programs and as sometimes is the case, modest quantities are being obtained from reserve components," it said.

The Pentagon announcement was the first word that Marines were aboard the amphibious ships ordered to South Vietnam for what the Ford administration calls a humanitarian mission of evacuating civilian refugees fleeing from advancing North Vietnamese troops.

The White House has said no U.S. military personnel will go ashore, but that refugees will be ferried out to the ships.

Evacuation of South Vietnamese civilians from Da Nang and elsewhere aboard civilian transport ships has been marked by reported incidents of violence, with unruly South Vietnamese soldiers and marines blamed for terrorizing civilian refugees.

Presumably, the U.S. Marines will prevent this from happening aboard the Navy transport vessels when they take refugees aboard.

Congress in 1973 adopted three laws relating to the involvement of U.S. troops overseas:

The State Department authorization act forbids use of federal funds "to finance the involvement of United States military forces in hostilities in or over or from off the shores of North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia." The amendment was sponsored by Sens. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The 1973 Foreign Aid act includes an amendment by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., banning funds for "military or paramilitary operations by the United States in or over Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia."

The War Powers Act of 1973 requires the President to report to Congress within 48 hour on the introduction, in the absence of a declaration of war, of U.S. armed forces "into hostilities or into situations where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated by the circumstances."

The use of U.S. troops in such situations, without congressional approval, is limited to 60 days, unless Congress terminates it sooner, although the President would have another 30 days to protect withdrawing U.S. forces.

In Washington, meanwhile, Assistant Secretary of State Philip Habib dismissed the Viet Cong offer to negotiate with a South Vietnam government if President Nguyen Van Thieu is toppled. He said North Vietnam has taken the military option and has shown no signs of taking serious steps to abide by the Paris peace agreement, which arranged for a cease-fire and prohibited North Vietnam from introducing new troops and weapons into South Vietnam.

Around the police station they figured it was a pretty good April Fools Day joke on the robbers.

"Can you imagine the look on those guys' faces when they got that bag open and found out that wasn't anything in it?" asked Lt. Paul Merritt.

That was the case Tuesday morning when two gunmen took a padlocked canvas bag from a Gateway Bank courier, then fled in his car.

The bag contained nothing but memos for personnel at Gateway's auxiliary bank at the University of Nebraska Student Union.

The courier, ex-policeman Vernon Vavra, 54, of 2101 S. Cotner, said he was pulling from a parking spot at the Gateway Bank with the bag when a blue Volkswagen cut in front of him.

"My thinking was they had car trouble," Vavra recalled. "I rolled down my window and said, 'Got trouble?' "

Vavra said the man pointed a pistol at his head and demanded the bank bag. Vavra said he told the man the bag contained no money. The man returned to the Volkswagen.

Then he and his companion returned to Vavra's car and told him to get out. Vavra complied.

"Twenty-three years on the police force and I've never seen a gun that close," Vavra said. Vavra retired from the police force in June 1974.

Police later found the bank car near the Madonna Nursing Home at 52nd and South, with a pair of coveralls and the slit-open bank bag inside.

About a block and a half away they found a jacket and pistol.

Police also learned that the Volkswagen the pair were driving had been stolen from the Banker's Life parking lot earlier in the morning.

One suspect was described as a white male 22 to 24 years old, 6 feet, 2 inches tall, with a thin build. The other man was described as a black male 22 to 24 years old, 6 feet tall, with a thin build and wearing a blue stocking hat.

Daley Wins Sixth Term

By The Associated Press

There was a little of the old politics and a little of the new in Tuesday's election results.

In Chicago, Mayor Richard J. Daley, one of the last of the old-style city bosses, easily brushed aside token challengers Tuesday to win re-election to an unprecedented sixth term as mayor.

And in Madison, Wis., Paul Soglin, the 29-year-old mayor who was elected four years ago as a radical, won re-election.

With 60 of 66 Madison precincts reported, Soglin had 31,029 votes to 21,079 for former Mayor Henry Reynolds, who argued that city government had grown too big under the onetime radical.

With all but 50 of 3,146 Chicago precincts reporting, Daley had 536,413 votes to 136,874 for Republican John Hoellen and 16,749 for Socialist workers candidate Willie Mae Reid.

In another race, Mayor Wes Wise of Dallas won a third term, defeating John Schoellkopf and three other minor candidates in a race in which all candidates ran without partisan backing.

With all but one of 225 precincts counted, Wise had 43,257 votes to 28,565 for Schoellkopf.

Hoellen conceded defeat just after 8 p.m., telling a news conference he had "fought the good fight and lost."

With no illusions about his fate at the hands of the most powerful big city machine in the nation, Hoellen had told newsmen earlier that his plans were to "ride off into the political sunset in the west and hope there are stronger hands around to handle the many problems of Chicago."

Daley, 72, barely campaigned in his bid for another four-year term. He won 58 per cent of the vote against three challengers in the Democratic primary on Feb. 28. Hoellen, the only Republican on the 50-member City Council, was defeated for re-election as an alderman in the GOP primary on the same day.

Exon Sends Guard To Help 13 Counties

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday activated 300 Lincoln-area Army National Guardsmen to help dig out western Nebraska from its second blizzard in one week.

In addition, Exon telegrammed U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz that he is declaring the 13-county area a disaster. The disaster designation makes the areas eligible for low-interest federal loans.

Exon's action follows new snowfalls ranging from six to 13 inches which piled up on similar amounts from last week's blizzard.

To Leave Today

The two Lincoln units were ordered to report at 6 p.m. Tuesday evening and were scheduled to leave Wednesday morning in helicopters to aid people in need of medical assistance and ranchers searching for missing cattle.

Lt. Col. Burl Johnson said the units are the 24th Medical Co. (air ambulance) and Detachment 1, of Headquarter's 67th Brigade. Johnson said the call-up is expected to last three days.

Johnson said approximately 50 Guardsmen were still on duty Tuesday providing ground and helicopter support. Tuesday's call-up will bring the total to approximately 350 men.

Exon said the Guardsmen will be providing medical assistance as well as emergency feed to stranded cattle and aerial surveillance to locate cattle.

Allowed To Leave Work

Johnson said he appreciates the cooperation of Lincoln businesses in allowing Guardsmen to leave work for snow duty. Guardsmen will be paid $13 per day and up, depending on rank.

So far, Exon said $150,000 of the gubernatorial emergency fund to activate Guardsmen, lease 70 pieces of road-clearing equipment and purchase fuel has been spent. There is $1 million in the fund.

"We will spend whatever is necessary," Exon said.

Johnson said the decision was made to wait until Wednesday morning to move the guardsmen out west due to poor flying conditions.

Decided To Wait

"We decided to sit here until conditions improved," Johnson said.

In all, 25 helicopters will be on duty; eight are now on duty in the western counties affected.

NE Lincoln Organizing To Seek Funds

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Northeast Lincolnites are organizing.

Led by Havelock businessmen, a coalition of area residents is putting together the Northeast Lincoln Community Development Organization to seek funds to upgrade the community.

At stake is some $9 million in federal community development funds which will be available to Lincoln over the next six years.

Several organizational meetings have already been held, and formal bylaws will be adopted and officers elected at a meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Monday at State Federal Savings and Loan, 6120 Havelock Ave.

According to Dick McCashland, Havelock businessman and member of the City's Community Development Committee, the new organization plans to coordinate its efforts with Havelock banker Roger Anderson, who is proposing a three-block shopping center on the north side of Havelock Ave. between 62nd and 64th Sts.

McCashland said Anderson owns all but three properties in the tract and plans to start construction as soon as he can acquire the remaining lots.

The proposed shopping center would extend the relatively new development on Platte St. which includes a new building housing a garden center and a flower shop.

The first task for the Northeast neighborhood organization will be a survey of the area east of 48th St. and north of Adams to determine priority needs, McCashland said.

The survey will give the group the hard facts — on home improvements, lighting, streets, utilities, parking, transportation, care for the elderly, land use, etc. — necessary for submitting a funding proposal.

Community Development Director Leo Scherer said the Neighborhood Assistance Bureau, which is working closely with several neighborhood groups organizing to prepare funding proposals, will help the northeast Lincolnites with their survey.

"We are supportive of what they want to do and we feel what they are doing is very positive," Scherer said.

The City Community Development Department has outlined a planning process to be followed by neighborhoods interested in seeking the community development funds.

The 10 key steps set for the Neighborhood Assitance Program (NAP) funding are:

—Formation of neighborhood organization or task force of any other identifiable group open to any resident and having as a key purpose the betterment of the neighborhood.

—Neighborhood group requests designation of neighborhood as eligible for city's NAP program.

—Preparation of the neighborhood plan, including designation within neighborhood organization of a task force to head up development of plan.

—Submission of preliminary draft to city administration for review and recommendations such as conformance to city's Comprehensive Plan and Goals and Policies and comprehensiveness to adequately deal with needs.

—Final plan drawn up and presented to city administration as neighborhood input.

—Neighborhood organization formally requests designation by city administration for NAP implementation and makes commitment of neighborhood's participation.

—Implementation program developed involving neighborhood and City Community Development Department staff —Neighborhood approves implementation program of activitites.

—Endorsement of program and determination of funding by mayor and city administration.

—City Council reviews activitites for formal action.

The City Council on March 10 approved without changes an application for community development money and a one-year program aimed at renovating older areas of town.

The two-year community redevelopment program proposes to channel the bulk of $486,000 into the Clinton neighborhood.

Snow-Covered Areas Get Another Blanket

Snow-weary western and northern Nebraskans Tuesday were "treated" to another blanket of the white stuff, up to almost 18 inches in the Bridgeport-Bayard area.

However, the latest snowfall lacked the brutality of last week's blizzard, which was accompanied by strong winds leaving snowdrifts up to 12 feet high.

Tuesday's snow was of the light variety with very little wind. By afternoon light snow was falling over most of Nebraska with only small accumulations.

Grant reported about 12 inches of new snow Tuesday, with other amounts including at least 10 inches at Lisco, 9½ inches at O'Neill, 8 inches at Verdigre, 6 inches at Scottsbluff and Hemingford and 5 inches at Atkinson.

Highways were open thoughout the state Tuesday, but were mostly snow-packed and becoming slippery especially in sheltered areas Tuesday night.

Snowplows encountered very little trouble during the day, even in the heavy snowfall areas, according to a spokesman in the state Department of Roads.

By Tuesday night the snowfall was tapering off in the northeast part of the state and the storm seemed to be moving to the south, according to a spokesman at the Norfolk National Weather Service station.

Two record low temperatures for April 1 were broken in North Platte. The low reading of 10 degrees Tuesday morning broke the record of 11 for the date set in 1949. The lowest maximum temperature ever recorded on April 1 was also broken at North Platte when the highest temperature Tuesday since midnight was 17. The previous lowest maximum temperature there recorded on April 1 was 21 in 1936.

Meanwhile, there was an indication Tuesday that the state Department of Roads may be running out of money for snow removal.

Peter McShane, an editorial assistant with the department, said the state budgeted $2,358,000 for snow removal during the current fiscal year. As of Tuesday there was only about $58,000 left, McShane declared.

He said the blizzard last week cost the state about $400,000. Officials may have to "rob Peter to pay Paul," he said, with the extra money coming from other divisions within the department that have not spent as much as expected.

Last week's blizzard also affected the reception of two of the nine channels of the Nebraska ETV Network, according to Bill Ramsay, director of engineering for the network.

Preceding the blizzard, high winds and freezing rain caused tons of ice to form on the transmitting antennas of KXNE-TV, Channel 19, Norfolk, and KRNE-TV, Channel 12, Merriman, Ramsay said.

Channel 19 will remain off the air until repair crews are able to examine the 13-ton antenna west of Wayne, Ramsay declared. Limited television reception is being provided by Channel 12, Merriman, where the north and south signal of the transmitter has failed because of ice damage, Ramsay explained.

Saigon's Control Cut To Southern Third

From Press Reports

North Vietnamese forces rolled south toward South Vietnam's most populous areas Tuesday virtually unchecked by the broken South Vietnamese army. The Saigon government's control was cut down to the southern corner, only one-third of the land mass, and Communist-led forces were biting into that.

The rapid conquest further weakened President Nguyen Van Thieu's fragile political position and produced new calls for his resignation.

Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem resigned, and military sources said a group of generals had given Thieu two days to resign. The sources cited the quickly deteriorating military situation. One officer said, "It could be all over by tonight."

Unconfirmed reports said the entire cabinet, in addition to Khiem himself, had submitted resignations to Thieu.

Military sources said the South Vietnamese high command had lost all but radio contact with Cam Ranh Bay, once so safe from attack that it was twice selected for war zone visits by President Lyndon B. Johnson. It is 188 miles northeast of Saigon and now the government's front line against the Communist offensive.

Government soldiers abandoned Qui Nhon, the third largest city in South Vietnam, and later Nha Trang, 200 miles north of Saigon. Government officials were also reported abandoning Phan Rang and Phan Thiet, within 100 miles east of Saigon, apparently conceding the two provincial capitals without a shot being fired.

Radio Hanoi said Qui Nhon and the surrounding province were "completely liberated" and that the Viet Cong "took prisoner many enemy troops and captured all weapons." It said Viet Cong forces "put out of action" the government's 22nd Infantry Division and that residents "have risen up and seized control."

Hanoi also said the Viet Cong "firmly urges" the United States to stop its emergency airlift of war supplies to the Saigon regime and end its interference in the affairs of South Vietnam.

Chaos was reported in Nha Trang, its population of 200,000 swelled by more than 60,000 refugees, as Communist-led forces moved in from the west. Refugees and residents mobbed the airport for flights that never came. The American captain of an evacuation plane hurled deserting soldiers to the ground and let aboard women and children.

The U.S. consulate in Nha Trang burned its records and evacuated the staff before the advancing forces arrived. Shops and hotels were closed and shuttered. Sources said most government and military staffs had been evacuated. Witnesses reported rioting and shooting.

Saigon opposition Sen. Ton That Dinh said he had been joined by a handful of normally progovernment legislators to call an extraordinary session of the 60-man senate on Wednesday to discuss a motion forcing a change of government.

Some U.S. government experts in Washington are saying privately that there is no way to stop the Communist offensive from gobbling up all of South Vietnam. They say the questions are whether it will be days or weeks and whether it will come by military or political action.

Another beleaguered Indochinese leader, President Lon Nol of Cambodia, made a tearful departure for Indonesia on the first leg of a trip that is expected to turn into political exile. The 61-year-old president said before leaving that he hoped his exit would open the way to peace negotiations with the Communist-line Khmer Rouge insurgents, who were shelling the airport as Lon Nol boarded a plane.

After stops in Thailand and Jakarta, Lon Nol and his entourage of 27, including Premier Long Boret, continued to Indonesia's Bali island.

Political sources predicted a sweeping shakeup in the Phnom Penh regime, with removal of most of the men associated with Lon Nol and their replacement by men with whom the Khmer Rouge would be willing to negotiate. Lon Nol, who led the 1970 coup that ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk, is No. 1 on the Khmer Rouge death list.

Communist-led Khmer Rouge insurgents captured the major Meking River port of Neak Luong, the last government-held enclave on the river south of Phnom Penh. One official said called it "a major disaster."

Embassy To Be Closed

New Delhi — The Indian government has ordered the Cambodian embassy in New Delhi closed after recognizing the exile government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk. The move came within hours of the news of Marshal Lon Nol's flight from Phnom Penh Tuesday.

Kissinger Seeks Ideas

Washington — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has asked a group of prominent public figures, most of them former high government officials, to provide him with ideas on how to advance the Middle East negotiations following the recent breakdown of his mediation efforts.

Departing Flights Full

Saigon — Despite an official American denial that the United States Embassy has begun evacuating personnel, airlines reported that departing flights were fully booked by Americans. Other Americans appeared to be leading their normal lives. Many seemed either unable to grasp the collapse of the South Vietnamese army or seemed to be simply unconcerned. Some senior officials were said to be deeply alarmed at the rout and aware that Saigon itself might not last much longer.

Oil Reserves Decline

Washington — Two trade associations said Tuesday that the nation's proven reserves of crude oil and natural gas declined again in 1974. Estimates by the American Petroleum Institute and the American Gas Association came as a surprise.

Opposition Widespread

Saigon — Opposition to President Nguyen Van Thieu has become widespread and vocal.

Quality To Be Improved?

Washington — Courts and bar associations, at the urging of some lawyers, but to the outrage of others, are moving slowly and cautiously to improve the quality of legal services to the public by forcing lawyers to take periodic refresher courses or leave the legal profession. At the request of the Minnesota Bar Association the Supreme Court of that state is expected to impose such an order within a week. The Supreme Court of Iowa is expected to adopt a simular plan and other states are working on or considering new procedures.

2 Demos Say Ford Spoke 'Nonsense'

Washington (UPI) — Two prominent Senate Democrats Tuesday accused President Ford of trying to make Congress a scapegoat in South Vietnam's recent military defeats.

Sens. Birch Bayh of Indiana and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas said the "dismal failure" of South Vietnam's military forces to stop the North Vietnamese onslaught was not because of congressional refusal to send more arms to Indochina.

"It is utter nonsense to suggest that the Congress or the United States is responsible for the dismal failure that we are witnessing today in South Vietnam," Bayh told a news conference.

"I absolutely reject the idea that Congress bears any responsibility for the collapse of the South Vietnamese army and the abandonment — without a major battle being fought — of the three largest cities in the northern half of South Vietnam," he said.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., meantime told a news conference in Peoria, Ill, that the United States should cut off all military assistance to President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime to allow formation of a South Vietnamese government which could negotiate peace with Communist forces.

"It is obvious that the regime of Gen. Thieu cannot win the war, cannot make the peace, cannot govern long . . ." Stevenson said.

"We should signal and signal unmistakenly our intention to terminate our support for a corrupt and autocratic government, an inept government in Saigon. By doing so, cutting off all military assistance, we could at last give the people of South Vietnam an opportunity to form a broad-based popular government which could govern, make peace and negotiate."

He explained that by broad-based government he meant a non-Communist one composed of Roman Catholics and Buddhists.

Bentsen accused the President in a separate statement of "trying to use a serious international situation as a political club to force money out of Congress" for South Vietnam.

"The Communist offensive is not a test of will and leadership in Washington but a test of will and leadership in Saigon," added Bentsen. "And, so far, that leadership has not met the test."

"It is unfortunate that the administration has recently undertaken what appears to be a concerted effort to set up Congress as a scapegoat for reversals in foreign affairs in general and in Southeast Asia in particular," Bayh said.

He added that it would be "foolish" for Congress to appropriate the $300 million in additional military aid sought by Ford for South Vietnam, and the argument that it could help save the country from being overrun by the Communists was "just phony."

It would make "very little difference" to U.S. security if all of Indochina fell to the Communists, Bayh said.

Over $1.2 Million Overcharged

. . . That's Only In 4 Out Of 200 Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators have uncovered another half million dollars of overcharges for fuel oil sold to electric utilities, bringing the known total to more than $1.2 million in only four of the 200 cases under investigation, a federal official said Tuesday.

The utility fuel investigation is only one of five major investigations by FEA into possible violations of federal oil price controls and allocation rules.

FEA already has made companies pay back nearly $612 million in the handful of cases completed and suspects further overcharges as high as $250 million more.

Investigators suspect a total of $19.7 million may have been overcharged on utility fuel.

While electric utility rates are regulated, the utilities may raise their rates to pass along increased fuel costs, so that fuel overcharges may turn up quickly as increases on the electric bills of homeowners, businessmen and industries.

John Carter, head of the utility fuel investigation for the Federal Energy Administration, revealed that two fuel suppliers have signed agreements to pay back overcharges.

—Bessemer Oil Co. signed a consent agreement last March 12, he said, to restore a total of $478,803.60 overcharged to Alabama Power Co., Mississippi Power Co., and Gulf Power Co., which serves southern Alabama, southern Georgia and northwestern Florida.

—Accent Petroleum of Golden, Colo., signed a consent agreement on March 12 to restore $14,113 to the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities, he added.

In addition, Carter said FEA was still negotiating for repayment of $710,000 in alleged overcharges by one supplier of fuel oil to Georgia Power Co. in Atlanta.

And investigators expected repayment of about $11,000 in a fourth case which Carter would not identify.

He said two more cases of suspected overcharge were currently under investigation.

Saigon's Control Cut To Southern Third

From Press Reports

North Vietnamese forces rolled south toward South Vietnam's most populous areas Tuesday virtually unchecked by the broken South Vietnamese army. The Saigon government's control was cut down to the southern corner, only one-third of the land mass, and Communist-led forces were biting into that.

The rapid conquest further weakened President Nguyen Van Thieu's fragile political position and produced new calls for his resignation.

Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem resigned, and military sources said a group of generals had given Thieu two days to resign. The sources cited the quickly deteriorating military situation. One officer said, "It could be all over by tonight."

Unconfirmed reports said the entire cabinet, in addition to Khiem himself, had submitted resignations to Thieu.

Chaos was reported in Nha Trang, its population of 200,000 swelled by more than 60,000 refugees, as Communist-led forces moved in from the west. Refugees and residents mobbed the airport for flights that never came. The American captain of an evacuation plane hurled deserting soldiers to the ground and let aboard women and children.

2 Demos Say Ford Spoke 'Nonsense'

Washington (UPI) — Two prominent Senate Democrats Tuesday accused President Ford of trying to make Congress a scapegoat in South Vietnam's recent military defeats.

Sens. Birch Bayh of Indiana and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas said the "dismal failure" of South Vietnam's military forces to stop the North Vietnamese onslaught was not because of congressional refusal to send more arms to Indochina.

"It is utter nonsense to suggest that the Congress or the United States is responsible for the dismal failure that we are witnessing today in South Vietnam," Bayh told a news conference.

"I absolutely reject the idea that Congress bears any responsibility for the collapse of the South Vietnamese army and the abandonment — without a major battle being fought — of the three largest cities in the northern half of South Vietnam," he said.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., meantime told a news conference in Peoria, Ill, that the United States should cut off all military assistance to President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime to allow formation of a South Vietnamese government which could negotiate peace with Communist forces.

"It is obvious that the regime of Gen. Thieu cannot win the war, cannot make the peace, cannot govern long . . ." Stevenson said.

"We should signal and signal unmistakenly our intention to terminate our support for a corrupt and autocratic government, an inept government in Saigon. By doing so, cutting off all military assistance, we could at last give the people of South Vietnam an opportunity to form a broad-based popular government which could govern, make peace and negotiate."

He explained that by broad-based government he meant a non-Communist one composed of Roman Catholics and Buddhists.

Bentsen accused the President in a separate statement of "trying to use a serious international situation as a political club to force money out of Congress" for South Vietnam.

"The Communist offensive is not a test of will and leadership in Washington but a test of will and leadership in Saigon," added Bentsen. "And, so far, that leadership has not met the test."

"It is unfortunate that the administration has recently undertaken what appears to be a concerted effort to set up Congress as a scapegoat for reversals in foreign affairs in general and in Southeast Asia in particular," Bayh said.

He added that it would be "foolish" for Congress to appropriate the $300 million in additional military aid sought by Ford for South Vietnam, and the argument that it could help save the country from being overrun by the Communists was "just phony."

It would make "very little difference" to U.S. security if all of Indochina fell to the Communists, Bayh said.

Over $1.2 Million Overcharged

. . . That's Only In 4 Out Of 200 Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators have uncovered another half million dollars of overcharges for fuel oil sold to electric utilities, bringing the known total to more than $1.2 million in only four of the 200 cases under investigation, a federal official said Tuesday.

The utility fuel investigation is only one of five major investigations by FEA into possible violations of federal oil price controls and allocation rules.

FEA already has made companies pay back nearly $612 million in the handful of cases completed and suspects further overcharges as high as $250 million more.

Investigators suspect a total of $19.7 million may have been overcharged on utility fuel.

While electric utility rates are regulated, the utilities may raise their rates to pass along increased fuel costs, so that fuel overcharges may turn up quickly as increases on the electric bills of homeowners, businessmen and industries.

John Carter, head of the utility fuel investigation for the Federal Energy Administration, revealed that two fuel suppliers have signed agreements to pay back overcharges:

—Bessemer Oil Co. signed a consent agreement last March 12, he said, to restore a total of $478,803.60 overcharged to Alabama Power Co. Mississippi Power Co., and Gulf Power Co. which serves southern Alabama, southern Georgia and northwestern Florida.

—Accent Petroleum of Golden, Colo., signed a consent agreement on March 12 to restore $14,113 to the Colorado Springs Department of Public Utilities, he added.

In addition, Carter said FEA was still negotiating for repayment of $710,000 in alleged overcharges by one supplier of fuel oil to Georgia Power Co. in Atlanta.

And investigators expected repayment of about $11,000 in a fourth case which Carter would not identify.

He said two more cases of suspected overcharge were currently under investigation.

Simon Certain About Recovery

By The Associated Press

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Tuesday he is certain about an economic upturn this year but still nervous about the future. The stock market showed immediate nervousness but at least one sign of long-term confidence.

Announcement of two business indicators reflected Simon's optimism. Volume of new orders for manufactured goods increased in February for the first time in six months and inventories — which must be sold off before industries gear up production and begin rehiring — are continuing to grow at a slower rate, though not yet actually falling.

Meanwhile, The Associated Press marketbasket showed prices for 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood supermarket items dropped 2.7% in March. Of 13 cities checked, only Providence, R.I., and Albuquerque, N.M., failed to show an over-all drop.

In Washington, Treasury Secretary Simon said in an interview that the recession probably will hit bottom in midyear, with positive economic growth beginning in the fourth quarter.

"There is nothing the government can do, or cannot do, to stop the economic recovery — it's on schedule," he said.

As signs of recovery Simon pointed to improvement in business indicators in February for the first time in seven months, falling interest rates, a big flow of funds into thrift institutions and a sharp decline in inflation.

But Simon said he is still worried that the nation is "headed toward a disastrously large deficit" partly due to what he considers an excessive tax cut passed by Congress and signed by President Ford.

He has warned that too large a tax cut could renew inflation and said he will recommend that Ford veto congressional bills that would push the 1976 deficit above $60 billion.

Simon said unemployment may show bad results for some time since it often lags behind other economic improvements and may still reach 9 per cent before starting to decline.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average took another drop, down 6.57 to 761.58. But one sign of confidence for the future was seen in the hiring by brokerage houses.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the largest stock firm, said it added 200 to its staff of 18,200 this year and needs 800 more for its training program. Last year, its employment dropped about 1,000.

The Commerce Department said new orders for manufactured goods rose 1.3% in February to a seasonally adjusted $75.9 billion.

While inventories did not shrink as administration economists had hoped, growth was only 0.1%. That was down from the 0.8% in January and well below the 2.2% increase in December.

This was no April Fool's joke. The dump truck picked the wrong time and the wrong place to try to dump its load and ended up standing on its tail. Oklahoma City police said the driver accidentally tripped the dump lever and got the unexpected lift because the tailgate was closed. The accident occurred at a heavily traveled intersection just before the Monday afternoon rush hour.

'Duke Of Duval' Commits Suicide

Concepcion, Tex. (UPI) — George B. Parr, aging South Texas political boss who faced a prison term for tax evasion, was found dead in his car in a ranch pasture Tuesday. A justice of the peace ruled suicide.

A pistol and rifle were found beside Parr in his car Gene Powell, a Department of Public Safety officer, said the body of the "Duke of Duval" was slumped over the steering wheel of his auto and he had a bullet wound in the right temple.

Parr's biggest political coup came later in 1950 with the now famous Box 13 of Jim Wells County that sent Lyndon B Johnson to the Senate for the first time. The count from Box 13, reported six days after the election, gave LBJ an 87-vote victory margin and earned him the nickname "Landslide Lyndon."

Liquor Board Admits Differences In Sexes

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Baltimore County Liquor Board Chairman Joseph J. Hess, conceding that there's "a difference in the anatomy of the male and female," says male go-go dancers no longer have to cover their breasts.

Hess last month ruled that go-go guys were subject to the same restrictions as female dancers when it came to what parts of their bodies they could show.

County law at the time forbid dancers to perform with their breast nipples exposed. The male dancers skirted the rule by covering their nipples with bandage strips or wearing see-through tank shirts.

But now, Hess says, the men can go topless. Women dancers, however, must continue to adhere to the coverup rule.

Draft Registration To Be Once A Year

Washington (UPI) — The 27-year-old rule requiring young American men to register for the draft within a month of their 18th birthdays was abolished Tuesday. Selective Service officials said it will soon be replaced by a once-a-year registration system

A spokesman said exact details remain to be worked out and will be announced later in the year, with the first mass registration in early 1976

"The requirement to register is still in full force and effect and only the method of registration will be changed," emphasized Selective Service System Director Byron V Pepitone

When the draft ended there was concern that young men either would not know about — or would intentionally ignore — the registration law. But Pepitone said the agency registered more 18-year-olds last year than the Census Bureau thought were alive.

But another Selective Service official said, "We've been having somewhat of a problem getting young men to register in a timely fashion"

The old system required men to sign up within a period 30 days before to 30 days after their 18th birthdays.

The officials said it was hoped that a once-a-year registration, held amid considerable hoopla and publicity, would be easier for the registrants and cheaper for the government.

Simon Certain About Recovery

By The Associated Press

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Tuesday he is certain about an economic upturn this year but still nervous about the future. The stock market showed immediate nervousness but at least one sign of long-term confidence.

Announcement of two business indicators reflected Simon's optimism. Volume of new orders for manufactured goods increased in February for the first time in six months and inventories — which must be sold off before industries gear up production and begin rehiring — are continuing to grow at a slower rate, though not yet actually falling.

Meanwhile, The Associated Press marketbasket showed prices for 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood supermarket items dropped 2.7% in March. Of 13 cities checked, only Providence, R.I., and Albuquerque, N.M., failed to show an over-all drop.

In Washington, Treasury Secretary Simon said in an interview that the recession probably will hit bottom in midyear, with positive economic growth beginning in the fourth quarter.

"There is nothing the government can do, or cannot do, to stop the economic recovery — it's on schedule," he said.

As signs of recovery Simon pointed to improvement in business indicators in February for the first time in seven months, falling interest rates, a big flow of funds into thrift institutions and a sharp decline in inflation.

But Simon said he is still worried that the nation is "headed toward a disastrously large deficit" partly due to what he considers an excessive tax cut passed by Congress and signed by President Ford.

Increase In Serious Crime

The Justice Department has reported that serious crime last year rose 17% nationwide over 1973 and went up even more steeply in the final quarter of the year — which is obviously a chilling trend.

Here at home the news is not any better.

Year-end statistics confirmed quarterly figures that showed serious crime on the upswing on the local scene: Omaha experienced a percentage increase in reported serious crimes of 13%; the state as a whole showed an increase of 20% while Lincoln showed a disgraceful increase of 24% in serious crime.

People in Lincoln have good reason to worry about that figure.

Retired Police Chief Joe Carroll used to say that the increase in serious crime was due, among other things, to lenient judges, but we won't buy that as an explanation for the percentage increase in Lincoln. The answer has to be more complex than that.

But it does appear that the Lincoln Police Department's touted "high-profile" strategy isn't working as well as it should as a deterrent, at least so far as serious crime is concerned. And that is the area of crime in which people's physical well-being and the security of their property is most at stake.

It would seem obvious that the heavy emphasis should be switched from traffic and liquor enforcement to the serious crime area.

He Deserved It

Except for monuments to physical talent and managerial wizardry and sheer color like the baseball Cardinals and the football Cornhuskers, we have never been supportive of athletic dynasties.

Never liked the Yankees, nor the Fighting Irish, nor the Pack in their prime. The Crimson Tide, the Sooners, the Buckeyes and the Longhorns have been anathema to us. Maybe for years we have been afflicted (immune only where the aforementioned Cornhuskers are concerned) with underdog fever.

Even the painful oppressiveness of UCLA has been the source of great irritation. The Bruins have bullied their way to ten NCAA basketball titles in the past dozen years.

We have to admit, however, to flagging in our support of Kentucky (hardly a poor relation when it comes to basketball) Monday night.

Toward the end we saw the light. Coach Wooden wanted a workman-like performance because he is a workman-like coach and he got it. The post-game interview confirmed that the outcome was richly deserved.

What a hell of a coach and what a way to go out.

It Must Be Spring

Spring has been here for almost two weeks and it's been a crummy spring so far. What really wasn't a bad winter sure was better, relatively speaking, than what Mother Nature has offered her brood of spring.

Western Nebraska must have really displeased the old lady. The worst blizzard since 1949 hit that area of the state and with human and livestock losses, it's not a laughing matter.

Here in the southeast, it has only been windy, cold and dreary. If robins could wear overcoats, they would.

The sandhill crane we saw on a frigid outing along the Platte this last weekend have paused here as they always do on their northward migratory flight. They must be plotting a strategic retreat to the south to await warmer flying weather.

But as certain as the penetrating chill of March, the last offensive of winter, the coming home of the redbreasted robin and the annual journey of the crane, is the staging of troop maneuvers within the confines of the University of Nebraska campus at Lincoln.

Spring practice for the Huskers at Memorial Stadium has begun. No truer harbinger and none more welcome.

Gibbon, Neb.

The 1974 drought spawned a flood of new water management ideas for Nebraska. The Legislature and numerous other agencies are pushing for ground water control, pumping limitation by taxes or rationing, water basin diversion, ground water diversion, large impoundments, etc. Pressure is also being exerted to attract federal and other funds for anti-recession public works spending. The U.S.B.R. and Army Corps of Engineers are at the head of the list. The seven million acre-feet of surface water annually flowing out of Nebraska compared to one million acre-feet entering Nebraska are one of their persuasive points of need. The gullied highly eroded farm and grazing lands located especially in the upper reaches tributary to the main river systems in Nebraska are a glaring example of the needless loss of soil and water resources. The holding capacity of large impoundments subject to continued erosion is limited and at best will serve a short-term period.

In all their furor over water resources management, there has been little or no mention of realistic purposeful soil and water conservation methods. The seven million acre-feet of surface water leaving Nebraska annually should be the concern of everyone. The six million acre-feet increase over inflow is generated by precipitation. By implementing the known proven practices of terraces, contour farming, retention dams, trash farming, stock ponds, etc. we can retain much of the six million acre-feet by introducing precipitation into the soil and ground water reservoir, also increase soil productivity, reduce flood and pollution damage, increase and maintain the continuity of existing habitat for all wildlife, especially for Sand Hill crane and the endangered whooping crane. In addition it will preserve and maintain the natural scenic beauty and livability of our state.

In a recent poll 65% of Nebraskans want at least 50% of water left in Nebraska rivers. Soil and water conservation practice is a step in this direction, increasing ground water at higher elevations will influence spring-fed streams, providing more constant flow in the entire river systems, especially during dry seasons. Stream flow is an important part of the natural water cycle, maintaining a natural balance by draining areas of excess ground water and in other areas providing a recharge for acquifers that provide water for cities, rural domestic use and some large tracts of pump irrigated land.

How can we question the value of these practices when they have been successfully used in the far east for over 2,000 years? Opportunities for soil and water conservation construction are available over most of this state.

The benefits of soil and water conservation practices far exceed the large impoundment concept and will provide long-lasting, more comprehensive resource benefits over comparable areas without the loss of large acreages required for impoundment cite, floodways and other project land use.

The proposed Midstate Project Plan is an obvious example of bureaucratic waste, project misrepresentation and mismanagement of soil and water resources as follows:

(1) Approximately 14% of all the arable land in the district (363,000 acres) or 51,000 acres will be required for project purpose.

(2) The loss of tax yield from these 51,000 acres will cause an increased tax burden for the remaining tax subdivisions.

(3) Based on a family of four, operating 320 acres results in the loss of homes and employment for 637 people if these 51,000 acres are taken for project purpose.

(4) To establish project need, U.S.B.R. and Midstate officials presented in Washington an unfounded self-contrived chart projecting extreme ground water losses, greater well lifts, higher pumping costs and eventual total ground water depletion without Midstate and stable ground water levels and lesser pumping costs with Midstate, showing a savings of $5.05 per acre in pumping costs with Midstate. The $5.05 per acre was applied as project benefit to arrive at a favorable cost-benefit analysis.

This chart which was used to gain authorization, projects ground water levels at the end of 1974 to have declined to a level showing well lifts to be 100% greater than average well lifts from 1930 through 1950.

On the contrary, the district is approximately 95% developed and has been heavily pumped for many years. Current findings based on U.S. Geological Survey and the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska (Paper No. 36) contains long-term record of hydrographs of observation wells in the district showing ground water levels to be stabilized by annual off-season natural recharge. Page 35 of Water Survey Paper No. 36 contains a paragraph stating that no significant progressive watertable decline has been established in the three counties comprising the Mid-state District.

(5) The 1972 valuation of all the property in the Midstate District is $235,401,908,000. The 1967 cost estimate of Midstate ranged from $106 million to $126 million or approximately 50% of the total district valuation.

February 4, 1975, the Army Corps of Engineers estimate the Papillion Basin Project cost has more than tripled since the project was approved in 1968. Assuming a comparable rise in Midstate, its costs now would be well over $300 million or approximately 1½ times the 1972 valuation of all the property in the district.

The needless resources and economic waste of the Midstate plan are tragic. The needless waste of energy alone for seven to nine years of construction is unthinkable. It is beyond conception to imagine this highly developed, successfully irrigated area being encroached upon with huge machines bisecting lands, inundating homes, highways, villages, railroads, etc. under the project right of eminent domain. Cost of restoration of the damage is beyond measure.

Our future as well as the future of our country depends upon the use of wisdom in choosing methods of resources management. Food is now of world-wide attention and importance. Our future livelihood and that of the world depends upon our ability to choose and implement effective realistic resources management.

Presidential Image

WASHINGTON — Let no American think for a moment that President Ford is one to put on airs. Chances are, of course, that nobody ever would. All the same, the White House public relations apparatus is constantly on guard against such heretical notions. Scarcely a day passes without some new reminder — printed or televised — that the President of the United States is affable, gregarious and photogenic.

A good deal of Ford's image as a down-to-earth president is attributable to his personal photographer, David Hume Kennerly. With ready access to the President on both public and private occasions, Kennerly has produced numerous pictures of the First Family. Outside photographers also have been permitted to snap away at the Fords to their hearts' content. Picture layouts of the Fords at work and play have appeared in Time and U.S. News & World Report, among other publications, and at least one book of photographs is in preparation.

This incessant shutterbugging accordds with the President's professed policy of openness and candor. But there is more to it than that. According to John Herbers of The New York Times, White House officials believe Ford's personality "comes through in pictures, and that this is the best 'selling point.'"

Perhaps "selling" is not the most felicitous word to use. Ever since the publication of Joe McGinniss' book, "The Selling of the President 1968," the subject of political image-making has been a touchy one among public officials. McGinnis dissected the elaborate media campaign that preceded Richard Nixon's first election as president, but he made it clear that the same techniques could be employed by others seeking high office.

A candidate appearing on television, McGinniss wrote, "is measured not against his predecessors — not against a standard of performance established by two centuries of democracy — but against (TV talk-show host) Mike Douglas. How well does he handle himself? Does he mumble, does he twitch, does he make me laugh? Do I feel warm inside? Style becomes substance. The medium is the massage and the masseur gets the votes."

Elaborate image-building campaigns often are a waste of time, however, for the public's early impressions of a politician on television tend to be lasting. Nixon, for example, looked and spoke well in his last three televised debates with John F. Kennedy during the 1960 presidential election campaign. But he had appeared wan and on the defensive in the first debate, and that is the one most voters remembered on election day.

President Johnson, who acknowledged his "shortcomings as a communicator," seemed stiff and ill at ease when he used the news-conference format that worked so well for Kennedy. He then took to wearing a small microphone under his jacket so that he could stroll about freely and emphasize points with sweeping gestures. Contrary to the hopes of White House advisers, viewers seemed unimpressed by these televised glimpses of "the real Johnson."

By all accounts, the President Ford one sees on television and in photographs is the same Good Old Jerry who was one of the House of Representatives' most popular members. All that warmth and plain-spokenness are for real. But presidents, no less than actors, should beware the pitfalls of type-casting. Whether they like it or not, all chief executives must employ guile on occasion.

And voters may not tolerate much deviousness in a president who insists on being judged by his candor.

Liberals And Tax Bill

WASHINGTON — The Democrats who control Congress may have done a good deal more than provide substantial stimulus for the economy in the tax bill they have just passed. The measure could be the beginning of a new and long-overdue course for American liberalism — toward a policy of redistributing income.

That is why the bill may be historic. Income distribution has always been the red-headed stepchild of liberalism, which has concentrated instead on providing services to the poor accepted the motion that a flourishing American economy would sufficiently spread the wealth, and tried to provide through such devices as civil rights and anti-trust legislation a reasonable degree of equity in American life.

But the record shows that the services strategy has rather consistently failed to improve the lot of the poor as much as it has improved the careers of middle-class social workers. In the past quarter-century, while the American economy has expanded almost beyond imagination the relative distribution of income and health from top to bottom has changed so little as to make the difference negligible. Despite that growth and all regulatory acts; a huge proportion of desperately poor and relatively poor people continues to shame the wealthiest nation the world has ever known.

Ecological concerns and the newly perceived limits on the world's energy supplies, moreover, suggest that economic growth cannot continue at past rates — let alone at a pace that might achieve a greater income spread than has been characteristic. And all this is being realized at a time when American liberals — at a dead end on civil rights and other familiar social strategies, and without a recognized leader to substitute his personality for a program — nevertheless confront the great political opportunity, owing to the disgrace of the Nixon administration and the ineptitude of its successor.

The tax bill at least raises the possibility of a new program. As The New York Times's expert on tax legislation, Eileen Shanahan, has pointed out, the conbination of 1974 and 1975 tax cuts provides tax reduction at the rate of 238% for the poorest, and 103 and 51% for the next poorest classes, while the per cent of reduction for the middle-class runs only from 15 to 28% with the healthy held below 6%.

In addition, the bill establishes the principle of cash payments to the poor through a "negative income tax" — with such assistance scaled not only for the lowest income levels but also for the working poor. A straight cash payment to help Social Security and railroad retirement beneficiaries represent another step toward a program of direct income assistance.

The tax bill, of course, does not constitute anything like a real incomes plan, one that might substitute for the welfare program, and for some of the other social services the government now provides. But from the political as well as the economic view, it is a substantial start in that direction, and one the Democrats — whose bill this unmistakeably is — would do well to capitalize upon in their prime election problem: to win back and hold for another political generation the votes of working-class people.

An incomes program holds out that possibility for several reasons. It is new in American politics, save for Richard Nixon's ill-fated experiment with the Family Assistance Plan. It is conservative in that it puts money in people's hands to do with as they wish; rather than subjecting them to the advice and regulation of a federal bureaucracy.

It is populist because it redistributes income and wealth by direct transfer from the affluent to the poor — preferably through the tax system. It is liberal in that it is equitable across-the-board, benefitting the white ethnic, the Spanish-speaking and the black poor alike and on the same dollar basis. It is decentralizing in that it passes power — money — out from the government rather than gathering it in by the growth of service bureaucracies.

Ultimately, an incomes program would be aimed at alleviating the economic inequities of American society — "soaking the rich" to come extent, not for what can be derided as "visionary social schemes" but to increase the amount of hard cash available to those at the lowest levels of the economic ladder. Then it would be reasonable to hope that if the most disadvantaged people in American life had more money to spend as they saw fit, and fewer grievances against a wealthy society that they believed to have exploited and discriminated against them, that society might be less torn by crime, violence, unrest, and animosity between races and classes.

That may be a lot to deduce from one tax bill, and too much to expect of a party so long bankrupt of ideas as the Democrats. But 40 years after the New Deal, where else are they going to go?

Christmas In May

Blair, Neb.

President Ford, nine parts politician-one part statesman! "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." His signing the ill-advised, mumbo-jumbo "Christmas in May" hodge-podge of tax bonanzas, by a still ineffectual Democrat-dominated Congress, though in technicolor and with almost flawless imagery, was obviously weak and flawed.

Mr. Ford's own suggested $16 billion giveaway, was just as bad and just as poorly conceived. May God help us to somehow overcome the handicaps imposed by a fat-cat seniority-dominated Congress, and a Mr. "Good Guy", lightweight president.

Any kind of an across-the-board nominal tax cut at this time, solves nothing. It treats only symptoms. What is called for is searching efforts to correct our out-of-balance economic situation, followed by statesmanlike if painful superimposed legislative cures. The capitalistic system is facing its most difficult test. The "free enterprise system" we have bragged about for so long is already "hanging on the ropes" because of unbridled greed and apathy.

For Mayor Sam

Lincoln, Neb.

I was certainly surprised to read the statement by Yvonne Hardesty, chairperson of the Lancaster County Democratic organization, that the party was endorsing Helen Boosalis in the mayoral race because "Schwartzkopf has engaged in conduct unbecoming a Democrat by failing to support local Democratic congressional candidates during the last four years."

Since when is supporting Democratic congressional candidates a qualification for being mayor of Lincoln? I thought the position of mayor was non-partisan in Lincoln! The real issues are:

(1) Is Lincoln the kind of city we the voters want it to be? Answer: Overwhelmingly, yes!

(2) Is Lincoln free of corruption and graft? Answer: Overwhelmingly, yes!

(3) Has Lincoln made progress with the leadership of Mayor Sam? Answer: Overwhelmingly, yes!

(4) Has the city of Lincoln operated within its budget? Answer: Overwhelmingly, yes! Mill levy has decreased with Mayor Sam's leadership!

Join me in voting for Mayor Sam and honest, progressive and constructive city government.

As a veteran, I would like to thank Mayor Schwartzkopf for establishing the Jobs for Veterans Committee. The mayor's committee composed of local citizens has done much to open up various doors for veterans who have recently come back from overseas and found the job market very slim.

There seems to be a fatal tendency these days for everyone to look to everyone (or someone) else to provide the answers to our problems — then point the finger of blame and accusation when things keep getting worse. This gets a vicious circle going, which in my opinion gets nowhere.

Isn't it more to the point to ask ourselves, "What am I doing?" This, to me, is integrity — taking a good look at our own personal, individual contribution to the world we live in, and letting the quality of that be raised.

Purge Time Again?

Sargent, Neb.

On Thursday morning I saw an interview on ABC-TV concerning the "whitewash" by the Warren Commission. There was an hour and one half program that evening on the same subject by the same network. This raises some very interesting questions. We know that the Council on Foreign Relations controls the news media; we also know that the Rockefeller "clan" controls the C.F.R. Is this programming designed to incite a public outcry for an investigation by a Senate select committee, a la Watergate? Gerald E. Ford was a member of the Warren Commission. Is it purge time again? Increase In Serious Crime

The Justice Department has reported that serious crime last year rose 17% nationwide over 1973 and went up even more steeply in the final quarter of the year — which is obviously a chilling trend.

Here at home the news is not any better.

Year-end statistics confirmed quarterly figures that showed serious crime on the upswing on the local scene: Omaha experienced a percentage increase in reported serious crimes of 13%; the state as a whole showed an increase of 20% while Lincoln showed a disgraceful increase of 24% in serious crime.

People in Lincoln have good reason to worry about that figure.

Retired Police Chief Joe Carroll used to say that the increase in serious crime was due, among other things, to lenient judges, but we won't buy that as an explanation for the percentage increase in Lincoln. The answer has to be more complex than that.

But it does appear that the Lincoln Police Department's touted "high-profile" strategy isn't working as well as it should as a deterrent, at least so far as serious crime is concerned. And that is the area of crime in which people's physical well-being and the security of their property is most at stake.

It would seem obvious that the heavy emphasis should be switched from traffic and liquor enforcement to the serious crime area.

He Deserved It

Except for monuments to physical talent and managerial wizardry and sheer color like the baseball Cardinals and the football Cornhuskers, we have never been supportive of athletic dynasties.

Never liked the Yankees, nor the Fighting Irish, nor the Pack in their prime. The Crimson Tide, the Sooners, the Buckeyes and the Longhorns have been anathema to us. Maybe for years we have been afflicted (immune only where the aforementioned Cornhuskers are concerned) with underdog fever.

Even the painful oppressiveness of UCLA has been the source of great irritation. The Bruins have bullied their way to ten NCAA basketball titles in the past dozen years.

We have to admit, however, to flagging in our support of Kentucky (hardly a poor relation when it comes to basketball) Monday night.

Toward the end we saw the light. Coach Wooden wanted a workman-like performance because he is a workman-like coach and he got it. The post-game interview confirmed that the outcome was richly deserved.

What a hell of a coach and what a way to go out.

It Must Be Spring

Spring has been here for almost two weeks and it's been a crummy spring so far. What really wasn't a bad winter sure was better, relatively speaking, than what Mother Nature has offered her brood of spring.

Western Nebraska must have really displeased the old lady. The worst blizzard since 1949 hit that area of the state and with human and livestock losses, it's not a laughing matter.

Here in the southeast, it has only been windy, cold and dreary. If robins could wear overcoats, they would.

The sandhill crane we saw on a frigid outing along the Platte this last weekend have paused here as they always do on their northward migratory flight. They must be plotting a strategic retreat to the south to await warmer flying weather.

But as certain as the penetrating chill of March, the last offensive of winter, the coming home of the redbreasted robin and the annual journey of the crane, is the staging of troop maneuvers within the confines of the University of Nebraska campus at Lincoln.

Spring practice for the Huskers at Memorial Stadium has begun. No truer harbinger and none more welcome.

The 1974 drought spawned a flood of new water management ideas for Nebraska. The Legislature and numerous other agencies are pushing for ground water control, pumping limitation by taxes or rationing, water basin diversion, ground water diversion, large impoundments, etc. Pressure is also being exerted to attract federal and other funds for anti-recession public works spending. The U.S.B.R. and Army Corps of Engineers are at the head of the list. The seven million acre-feet of surface water annually flowing out of Nebraska compared to one million acre-feet entering Nebraska are one of their persuasive points of need. The gullied highly eroded farm and grazing lands located especially in the upper reaches tributary to the main river systems in Nebraska are a glaring example of the needless loss of soil and water resources. The holding capacity of large impoundments subject to continued erosion is limited and at best will serve a short-term period.

In all their furor over water resources management, there has been little or no mention of realistic purposeful soil and water conservation methods. The seven million acre-feet of surface water leaving Nebraska annually should be the concern of everyone. The six million acre-feet increase over inflow is generated by precipitation. By implementing the known proven practices of terraces, contour farming, retention dams, trash farming, stock ponds, etc. we can retain much of the six million acre-feet by introducing precipitation into the soil and ground water reservoir, also increase soil productivity, reduce flood and pollution damage, increase and maintain the continuity of existing habitat for all wildlife, especially for Sand Hill crane and the endangered whooping crane. In addition it will preserve and maintain the natural scenic beauty and livability of our state.

In a recent poll 65% of Nebraskans want at least 50% of water left in Nebraska rivers. Soil and water conservation practice is a step in this direction, increasing ground water at higher elevations will influence spring-fed streams, providing more constant flow in the entire river systems, especially during dry seasons. Stream flow is an important part of the natural water cycle, maintaining a natural balance by draining areas of excess ground water and in other areas providing a recharge for acquifers that provide water for cities, rural domestic use and some large tracts of pump irrigated land.

How can we question the value of these practices when they have been successfully used in the far east for over 2,000 years? Opportunities for soil and water conservation construction are available over most of this state.

The benefits of soil and water conservation practices far exceed the large impoundment concept and will provide long-lasting, more comprehensive resource benefits over comparable areas without the loss of large acreages required for impoundment cite, floodways and other project land use.

The proposed Midstate Project Plan is an obvious example of bureaucratic waste, project misrepresentation and mismanagement of soil and water resources as follows:

(1) Approximately 14% of all the arable land in the district (363,000 acres) or 51,000 acres will be required for project purpose.

(2) The loss of tax yield from these 51,000 acres will cause an increased tax burden for the remaining tax subdivisions.

(3) Based on a family of four, operating 320 acres results in the loss of homes and employment for 637 people if these 51,000 acres are taken for project purpose.

(4) To establish project need, U.S.B.R. and Midstate officials presented in Washington an unfounded self-contrived chart projecting extreme ground water losses, greater well lifts, higher pumping costs and eventual total ground water depletion without Midstate and stable ground water levels and lesser pumping costs with Midstate, showing a savings of $5.05 per acre in pumping costs with Midstate. The $5.05 per acre was applied as project benefit to arrive at a favorable cost-benefit analysis.

This chart which was used to gain authorization, projects ground water levels at the end of 1974 to have declined to a level showing well lifts to be 100% greater than average well lifts from 1930 through 1950.

On the contrary, the district is approximately 95% developed and has been heavily pumped for many years. Current findings based on U.S. Geological Survey and the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska (Paper No. 36) contains long-term record of hydrographs of observation wells in the district showing ground water levels to be stabilized by annual off-season natural recharge. Page 35 of Water Survey Paper No. 36 contains a paragraph stating that no significant progressive watertable decline has been established in the three counties comprising the Mid-state District.

(5) The 1972 valuation of all the property in the Midstate District is $235,401,908,000. The 1967 cost estimate of Midstate ranged from $106 million to $126 million or approximately 50% of the total district valuation.

February 4, 1975, the Army Corps of Engineers estimate the Papillion Basin Project cost has more than tripled since the project was approved in 1968. Assuming a comparable rise in Midstate, its costs now would be well over $300 million or approximately 1½ times the 1972 valuation of all the property in the district.

The needless resources and economic waste of the Midstate plan are tragic. The needless waste of energy alone for seven to nine years of construction is unthinkable. It is beyond conception to imagine this highly developed, successfully irrigated area being encroached upon with huge machines bisecting lands, inundating homes, highways, villages, railroads, etc. under the project right of eminent domain. Cost of restoration of the damage is beyond measure.

Our future as well as the future of our country depends upon the use of wisdom in choosing methods of resources management. Food is now of world-wide attention and importance. Our future livelihood and that of the world depends upon our ability to choose and implement effective realistic resources management.

Presidential Image

WASHINGTON — Let no American think for a moment that President Ford is one to put on airs. Chances are, of course, that nobody ever would. All the same, the White House public relations apparatus is constantly on guard against such heretical notions. Scarcely a day passes without some new reminder — printed or televised — that the President of the United States is affable, gregarious and photogenic.

A good deal of Ford's image as a down-to-earth president is attributable to his personal photographer, David Hume Kennerly. With ready access to the President on both public and private occasions, Kennerly has produced numerous pictures of the First Family. Outside photographers also have been permitted to snap away at the Fords to their hearts' content. Picture layouts of the Fords at work and play have appeared in Time and U.S. News & World Report, among other publications, and at least one book of photographs is in preparation.

This incessant shutterbugging accordds with the President's professed policy of openness and candor. But there is more to it than that. According to John Herbers of The New York Times, White House officials believe Ford's personality "comes through in pictures, and that this is the best 'selling point.' "

Perhaps "selling" is not the most felicitous word to use. Ever since the publication of Joe McGinniss' book, "The Selling of the President 1968," the subject of political image-making has been a touchy one among public officials. McGinnis dissected the elaborate media campaign that preceded Richard Nixon's first election as president, but he made it clear that the same techniques could be employed by others seeking high office.

A candidate appearing on television, McGinniss wrote, "is measured not against his predecessors — not against a standard of performance established by two centuries of democracy — but against (TV talk-show host) Mike Douglas. How well does he handle himself? Does he mumble, does he twitch, does he make me laugh? Do I feel warm inside? Style becomes substance. The medium is the massage and the masseur gets the votes."

Elaborate image-building campaigns often are a waste of time, however, for the public's early impressions of a politician on television tend to be lasting. Nixon, for example, looked and spoke well in his last three televised debates with John F. Kennedy during the 1960 presidential election campaign. But he had appeared wan and on the defensive in the first debate, and that is the one most voters remembered on election day.

President Johnson, who acknowledged his "shortcomings as a communicator," seemed stiff and ill at ease when he used the news-conference format that worked so well for Kennedy. He then took to wearing a small microphone under his jacket so that he could stroll about freely and emphasize points with sweeping gestures. Contrary to the hopes of White House advisers, viewers seemed unimpressed by these televised glimpses of "the real Johnson."

By all accounts, the President Ford one sees on television and in photographs is the same Good Old Jerry who was one of the House of Representatives' most popular members. All that warmth and plain-spokenness are for real. But presidents, no less than actors, should beware the pitfalls of type-casting. Whether they like it or not, all chief executives must employ guile on occasion.

And voters may not tolerate much deviousness in a president who insists on being judged by his candor.

Liberals And Tax Bill

WASHINGTON — The Democrats who control Congress may have done a good deal more than provide substantial stimulus for the economy in the tax bill they have just passed. The measure could be the beginning of a new and long-overdue course for American liberalism — toward a policy of redistributing income.

That is why the bill may be historic. Income distribution has always been the red-headed stepchild of liberalism, which has concentrated instead on providing services to the poor accepted the motion that a flourishing American economy would sufficiently spread the wealth, and tried to provide through such devices as civil rights and anti-trust legislation a reasonable degree of equity in American life.

But the record shows that the services strategy has rather consistently failed to improve the lot of the poor as much as it has improved the careers of middle-class social workers. In the past quarter-century, while the American economy has expanded almost beyond imagination the relative distribution of income and health from top to bottom has changed so little as to make the difference negligible. Despite that growth and all regulatory acts; a huge proportion of desperately poor and relatively poor people continues to shame the wealthiest nation the world has ever known.

Ecological concerns and the newly perceived limits on the world's energy supplies, moreover, suggest that economic growth cannot continue at past rates — let alone at a pace that might achieve a greater income spread than has been characteristic. And all this is being realized at a time when American liberals — at a dead end on civil rights and other familiar social strategies, and without a recognized leader to substitute his personality for a program — nevertheless confront the great political opportunity, owing to the disgrace of the Nixon administration and the ineptitude of its successor.

The tax bill at least raises the possibility of a new program. As The New York Times's expert on tax legislation, Eileen Shanahan, has pointed out, the conbination of 1974 and 1975 tax cuts provides tax reduction at the rate of 238% for the poorest, and 103 and 51% for the next poorest classes, while the per cent of reduction for the middle-class runs only from 15 to 28% with the healthy held below 6%.

In addition, the bill establishes the principle of cash payments to the poor through a "negative income tax" — with such assistance scaled not only for the lowest income levels but also for the working poor. A straight cash payment to help Social Security and railroad retirement beneficiaries represent another step toward a program of direct income assistance.

The tax bill, of course, does not constitute anything like a real incomes plan, one that might substitute for the welfare program, and for some of the other social services the government now provides. But from the political as well as the economic view, it is a substantial start in that direction, and one the Democrats — whose bill this unmistakeably is — would do well to capitalize upon in their prime election problem: to win back and hold for another political generation the votes of working-class people.

An incomes program holds out that possibility for several reasons. It is new in American politics, save for Richard Nixon's ill-fated experiment with the Family Assistance Plan. It is conservative in that it puts money in people's hands to do with as they wish; rather than subjecting them to the advice and regulation of a federal bureaucracy.

It is populist because it redistributes income and wealth by direct transfer from the affluent to the poor — preferably through the tax system. It is liberal in that it is equitable across-the-board, benefitting the white ethnic, the Spanish-speaking and the black poor alike and on the same dollar basis. It is decentralizing in that it passes power — money — out from the government rather than gathering it in by the growth of service bureaucracies.

Ultimately, an incomes program would be aimed at alleviating the economic inequities of American society — "soaking the rich" to come extent, not for what can be derided as "visionary social schemes" but to increase the amount of hard cash available to those at the lowest levels of the economic ladder. Then it would be reasonable to hope that if the most disadvantaged people in American life had more money to spend as they saw fit, and fewer grievances against a wealthy society that they believed to have exploited and discriminated against them, that society might be less torn by crime, violence, unrest, and animosity between races and classes.

That may be a lot to deduce from one tax bill, and too much to expect of a party so long bankrupt of ideas as the Democrats. But 40 years after the New Deal, where else are they going to go?

S-L-O-W COOKING...

One of today's newest ways of cooking is the crockpot or slow-cooker. This electric "dutch-oven" is made of a heat proof material which permits you to simmer meats, casseroles, soups, stews at low temperatures for long periods of unattended time. This slow-cooking method helps tenderize without shrinking—ideal for the less tender (hence, less expensive) cuts of meat and uses less energy, too.

An important feature to look for in selecting a cooker is one that will cook slow enough to be unattended for at least 8 hours and yet be fast enough to provide bacteria-free results. According to U.S.D.A., food bacteria is killed at a temperature of 165 F maintained for at least 2 hours. Those slow-cookers with a stoneware vessel of 3-3½ quart size can operate successfully at Low of 75 watts (larger models use 95 watts) and provides a cooking temperature of about 200 . Wattage at High setting is 150 watts and provides a cooking temperature of 300 . High is recommended to start or speed cooking. (It can also be used to bake cakes or steam puddings in some models). Those of other types of materials usually require a higher wattage to provide a safe heat rise and proper temperature levels.

There are about 20 different brands of slow-cookers available. Each varies somewhat so the recipe book and instruction manual that come with the cooker should be read and followed. But here are a few general hints to take advantage of this easy cooking method to maximize flavor and convenience in adapting your favorite recipe to slow cooking.

A little goes a long way—is the rule of adding spices in slow-cooking. Leaf or whole herbs and spices are recommended but the powdered variety can be used. Their flavoring power increases in slow-cooking—so use half of the recommended amounts. Add the powdered spices during the last hour of cooking.

To make gravy, stir in ¼ cup quick-cooking tapioca, at the start of the cooking. Gravy will thicken as it cooks—Or remove ½ cup liquid from the cooker, stir in the desired amount of corn starch or flour, return to the cooker and simmer at High for about 15 minutes.

It's never necessary to saute or par boil vegetables before adding to other ingredients in the slow-cooker—with one exception—egg plant should be par boiled or sauted due to its strong flavor.

Use less liquid than your recipe calls for—1 cup is usually enough unless you are cooking rice or pasta. If the recipe calls for noodles, macaroni, etc., cook before adding to cooker. Rice can be added raw but add an additional cup of liquid (long grain converted rice is best for all-day cooking).

S-L-O-W COOKING...

One of today's newest ways of cooking is the crockpot or slow-cooker. This electric "dutch-oven" is made of a heat proof material which permits you to simmer meats, casseroles, soups, stews at low temperatures for long periods of unattended time. This slow-cooking method helps tenderize without shrinking—ideal for the less tender (hence, less expensive) cuts of meat and uses less energy, too.

An important feature to look for in selecting a cooker is one that will cook slow enough to be unattended for at least 8 hours and yet be fast enough to provide bacteria-free results. According to U.S.D.A., food bacteria is killed at a temperature of 165° F maintained for at least 2 hours. Those slow-cookers with a stoneware vessel of 3-3½ quart size can operate successfully at Low of 75 watts (larger models use 95 watts) and provides a cooking temperature of about 200°. Wattage at High setting is 150 watts and provides a cooking temperature of 300°. High is recommended to start or speed cooking. (It can also be used to bake cakes or steam puddings in some models). Jan. 12, I sent a $10 check to Warren Publishing Co., New York, for a year's subscription to "Vampirella." The check was cashed Jan. 17, but I still have not received the first issue of the magazine. Please help.

—Mrs. Lynn Kinghorn, Stromsburg

ACTION LINE: E. C. Ives, customer relations representative for Warren Publishing, said your first issue was sent March 20. It should be in your mailbox shortly.

Please give me the name of the bagpipe band in Iowa.

—Luke Swetland, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The marching band is called the Scotush Highlanders of the University of Iowa. Mrs. William Weyhrauch of Lincoln, an IU alumna and former member of the band, suggested you write the university's music department at Iowa City, Iowa, for more information.

I'm moving out of Nebraska soon. Why can't my gas cost credit for the previous year be paid back to me instead of the new owners of the property? It's money I paid.

—Dorothy Hansen, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: C. L. Wilcox, division manager for Cengas, 1201 N St., said any refund received by Cengas from the pipeline company as a result of Federal Power Commission rate regulations is returned to the current customer as a gas cost credit. The reason: "It's too difficult . . . costly and almost impossible . . . to reach the previous customer."

We bought two horns from Hospe's in Omaha on contract payments. When we received the September billing, we paid the total due to clear the account. Then in October we got a statement saying we had a credit balance of $7.69 on each horn. We wrote asking for a refund and have heard nothing since. Help us get our $15.38 back please.

—Dean A. E., Alexandria

ACTION LINE: Debbie Dewitt of Hospes said she'd have the check in the mail within the week.

Last May, I bought a twin hide-a-way bed from Berner Furniture and Appliance, Belmont Plaza. But the piece of furniture delivered had one cushion too small and one too big. We've been promised a refund, but so far have heard nothing. Please help.

ACTION LINE: When Action Line contacted Roger Berner, owner of Berner Furniture and Appliance, March 24, he said he would be out that day to pick up the piece of furniture and would write you out a refund check at that time.

Who can I contact to enter my calico cat in the 1st Annual Cat Show April 19-20 at Pershing Auditorium?

—G. E. Stumphy, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Contact Linda Helton, 3501 Michael St., or Debbie Bailen, 1628 Holling Drive, Omaha, to enter your feline favorite in the four-ringed event sponsored by the Lincoln Cat Fanciers.

I had a well meter disconnected in Oct. of 1974, but I had paid the entire yearly rate for it. The Norris Public Power District owes me a $40 refund, but so far I haven't received it. Can Action Line help?

—Garland Ryans, Roca

ACTION LINE: Norris Public Power District officials had pretty well taken care of your problem before Action Line stepped in. Ralph Cox, director of finance, said the check was mailed March 18 right after you had contacted the Beatrice NPPD office.

However, the day Action Line called NPPD, the letter with your check had returned to the Beatrice office stamped "incorrect address." Action Line provided the correct address, so your $40 should be in hand shortly.

ACTION TIP: The 1975 edition of the index of Spanish language consumer publications is now available from Consumer Information, Dept. 9, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. The index, Informacion para el Consumidor, lists 96 publications of value to Hispanic Consumers. The booklets tell in easy-to-understand Spanish how to buy, use and care for consumer products and discuss consumer-related subjects such as child care, health, housing, employment rights and immigration and naturalization requirements.

Convicted Rabbi Gets 3½ Years

New York (UPI) — A rabbi convicted of collecting $200,000 in insurance benefits by submitting a forged death certificate was sentenced Monday to 3½ years in prison for mail fraud.

Manhattan Federal Judge Lawrence W. Pierce told Louis Wolfish, 43, he would be eligible for parole in one year Wolfish said he would appeal.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Kite weather around Snug Harbor. April is a kite sailing in a blue-and-white sky, attached to a boy with a dog barking underneath.

A fresh and windy day. I got up and fed the cat. "Here cat. I'll put it on your Diner's Club card."

Americans spend a bundle on household pets. Some $9 million is the last figure I find in the clips. Probably gone up during the inflationary years. This figure includes cologne for dogs. Doggy Jamas — pajamas for man's best friend. Engraved leash and collar sets and monogrammed cashmere sweaters.

It's a triumph of our deeper feelings.

Cat's get about one-tenth of the loot. A million dollars or so. Dogs eat more. And cats don't wear as much jewelry.

People spend a lot on pets. And they often leave money to the pets so they can continue a chopped liver life after the owner has been called to his reward.

There is a Cat of the Year. Chosen from 18,000 show cats. (Who probably feel pretty catty about the choice.)

There's Dog Hero of the Year. Gets a $1,000 government bond plus all he can eat during the year of the sponsoring dog food.

☆ ☆ ☆

If you feel like priming economy's pump, spend a little on those Dog Jamas. Little things like Dog Jamas takes up the unemployment slack. Makes Wall Street happy.

The President says we've got a tax refund coming. Spend it on the dog. Get him silk Jamas. With his monogram on the pocket.

"Talk to the newspaper reporter, Oliver," said the lady. I was out on those talking dog interviews the city editor loved so well.

Oliver was an indescribable pooch — but I'll describe him anyway. He had a smooth coat fox terrier build. But his head was airdale.

"Don't be a naughty dog, Oliver," said the lady. "The nice reporter came all the way out here in the rain to talk to you."

She said to me: "Oliver is shy. This may take a little while."

Oliver was all con man. He knew his lines. He said: "Grrr-uff!"

The lady was ecstatic. "Did you hear that? He said, 'Mama.' "

☆ ☆ ☆

Other reporters covered murders. I covered dogs who murdered the king's English.

Cats don't talk. But once I was sent out to talk to a cat who only understood French.

"She is also sensitive to music," said the owner. "She adores Bach. Hates Brahms."

I figured the only way I could reach this cat would be to hammer the piano and do an Edith Piaf number. What a cat.

☆ ☆ ☆

Our black cat doesn't pretend to talk or understand in any language. I keep a folded newspaper on the couch. When she sharpens her claws on the furniture I whack the newspaper on the coffee table.

Whack! "Cut that out!"

The cat understands that. And that's as far as I want our conversation to go. I served my time on the talking animal routine.

Connally Jury Pool Selected

Washington (AP) — A pool of 44 prospective jurors was chosen Tuesday for the case of "United States vs. John B. Connally," the second time in American history that a former Cabinet officer has gone on trial for bribery.

Connally, 58, once regarded as a possible presidential contender by both the Democratic and Republican parties, sat stony-faced at the defense table as the prospective jurors were chosen.

From the pool of 30 women and 14 men, final selection of a jury is expected Wednesday morning, with opening arguments to follow immediately.

Connally stands accused by the Watergate prosecution force of accepting two $5,000 bribes from Associated Milk Producers Inc. while he was former President Richard M. Nixon's secretary of the treasury.

The silver-haired Connally, dapper in dark grey suit and muted striped tie, declined any comment as he entered the courthouse for a trial that is expected to last three weeks. If convicted on the two counts of accepting an illegal gratuity, Connally could be sentenced to a maximum four years in prison and be fined $20,000.

His wife, Idanell, and one of his three children — lawyer-son John III — were with Connnally for the start of the trial. So was a longtime friend, Thomas "Tommy the Cork" Corcoran, a Roosevelt-era braintruster, Houston oilman Paul Howell and B. K. Johnson of Kingsville, Tex.

"This is a criminal case," said chief prosecutor Frank M. Tuerkheimer.

In one conversation Connally had with Nixon two days before the milk announcement the secretary of the treasury urged the action as being good for political reasons.

Nixon himself, in a white paper issued while he was president, admitted political considerations played a part.

Connally returned to his Houston law firm after resigning his Cabinet post on May 16, 1972 — one month before the Watergate break-in that eventually shattered Nixon's presidency. He was never connected with the break-in or cover-up itself.

Bill Requires Giver To List Job

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Election campaign contributors would be identified by employment, as well as by their name and address, if Sen. Ralph Kelly's proposed election reforms are accepted by the Legislature.

Kelly has recently revised his proposal (LB182) to create a state campaign finance commission and require each candidate for public office to funnel his campaign contributions and expenditures through a single bank account.

The revisions are designed to transfer "duplicated and overlapping functions" from the secretary of state's office to the campaign finance commission, Kelly said.

LB182 is Kelly's second attempt to win legislative approval for his single "audit trail" system of tracking campaign funds. The first effort died in the 1974 Legislature.

The proposal would lower from $100 to $25 the amount of contributions and expenditures which would be required to be individually reported in public campaign finance disclosures.

Adding the employment of the contributor to the current listing of names and addresses would make it easier for the public to identify the source of the financial support.

His plan provides for "a maximum of supervision and openness of election campaigns while at the same time holding to a minimum the burdens imposed upon the individual seeking elective office," Kelly said.

Candidates whose campaigns involve $500 or less in receipts or expenditures would not need to file financial statements.

The five-member commission would be appointed by the governor subject to consent of the Legislature. No more than three of its members could be members of the same political party.

Each candidate's receipts and expenditures would be funneled through a single bank account, using uniform deposit slips and check forms prescribed by the commission.

Periodic public filing of finance statements would be required.

Candidates who are elected to office would be required to file quarterly reports to the commission during their term of office, listing "all money received by the elected official as a result of any political activity," Kelly said.

That would include political funds either accepted as personal property or deposited in the political bank account.

A winning candidate would need to complete the filing of all necessary financial statements before he or she would be eligible to receive a certificate of nomination or election.

Solons Still Face 210 Measures

Its major decisions still ahead of it, the 1975 Legislature will reach the 60% mark Wednesday when it returns from a six-day Eastern recess.

Senators have either enacted or killed 45% of the 592 bills thus far introduced for their consideration. Wednesday will leave only 40% of the session ahead of lawmakers.

As lawmakers enter the 54th of their 90 days in session, 210 measures are awaiting action on the floor. Another 132 are still in committees.

But odd-year legislative sessions are under no mandate to complete work on the bills presented to them. Measures which are left behind when the Unicameral adjourns this year will automatically carry over for consideration in the 1976 session.

This session, which began in the cold of early January, will probably adjourn in the warmth of late May.

Most committee deliberations are completed, although there will be hearings on two bills this week, including Gov. J. James Exon's proposal to eliminate the direct election of nation political convention delegates.

Wednesday's session will begin at 10 a.m.

Carpenter Not Party To Lawsuit

Scottsbluff (AP) — Former State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff Tuesday formally announced a federal, class action suit challenging the outcome of last November's 48th District legislative race.

Carpenter, a write-in candidate, appeared to be the winner in early vote tabulations. However, in a recount requested by his opponent, William Nichol, a former Scotts Bluff County commissioner, Carpenter lost by a narrow margin.

Carpenter told newsmen Tuesday that he is not part of the suit, which he said will be filed in U.S. District Court at Lincoln Wednesday morning.

The suit will be filed listing four to six plaintiffs who are voters in the 48th District, Carpenter said. Carpenter said he was not sure of the number of plaintiffs involved, and did not know their names, but stressed that he will not be involved.

Contacted after the news conference, Carpenter's attorney here, Harry Meister, said three plaintiffs are listed: Marcella Castaneda and Jesus Porez, both of Scottsbluff, and William Mahan of Mitchell.

Meister also said the suit asks the court to appoint a three-judge federal panel to hear the case.

The plaintiffs claim that they know their votes were not counted for reasons Secretary of State Allen Beermann gave during the recount.

Beermann ruled more than 100 ballots ineligible because of technical errors. He claimed that Carpenter's first name or initial was not used, Carpenter's name was misspelled or improper office designations were used.

When Carpenter learned of his defeat, he initiated an appeal, contending some of the voters had been disenfranchised because the intent of their votes was clear, but the votes were disqualified.

But it was only a few months later that Carpenter, saying he had been approached by a number of prominent citizens, announced that he would mount a write-in campaign to regain his old seat.

Pursuing the matter, Carpenter filed suit in Scotts Bluff County District Court, but the court ruled that it had no jurisdiction in the matter. The court said the Legislature should make the decision.

Carpenter then appealed to the Legislature itself, but Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas, then only a few days in office, issued an opinion that the lawmakers did not have to consider Carpenter's appeal because the Panhandle maverick had failed to file a proper appeal bond.

The appeal bond issue drew much debate in the Unicameral, but the senators voted to reject Carpenter's bid.

After the rejection, Carpenter said he would continue to appeal, and Wednesday's suit filing is the next step.

However, Carpenter said Tuesday it will be the last step.

Carpenter said he will abide by the federal court's decision on the matter, and will not appeal it further, adding that if he is not reseated, his political career will be over.

Last spring, Carpenter, 75, gave indication that he was ending the career voluntarily. He ran for lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary, saying he would resign his seat in the Legislature if defeated.

Gov. J. James Exon's hand-picked candidate for the office, Gerald Whelan of Hastings, won the primary hands down, and Carpenter, as promised, resigned from the Legislature.

"My belief, of course, is that the federal court will accept consideration of the issues," Carpenter said of his latest attempt to regain the seat.

Bicentennial Medals Presented

Tommy Leininger, a sixth grader at Sutton Elementary School and a member of the "Spirits of '76" singing sextet, presents an official Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission medal to Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan during ceremonies Tuesday. Mrs. William H. Hasebroock, commission chairman, gave a large copper sculptor's model, or galvano, to Gov. J. James Exon. The governor also received medal No. 1 of the .999 fine pure silver edition, 2½ inches in diameter, which he in turn gave to the State Historical Society. Medallic Art Co. of Danbury, Conn., has been selected to mint the medals. Royalties from medal sales will help finance Nebraska Bicentennial projects. The official design was created by Clarence S. Nelson of Holdrege and rendered into bas relief by Alfred Rappaport of New York City. (Star Photo)

Bicentennial Medal $6,500 Remains Unaccounted For

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The $6,500 is still unaccounted for.

Don Searcy, executive director of the Nebraska American Revoltuion Bicentennial Commission, said his office is making no attempt to account for the $6,500 the commission may owe the state treasury.

A state audit completed in mid-March revealed only $25,380 of the $31,961 received on royalties from the sale of Bicentennial medals had been transferred to a special cash fund under the state treasurer.

Proper Procedures

Searcy said a representative from the state auditor's office is working with his secretary to set up proper accounting procedures.

However, he said, no attempt is being made to determine how much, if anything, the commission owes the state.

"We hoped the state auditor could figure that out," Searcy said. "That's why we gave him all our records."

In his report, State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson commented that "the comingling of funds and value of services . . . prevents a complete and accurate separation and determination of commission expenditures."

'Not Our Job'

Tuesday Johnson said, "It's not our job to untangle funds or we would have done that in the audit.

"We'll show them how to do it and they can do it."

Searcy did say that an attempt is being made to reconcile other problems pointed out in the audit, including filing signature cards with the Department of Administrative Services, a change of coding, and directing that the governor's office approve any out-of-state travel.

Asked if the office furniture for the commission's office is still being rented from his mother's antique shop in Wilber, Searcy said, "We're not going to lease any furniture of any kind."

To Be Sent Back

He said furniture previously leased will be sent back, "except that which I personally own."

Although the furniture is still in the office, Searcy said he has not paid any rent on it since December, when the association's funds were transferred to the state treasury.

Concerning the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Association formed in February 1973, Searcy said no steps have been taken to dissolve the nonprofit private group.

Double Duty

The 15 commission members, who serve as state officials and are appointed by the governor, are also members of the association's board of directors.

In the audit, Johnson had pointed out that this close identification of the organizations causes not only confusion and bookkeeping errors but conflicts of interest for commission members as well.

Tuesday the members met as the association in the morning and convened as the commission in the afternoon.

Panel OKs Retirement Fund Bill

By The Associated Press

Teachers could negotiate for a larger contribution to their retirement fund, instead of a wage increase, under a bill approved by the Legislature's Retirement Committee Tuesday.

The bill, LB76, would allow school districts to make what is currently the teachers' contribution to the retirement fund, in lieu of a pay increase, according to West Point Sen. William Hasebroock, committee chairman.

"It's a tax shelter thing for the teachers that they can negotiate," said Hasebroock. "It can give the teachers a tax break, and as I understand it, this method is acceptable to the Internal Revenue Service."

Teachers now contribute 3.5% of their compensation to the retirement system, Hasebroock said.

In other action, the committee decided to hold until next year a bill that would have allowed state senators to participate in a retirement system.

Currently, senators are now allowed to receive any renumeration beyond their salaries.

The bill, LB40, was a constitutional amendment introduced by the Retirement Committee.

"It needs more study," Hasebroock said, "we just didn't have a plan that we thought was constitutional."

In other action the committee killed:

LB181 — To change the method of determining annual service annuity adjustment for retired school employes.

LB46 — To change the contribution of the members of the state employes retirement system.

LB31 — To require full-time employes of community colleges, state colleges and the University of Nebraska system to participate in a retirement plan after one year of service and attainment of age 25.

LB297 — Include employes of state colleges and technical community colleges in group life and health insurance program.

LB51 — to permit employes of political subdivisions to participate in the Nebraska state insurance program.

End To Aid Urged

However, he said, no attempt is being made to determine how much, if anything, the commission owes the state.

"We hoped the state auditor could figure that out," Searcy said. "That's why we gave him all our records."

In his report, State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson commented that "the comingling of funds and value of services . . . prevents a complete and accurate separation and determination of commission expenditures."

'Not Our Job'

Tuesday Johnson said, "It's not our job to untangle funds or we would have done that in the audit.

"We'll show them how to do it and they can do it."

Searcy did say that an attempt is being made to reconcile other problems pointed out in the audit, including filing signature cards with the Department of Administrative Services, a change of coding, and directing that the governor's office approve any out-of-state travel.

Asked if the office furniture for the commission's office is still being rented from his mother's antique shop in Wilber, Searcy said, "We're not going to lease any furniture of any kind."

To Be Sent Back

He said furniture previously leased will be sent back, "except that which I personally own."

Although the furniture is still in the office, Searcy said he has not paid any rent on it since December, when the association's funds were transferred to the state treasury.

Concerning the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Association formed in February 1973, Searcy said no steps have been taken to dissolve the nonprofit private group.

Double Duty

The 15 commission members, who serve as state officials and are appointed by the governor, are also members of the association's board of directors.

In the audit, Johnson had pointed out that this close identification of the organizations causes not only confusion and bookkeeping errors but conflicts of interest for commission members as well.

Tuesday the members met as the association in the morning and convened as the commission in the afternoon.

End To Aid Urged

Springfield, Ill. (UPI) — Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., said the only hope of salvaging a "broad-based popular government" in South Vietnam is to end all military aid to the Thieu regime by October.

One Of 4 Voters Expected Out For Primary

If Tuesday's primary election repeats history, only 28% of Lincoln's registered voters are going to select which political hopefuls will move on to the general election.

That grim picture of a light voter turnout was painted by Election Commissioner Bill Davidson, who estimated that only about 21,600 of Lincoln's 77,141 registered voters will show up at the polls Tuesday.

At stake in the primary is who will run for the mayor's job and four City Council seats. Six candidates for the School Board and three Airport Authority candidates are assured of being nominated.

In the primary race, electors will whittle down 15 council contenders to eight and three mayoral hopefuls to two. In the May 6 general election, four council members, the mayor, three School Board members and two Airport Authority members will be put into office.

Three incumbent councilmen are seeking a second term of office, while the fourth whose term expires in May, Helen Boosalis, is abandoning her job of 16 years in an attempt to unseat Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

As a result, at least one new lawmaker will be elected to the seven-member council in May.

Schwartzkopf is seeking his third term as the city's chief executive.

Although Mrs. Boosalis has waged four successful council campaigns, this marks her first attempt to win the mayor's position..

A political newcomer, Jo Bragg, also is campaigning for the mayor's job. She has served on the city's Human Rights Commission.

Voters in the city's 168 precincts again will cast their ballots on the "votomatic," a punch card machine. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Davidson said history has shown voters don't turn out for primary elections.

In the last city race for council two years ago, 19,949 people voted, while the 1971 election 21,909 people voted. Four council terms and mayor's term expired four years ago, possibly accounting for the larger voter turnout.

Although city officials are elected on a nonpartisan basis, records show that registered Republicans and registered Democrats are running neck and neck in the city. There are 39,045 Democrats, 39,014 Republicans and 5,032 registered independents.

Boosalis Pledges Formal Governmental Cooperation

The mayor's office should take the lead in stretching the eroding tax dollar by initiating formalized cooperation among local governmental units, said mayoral candidate Helen Boosalis.

As mayor, the council president said she would form a group composed of representatives from the school district, Airport Authority, Housing Authority, Natural Resources District, Railroad Transportation Safety District and state, county and city governments.

The group could support the joint use of equipment, personnel and services, Mrs. Boosalis said.

She said surplus property of one public agency possibly could be of use to another.

Although there has been cooperation in the past, she said an attempt must be made to formalize those efforts "to insure such agreements are the rule and not the fortunate exception."

Bragg Asks 2 Opponents For Debate

Mayoral candidate Jo Bragg has invited opponents Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and City Council President Helen Boosalis "to debate the issues" this weekend.

Mrs. Bragg said she has rented the Unitarian Church, 6300 A St., for a campaign barbecue Saturday from noon to 10 p.m., and asked her opponents to debate at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Bagg said "if the time is inconvenient for my opponents I will be glad to meet them at a time and place of their choosing."

Additional campaign officers were named, including Larry Coffee, assistant treasurer; Marilyn Johnson and Anna Mosby, co-chairpersons of volunteer activitites; Monroe Usher Jr., chairman of canvassers, and Ms. Jan Healey and William Harding, campaign coordinators.

Mayor For Housing Plan

The Lincoln Housing Authority's plans to acquire 40 houses for rehabilitation garnered the support of Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf Tuesday, who is seeking re-election.

Schwartzkopf said the project will benefit neighborhood preservation and is a "positive step" toward maintaining the city's housing.

The Housing Authority's program, Schwartzkopf said, is just one of several good programs now under way by the authority.

Tiwald For Aid, But Is Opposed To 'Give-Aways'

Steve Tiwald, candidate for City Council, says he supports human service programs, but opposes "give-away" programs.

He classified human service programs as those for the blind, disabled, some of the aged, families with dependent children and the mentally retarded.

Those type of services, he maintained, are designed "to assist these individuals so that they may return to active community participation."

However, he said everyone who is able-bodied should work and thus be an active contributor to the community.

Give-away programs, he claimed are an "affront" to others who are working, and cause a "loss of dignity and self-esteem for the recipient."

He said the city government should play a role in seeing there are enough jobs availble.

Kurtenbach Wants To Take From Rich To Give To Poor

City Council candidate Ron Kurtenbach said he favors the implementation of a progressive tax system whereby those who are able to pay taxes fork over more money than those who cannot.

Kurtenbach said Tuesday he wants the tax structure set up so that it "would virtually confiscate the wealth of the well-to-do."

That money is gained by wealthy people and corporations who, he claimed, exploit low and middle income people.

The tax structure should redistribute the wealth by taking profits and other income from the wealthy and giving it to the people. He opposes the existing city sales tax.

The radical change in the tax structure would benefit lower and middle income people, Kurtenbach said.

Bus System Disappoints Muggy

City Council candidate Bob Muggy said Tuesday he is surprised and disappointed that better bus service and shelters have not been provided in Lincoln.

Muggy contended that additional service was promised four years ago when he was a member of the Mayor's Bus Committee studying the purchase of the private bus line by the city.

Additional bus service would help solve parking problems, he said.

Sikyta Praises Tabitha's Plans

City Councilman Bob Sikyta praised the Tabitha New Community now being built near 27th and Fletcher Ave. as being one of the "best advertisements" for Lincoln nationally.

Sikyta, who is seeking reelection to the council, was on the council when the project received city approval.

Wider Input Base Backed By Poley

Jeffrey M. Poley, candidate for the Lincoln Board of Education, said Tuesday he agrees with Jo Ann Maxey that the schools must seek a wider base of opinion to increase parent and student input.

Mrs. Maxey, 2800 S, is also a board candidate in the spring city elections.

Poley said parents and children shouldn't be asked to conform to school goals and policies without say-so on their adoption. Board members, administrators and teachers have a responsibility to obtain opinions from all sectors in the community, he said.

Otherwise, there is a danger of over-responsiveness to vocal minorities, said Poley, 4845 Ginny Ave.

"I have heard Lincoln school administrators and teachers say they sometimes overreact to parents critical of certain programs, for example, sex and drug education, even when the educators thinks these programs are positive," he said, expressing concern about the resulting negative effect on educational opportunities.

"It appears," Poley said, "that Lincoln parents are presently concerned about teacher-student ratios, inconvenient scheduling of some parent-teacher conferences, teachers insensitive to cultural backgrounds different from their own, sex-role stereotyping, inadequate counseling in some schools," and unmeaningful systems to evaluate their children's progress.

Poley cited the recent controversy over open campus, allowing high school students to leave school grounds for lunch, as "an example of frustration that may have started small but grew into a critical situation."

Such "flare-ups could be prevented," he said, if the board regularly sought parents' and students' attitudes first, publicly and privately.

Poley said he'd rather see parents encouraged to speak openly with the board at each meeting, rather than a large crowd testifying on an emotional issue.

"I favor making school board meetings more open," he said, "holding as many as possible in the evening hours and doing away with the normally required written request to address the board.

"This is not required by the Legislature in open committee sessions, nor by many other local governmental bodies. It doesn't appear necessary to adhere to this requirement for Board of Education meetings," he said.

Jackson To Head Geis Campaign

Don Geis, candidate for the Airport Authority, has named James Jackson to head his campaign to unseat one of the incumbents on the board.

Jackson, 1835 Morningside Dr., is director of the State Department of Insurance.

Ted Dewey, 7641 Leighton, president of Midwest Financial Management Corp., has been named treasurer.

Geis, 40, is a financial counsellor. He is married and is the father of three children.

Two terms expire on the Airport Authority board this spring. Both incumbents, Richard Joyce and Richard Chapin, are seeking re-election.

Composer Honored

New York (UPI) — Composer Aaron Copland received the Creative Arts Award Commission's award for notable achievement to the arts in general.

Court Plans To Hear Arguments On Bargaining Rights Election

The State Court of Industrial Relations has slated arguments in a case involving instructors at the two Central Nebraska Technical Community College campuses for 3 p.m., April 18.

The Central Nebraska Education Association is seeking an election to gain exclusive bargaining rights for 78 instructors at the Hastings campus and 33 at the Columbus campus.

The court also has scheduled a pre-trial conference in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) case seeking representation elections for employes of the Nebraska Educational Television Commission.

The conference is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m., April 18.

Renounced

Guru Maharaj Ji, 17, the Indian religious leader who was last reported living in a mansion in Malibu, Calif., with his American wife, was renounced Tuesday by his mother. She accused her son of being a playboy instead of a holy man. The guru's mother, known as Shri Mataji (holy mother), said her son, "under the instigation of certain bad elements in the United States Divine Light Mission, has continuously disrespected my will by adopting a despicable, non-spiritual way of life."

Olympic Team's Former Doctor To Be In Lincoln

A former all American and senior physician for the U.S. olympic teams, Dr. Daniel F. Hanley of Brunswick, Maine, will be one of the speakers for the Nebraska Medical Association's 107th annual meeting April 27-30.

Hanley, now a college physician at Bowdoin College, will speak April 29 on "olympic athletes, diet, pep pills." His presentation will be followed by a two and one-half four symposium.

Moderators for the program will be Dr. Arnold E. Schaefer, director of the Swanson Center for Nutrition Inc., Omaha, and Dr. Robert D. Sidner, Kearney.

Some 375 physicians are expected to attend the four-day session, which will be held at the Lincoln Hilton.

Daughter Unhurt

Ubeda, Spain (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's only child, Carmen Franco Martinez Bordiu, escaped unhurt from a train accident which injured 50 persons, Spanish news agency reports said.

Five City Jail Prisoners Assault 2 Other Inmates

Five prisoners beat up two other prisoners in the City Jail Monday night because they believed the two had told police about drugs in the jail, police said Tuesday.

A recent shakedown by police in the jail netted marijuana and pills from three prisoners.

One of the two prisoners, Carl Hegwood, 19, was treated at Lincoln General Hospital and returned to jail. The other prisoner, Dan Curnyn, did not require hospital treatment.

While police were interviewing prisoners in connection with the incident a fire was set in a mattress in the cellblock, police said. Damage was estimated at $5.

100 High-Income Residents Paid No 1973 Income Taxes

By The Associated Press

No income taxes were paid by 100 Nebraskans who earned more than $100,000 in 1973, according to figures from the State Revenue Department.

The 100 who paid no state income taxes were among 1,490 persons with adjusted gross incomes of more than $100,000.

Gary Chunka, assistant tax commissioner, said he did not know why no taxes were paid by the 100 individuals, but he said such returns would have been closely checked.

While some of Nebraska's wealthiest citizens avoided paying any 1973 income taxes, others in the same category were paying a great deal. The average taxpayer with an income over $100,000 paid $5,000 to the state.

The 1,490 returns from those earning more than $100,000 represented only 0.2% of the state's taxpayers, but they paid nearly 7% of the state's income tax revenues.

The Revenue Department figures also show that the 9% of 1973 taxpayers earning more than $20,000 paid 47% of the income tax revenues.

Kissack Named To Aeronautics Commission Job

John Kissack of Scottsbluff was appointed to the State Aeronautics Commission Tuesday, Gov. J. James Exon announced.

Kissack succeeds Chet Fliesbach, also of Scottsbluff, who had served on the commission for 20 years.

Kissack, former director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, is a private pilot and has long been interested in aeronautics, Exon said.

Health Services Discussion Set

A discussion of local public health services for youth will be featured during an information-sharing session to be held at 2:30 p.m., April 16, in the Public Schools Administration Building.

Sponsored by the Youth Service System coordinating team, the program is the fifth in a series.

Geneva Officials: Chapel Project May Start Soon

Officials at the Youth Development Center in Geneva hope to get work started soon on an interdenominational chapel.

Don Best, center director, said Tuesday a meeting has been scheduled for this Saturday to discuss the chapel project with the architects and contractors. Three firms have offered proposals.

So far, Best said, approximately $35,000 has been raised through a non-profit organization for construction of a chapel to seat 70 to 75 girls.

"We hope we can begin construction this spring," Best said.

The chapel will have a steel frame with wood siding and a brick or stone front. Contractors have indicated the building can be completed within 120 days, Best said.

One Of 4 Voters Expected Out For Primary

If Tuesday's primary election repeats history, only 28% of Lincoln's registered voters are going to select which political hopefuls will move on to the general election.

That grim picture of a light voter turnout was painted by Election Commissioner Bill Davidson, who estimated that only about 21,600 of Lincoln's 77,141 registered voters will show up at the polls Tuesday.

At stake in the primary is who will run for the mayor's job and four City Council seats. Six candidates for the School Board and three Airport Authority candidates are assured of being nominated.

In the primary race, electors will whittle down 15 council contenders to eight and three mayoral hopefuls to two. In the May 6 general election, four council members, the mayor, three School Board members and two Airport Authority members will be put into office.

Three incumbent councilmen are seeking a second term of office, while the fourth whose term expires in May, Helen Boosalis, is abandoning her job of 16 years in an attempt to unseat Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf.

As a result, at least one new lawmaker will be elected to the seven-member council in May.

Schwartzkopf is seeking his third term as the city's chief executive.

Although Mrs. Boosalis has waged four successful council campaigns, this marks her first attempt to win the mayor's position..

A political newcomer, Jo Bragg, also is campaigning for the mayor's job. She has served on the city's Human Rights Commission.

Voters in the city's 168 precincts again will cast their ballots on the "votomatic," a punch card machine. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Davidson said history has shown voters don't turn out for primary elections.

In the last city race for council two years ago, 19,949 people voted, while the 1971 election 21,909 people voted. Four council terms and mayor's term expired four years ago, possibly accounting for the larger voter turnout.

Although city officials are elected on a nonpartisan basis, records show that registered Republicans and registered Democrats are running neck and neck in the city. There are 39,045 Democrats, 39,014 Republicans and 5,032 registered independents.

Boosalis Pledges Formal Governmental Cooperation

The mayor's office should take the lead in stretching the eroding tax dollar by initiating formalized cooperation among local governmental units, said mayoral candidate Helen Boosalis.

As mayor, the council president said she would form a group composed of representatives from the school district, Airport Authority, Housing Authority, Natural Resources District, Railroad Transportation Safety District and state, county and city governments.

The group could support the joint use of equipment, personnel and services, Mrs. Boosalis said.

She said surplus property of one public agency possibly could be of use to another.

Although there has been cooperation in the past, she said an attempt must be made to formalize those efforts "to insure such agreements are the rule and not the fortunate exception."

Bragg Asks 2 Opponents For Debate

Mayoral candidate Jo Bragg has invited opponents Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf and City Council President Helen Boosalis "to debate the issues" this weekend.

Mrs. Bragg said she has rented the Unitarian Church, 6300 A St., for a campaign barbecue Saturday from noon to 10 p.m., and asked her opponents to debate at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Bagg said "if the time is inconvenient for my opponents I will be glad to meet them at a time and place of their choosing."

Additional campaign officers were named, including Larry Coffee, assistant treasurer; Marilyn Johnson and Anna Mosby, co-chairpersons of volunteer activities; Monroe Usher Jr., chairman of canvassers, and Ms. Jan Healey and William Harding, campaign coordinators.

Mayor For Housing Plan

The Lincoln Housing Authority's plans to acquire 40 houses for rehabilitation garnered the support of Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf Tuesday, who is seeking re-election.

Schwartzkopf said the project will benefit neighborhood preservation and is a "positive step" toward maintaining the city's housing.

The Housing Authority's program, Schwartzkopf said, is just one of several good programs now under way by the authority.

Tiwald For Aid, But Is Opposed To 'Give-Aways'

Steve Tiwald, candidate for City Council, says he supports human service programs, but opposes "give-away" programs.

He classified human service programs as those for the blind, disabled, some of the aged, families with dependent children and the mentally retarded.

Those type of services, he maintained, are designed "to assist these individuals so that they may return to active community participation."

However, he said everyone who is able-bodied should work and thus be an active contributor to the community.

Give-away programs, he claimed are an "affront" to others who are working, and cause a "loss of dignity and self-esteem for the recipient."

He said the city government should play a role in seeing there are enough jobs availble.

Kurtenbach Wants To Take From Rich To Give To Poor

City Council candidate Ron Kurtenbach said he favors the implementation of a progressive tax system whereby those who are able to pay taxes fork over more money than those who cannot.

Kurtenbach said Tuesday he wants the tax structure set up so that it "would virtually confiscate the wealth of the well-to-do."

That money is gained by wealthy people and corporations who, he claimed, exploit low and middle income people.

The tax structure should redistribute the wealth by taking profits and other income from the wealthy and giving it to the people. He opposes the existing city sales tax.

The radical change in the tax structure would benefit lower and middle income people, Kurtenbach said.

Bus System Disappoints Muggy

City Council candidate Bob Muggy said Tuesday he is surprised and disappointed that better bus service and shelters have not been provided in Lincoln.

Muggy contended that additional service was promised four years ago when he was a member of the Mayor's Bus Committee studying the purchase of the private bus line by the city.

Additional bus service would help solve parking problems, he said.

Sikyta Praises Tabitha's Plans

City Councilman Bob Sikyta praised the Tabitha New Community now being built near 27th and Fletcher Ave. as being one of the "best advertisements" for Lincoln nationally.

Sikyta, who is seeking reelection to the council, was on the council when the project received city approval.

Defense Shelter To Be Converted?

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County Board may throw out the water and crackers and turn a civil defense supply shelter into a storeroom for election equipment.

"A state law says we have to have a civil defense unit, but no law says we have to have water and crackers," Commissioner Bruce Hamilton said as the board discussed the Irvingdale shelter during their staff meeting Tuesday morning.

Formerly a water reservoir, the structure on Irvingdale Park now houses about 5% of the food and water supplies for the county's civil defense emergency program, a precaution in case of nuclear attack.

The county board decided to look into the feasibility of housing election equipment in the shelter and disposing of emergency supplies after Election Commissioner Bill Davidson requested approval to lease a privately-owned building for equipment storage. The election equipment is now stored at the city police garage.

The prospect of disposing of the emergency supplies goes beyond just the need for additional storage area. What the board is talking about is a "basic commitment to change civil defense," Personnel Manager Wayne Hart told the board.

Though personally opposed to the idea of destroying the emergency supplies, Civil Defense Director George Drake said he will do whatever the board decides is best.

"The program (of shelters and emergency food in case of nuclear attack) is just as vital and current now as it was when it was first started," Drake said.

In other building discussions, the county board gave new life to the old discussion about finding enough space in the County-City Building for a second municipal court room.

The board authorized Chairman Jan Gauger to pursue the possibility of leasing space in a new building at 47th and Baldwin Sts. for a driver licensing facility.

When the licensing office is moved from its current space in the County-City Building, the additional space coupled with some other office shuffling will make room for a second courtroom.

Consideration of a site on Antelope Park for the licensing office was recently dropped because of possible legal problems and citizen complaints over the use of park land for other purposes than a park.

In conjunction with the 48th and Baldwin location, the county will also ask the city to pave a city-owned lot on the same corner to be used for overflow parking.

In other action at the afternoon regular board meeting, chairman Gauger appointed Hamilton and Robert Colin to the newly-formed City-County Building Commission.

Use Of County Equipment Discussed

A public defender asked the Lancaster County Board to change proposed personnel rules so that county-paid attorneys may continue to use county secretaries and county-owned equipment for their private practices.

For more than three hours during a public hearing Tuesday evening, county employes recommended changes to the 55 pages of proposed personnel rules.

The hearing was attended by an overflow crowd of more than 100 people.

Changes in language, overtime and holiday compensation rules, sick leave, funeral leave and injury leave were among the suggestions by employes for the rules which will affect about 650 county employes.

But the proposed change which seemed to surprise the County Commissioners most came from Toney Redman of the public defender's office.

The proposed rules prohibit county employes from engaging in outside business activities while on duty and outlaws the use of government property for any but "government or community functions."

Many public defenders do use county secretaries and thus county equipment like typewriters for their outside, part-time law practices, according to Redman.

The attorneys themselves, like elected officials and their chief deputies, are exempted from the personnel rules. Secretaries are not.

Though secretaries may do private work for attorneys during their normal work hours, they are normally compensated by the attorneys, Redman said.

"We are able to justify our low salaries by the fact that we are able to maintain our own private practices," he said.

Experienced private attorneys are able to earn at least $25,000 to $30,000, while county-employed lawyers earn about half that much, he said.

Prohibiting county-paid attorneys from using the county secretaries and county equipment would force the lawyers to set up offices outside the building. And this would mean time away from their government jobs by running back and forth from the private office, Redman said.

The entire discussion prompted Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, an attorney, to say, "I thought the controversy was whether these attorneys should even have a private practice at all. I think I do object strongly to the use of government offices and government employes."

And Commissioner Robert Colin merely shook his head and said, "I guess all I can say is I wasted all those years learning the electrical business. I should have been a lawyer."

Several county department agency heads asked that a section on mandatory retirement age be removed. After the age of 68 a county employe can be continued on a year to year basis with approval of the county board, under the proposed rules.

No Change For Bypass Urged

Stick to the old route. That is the advice of the State Roads Department in a recent report comparing the original west bypass route with an alternate route suggested by County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton.

The bypass route as originally proposed and approved by both the city and county, "will serve the traveling public the best, cause the least disruption to all segments of the public and will cause the least change in the essential character of the land through which it passes," according to the recently released report prepared by the State Department of Roads.

The two routes compared in the study were:

—East line (original bypass proposal) along the west edge of Wilderness Park would mean taking about six acres of the western edge of the park.

—West Line (proposed by Hamilton) would go just to the west of the Regional Center and between the Center and the east edge of Pioneer Park.

Both lines will be disruptive, but the east line will disrupt 200 feet of park land while the west line would disrupt "an entire neighborhood of homes, a school district, a number of businesses, and the inmates of the Regional Center," according to the report.

By bisecting the Yankee Hill School district the west line would cut off about one-third of the school enrollment while the east line would only affect about 10% of the school enrollment, according to the report.

In addition, the west line would require the removal of about ½ mile of pine trees along West Van Dorn, trees that "frame" the entrance to Pioneers Park, the report stated.

The west line would also be near three cemeteries (Pleasant Hill, Haines Branch and Van Dorn) with a total of more than 750 graves, the report pointed out.

Because the east line is much closer to the core area of Lincoln, the report projected that 5,000 more cars per day would use it than would use the west line.

Wider Input Base Backed By Poley

Jeffrey M. Poley, candidate for the Lincoln Board of Education, said Tuesday he agrees with Jo Ann Maxey that the schools must seek a wider base of opinion to increase parent and student input.

Mrs. Maxey, 2800 S, is also a board candidate in the spring city elections.

Poley said parents and children shouldn't be asked to conform to school goals and policies without say-so on their adoption. Board members, administrators and teachers have a responsibility to obtain opinions from all sectors in the community, he said.

Otherwise, there is a danger of over-responsiveness to vocal minorities, said Poley, 4845 Ginny Ave.

"I have heard Lincoln school administrators and teachers say they sometimes overreact to parents critical of certain programs, for example, sex and drug education, even when the educators thinks these programs are positive," he said, expressing concern about the resulting negative effect on educational opportunities.

"It appears," Poley said, "that Lincoln parents are presently concerned about teacher-student ratios, inconvenient scheduling of some parent-teacher conferences, teachers insensitive to cultural backgrounds different from their own, sex-role stereotyping, inadequate counseling in some schools," and unmeaningful systems to evaluate their children's progress.

Poley cited the recent controversy over open campus, allowing high school students to leave school grounds for lunch, as "an example of frustration that may have started small but grew into a critical situation."

Such "flare-ups could be prevented," he said, if the board regularly sought parents' and students' attitudes first, publicly and privately.

Poley said he'd rather see parents encouraged to speak openly with the board at each meeting, rather than a large crowd testifying on an emotional issue.

"I favor making school board meetings more open," he said, "holding as many as possible in the evening hours and doing away with the normally required written request to address the board.

"This is not required by the Legislature in open committee sessions, nor by many other local governmental bodies. It doesn't appear necessary to adhere to this requirement for Board of Education meetings," he said.

Jackson To Head Geis Campaign

Don Geis, candidate for the Airport Authority, has named James Jackson to head his campaign to unseat one of the incumbents on the board.

Jackson, 1835 Morningside Dr., is director of the State Department of Insurance.

Ted Dewey, 7641 Leighton, president of Midwest Financial Management Corp., has been named treasurer.

Geis, 40, is a financial counsellor. He is married and is the father of three children.

Two terms expire on the Airport Authority board this spring. Both incumbents, Richard Joyce and Richard Chapin, are seeking re-election.

Composer Honored

New York (UPI) — Composer Aaron Copland received the Creative Arts Award Commission's award for notable achievement to the arts in general.

Court Plans To Hear Arguments On Bargaining Rights Election

The State Court of Industrial Relations has slated arguments in a case involving instructors at the two Central Nebraska Technical Community College campuses for 3 p.m., April 18.

The Central Nebraska Education Association is seeking an election to gain exclusive bargaining rights for 78 instructors at the Hastings campus and 33 at the Columbus campus.

The court also has scheduled a pre-trial conference in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) case seeking representation elections for employes of the Nebraska Educational Television Commission.

The conference is scheduled to begin at 1.30 p.m., April 18.

Guru Maharaj Ji, 17, the Indian religious leader who was last reported living in a mansion in Malibu, Calif., with his American wife, was renounced Tuesday by his mother. She accused her son of being a playboy instead of a holy man. The guru's mother, known as Shri Mataji (holy mother), said her son, "under the instigation of certain bad elements in the United States Divine Light Mission, has continuously disrespected my will by adopting a despicable, non-spiritual way of life."

Olympic Team's Former Doctor To Be In Lincoln

A former all American and senior physician for the U.S. olympic teams, Dr. Daniel F. Hanley of Brunswick, Maine, will be one of the speakers for the Nebraska Medical Association's 107th annual meeting April 27-30.

Hanley, now a college physician at Bowdoin College, will speak April 29 on "olympic athletes, diet, pep pills." His presentation will be followed by a two and one-half four symposium.

Moderators for the program will be Dr. Arnold E. Schaefer, director of the Swanson Center for Nutrition Inc., Omaha, and Dr. Robert D. Sidner, Kearney.

Some 375 physicians are expected to attend the four-day session, which will be held at the Lincoln Hilton.

Five City Jail Prisoners Assault 2 Other Inmates

Five prisoners beat up two other prisoners in the City Jail Monday night because they believed the two had told police about drugs in the jail, police said Tuesday.

A recent shakedown by police in the jail netted marijuana and pills from three prisoners.

One of the two prisoners, Carl Hegwood, 19, was treated at Lincoln General Hospital and returned to jail. The other prisoner, Dan Curnyn, did not require hospital treatment.

While police were interviewing prisoners in connection with the incident a fire was set in a mattress in the cellblock, police said. Damage was estimated at $5.

100 High-Income Residents Paid No 1973 Income Taxes

By The Associated Press

No income taxes were paid by 100 Nebraskans who earned more than $100,000 in 1973, according to figures from the State Revenue Department.

The 100 who paid no state income taxes were among 1,490 persons with adjusted gross incomes of more than $100,000.

Gary Chunka, assistant tax commissioner, said he did not know why no taxes were paid by the 100 individuals, but he said such returns would have been closely checked.

While some of Nebraska's wealthiest citizens avoided paying any 1973 income taxes, others in the same category were paying a great deal. The average taxpayer with an income over $100,000 paid $5,000 to the state.

The 1,490 returns from those earning more than $100,000 represented only 0.2% of the state's taxpayers, but they paid nearly 7% of the state's income tax revenues.

The Revenue Department figures also show that the 9% of 1973 taxpayers earning more than $20,000 paid 47% of the income tax revenues.

Kissack Named To Aeronautics Commission Job

John Kissack of Scottsbluff was appointed to the State Aeronautics Commission Tuesday, Gov. J. James Exon announced.

Kissack succeeds Chet Fluesbach, also of Scottsbluff, who had served on the commission for 20 years.

Kissack, former director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, is a private pilot and has long been interested in aeronautics, Exon said.

Sponsored by the Youth Service System coordinating team, the program is the fifth in a series.

Geneva Officials: Chapel Project May Start Soon

Officials at the Youth Development Center in Geneva hope to get work started soon on an interdenominational chapel.

Don Best, center director, said Tuesday a meeting has been scheduled for this Saturday to discuss the chapel project with the architects and contractors. Three firms have offered proposals.

So far, Best said, approximately $35,000 has been raised through a non-profit organization for construction of a chapel to seat 70 to 75 girls.

"We hope we can begin construction this spring," Best said

The chapel will have a steel frame with wood siding and a brick or stone front. Contractors have indicated the building can be completed within 120 days, Best said.

Artificial Hip Joints Improving

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For many years I have suffered from a degenerative arthritic hip joint.

Recently I have been thinking of a total hip replacement. I am 74 and my doctor feels my age would not be objectionable for such an operation.

However the possibility of an infection during the operation or after exists. And should an infection occur, I understand that I would then have no hip joint at all and would have to spend the rest of my days in a wheelchair. I would appreciate your comments.—W.S.

The risk of infection exists with any operation, but you are overstating the case when you imply that any infection is going to result in a disaster.

Both the effectiveness of artificial hip joints and the safety of implanting them have been steadily improving and are still being improved. If I were you — if it were my hip in trouble — I would figure the risk of a disastrous infection being very small indeed.

I have known people who deferred hip surgery for one reason or another until they reached the stage of being virtually incapacitated. Then they had it done — and they are walking with ease today.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is once a year too often for a person to have the barium test (upper and lower) — with so many enemas and X-raying?

Also, is there any connection between a fistula and a polyp? Can one encourage the other?—Mrs. K.E.

The barium test is a method which enables the physician to obtain good pictures (X-ray or fluoroscope) of the stomach or of the colon. The frequency of such tests would depend on just what the physician is looking for and the persistence of your symptoms.

There is no connection between a fistula and a polyp. The former is an abnormal passage in the tissues. A polyp is a protruding growth from a mucous membrane.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am troubled with bursitis and I guess gout, too. My uric acid level must be high. What I'd like to know is what foods contain purines?—Mrs. A.B.

Seems to me you're doing a powerful lot of guessing and supposing.

In the first place bursitis is is not necessarily caused by gout, although this can be the case. Bursitis — which is a painful inflammation of the bursa sac in arm and leg joints — can be brought on by injury, chronic infection, or other causes. So uric acid levels may not be a factor at all.

Rather than doing any further guesswork, why not have your blood checked for uric acid? If it is high, then a non-purine diet would be in order — or better still, one of the drugs used for gout.

Purine foods are chiefly organ meats, such as sweetbread, liver, kidney, fish roe, and also certsain vegetables such as peas, beans and asparagus.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Your diet has a good deal to do with gall bladder allergies and gallstones, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

If you have gallstones, your physician can give you a list of foods suitable for you, after he finds out what foods you can tolerate.

This means your own experience enters into the selection of foods you can eat. There is no general list of foods applicable to persons with gallstone problems.

What physicians may say generally, is that you should avoid too many fatty foods, especially fried foods, as well as too much roughage in fruits and vegetables.

If your physician determines that your gall bladder must be removed, you must be exceedingly careful with your diet.

Sometimes gall bladder symptoms are simply a digestive upset. A gall bladder problem must be diagnosed by your own physician.

Defense Shelter To Be Converted?

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County Board may throw out the water and crackers and turn a civil defense supply shelter into a storeroom for election equipment.

"A state law says we have to have a civil defense unit, but no law says we have to have water and crackers," Commissioner Bruce Hamilton said as the board discussed the Irvingdale shelter during their staff meeting Tuesday morning.

Formerly a water reservoir, the structure on Irvingdale Park now houses about 5% of the food and water supplies for the county's civil defense emergency program, a precaution in case of nuclear attack.

The county board decided to look into the feasibility of housing election equipment in the shelter and disposing of emergency supplies after Election Commissioner Bill Davidson requested approval to lease a privately-owned building for equipment storage. The election equipment is now stored at the city police garage.

The prospect of disposing of the emergency supplies goes beyond just the need for additional storage area. What the board is talking about is a "basic commitment to change civil defense," Personnel Manager Wayne Hart told the board.

Though personally opposed to the idea of destroying the emergency supplies, Civil Defense Director George Drake said he will do whatever the board decides is best.

"The program (of shelters and emergency food in case of nuclear attack) is just as vital and current now as it was when it was first started," Drake said.

In other building discussions, the county board gave new life to the old discussion about finding enough space in the County-City Building for a second municipal court room.

The board authorized Chairman Jan Gauger to pursue the possibility of leasing space in a new building at 47th and Baldwin Sts. for a driver licensing facility.

When the licensing office is moved from its current space in the County-City Building, the additional space coupled with some other office shuffling will make room for a second courtroom.

Consideration of a site on Antelope Park for the licensing office was recently dropped because of possible legal problems and citizen complaints over the use of park land for other purposes than a park.

In conjunction with the 48th and Baldwin location, the county will also ask the city to pave a city-owned lot on the same corner to be used for overflow parking.

In other action at the afternoon regular board meeting, chairman Gauger appointed Hamilton and Robert Colin to the newly-formed City-County Building Commission.

Use Of County Equipment Discussed

A public defender asked the Lancaster County Board to change proposed personnel rules so that county-paid attorneys may continue to use county secretaries and county-owned equipment for their private practices.

For more than three hours during a public hearing Tuesday evening, county employes recommended changes to the 55 pages of proposed personnel rules.

The hearing was attended by an overflow crowd of more than 100 people.

Changes in language, overtime and holiday compensation rules, sick leave, funeral leave and injury leave were among the suggestions by employes for the rules which will affect about 650 county employes.

But the proposed change which seemed to surprise the County Commissioners most came from Toney Redman of the public defender's office.

The proposed rules prohibit county employes from engaging in outside business activities while on duty and outlaws the use of government property for any but "government or community functions."

Many public defenders do use county secretaries and thus county equipment like typewriters for their outside, part-time law practices, according to Redman.

The attorneys themselves, like elected officials and their chief deputies, are exempted from the personnel rules. Secretaries are not.

Though secretaries may do private work for attorneys during their normal work hours, they are normally compensated by the attorneys, Redman said.

"We are able to justify our low salaries by the fact that we are able to maintain our own private practices," he said.

Experienced private attorneys are able to earn at least $25,000 to $30,000, while county-employed lawyers earn about half that much, he said.

Prohibiting county-paid attorneys from using the county secretaries and county equipment would force the lawyers to set up offices outside the building. And this would mean time away from their government jobs by running back and forth from the private office, Redman said.

The entire discussion prompted Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, an attorney, to say, "I thought the controversy was whether these attorneys should even have a private practice at all. I think I do object strongly to the use of government offices and government employes."

And Commissioner Robert Colin merely shook his head and said, "I guess all I can say is I wasted all those years learning the electrical business. I should have been a lawyer."

Several county department agency heads asked that a section on mandatory retirement age be removed. After the age of 68 a county employe can be continued on a year to year basis with approval of the county board, under the proposed rules.

No Change For Bypass Urged

Stick to the old route. That is the advice of the State Roads Department in a recent report comparing the original west bypass route with an alternate route suggested by County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton.

The bypass route as originally proposed and approved by both the city and county, "will serve the traveling public the best, cause the least disruption to all segments of the public and will cause the least change in the essential character of the land through which it passes," according to the recently released report prepared by the State Department of Roads.

The two routes compared in the study were:

—East line (original bypass proposal) along the west edge of Wilderness Park would mean taking about six acres of the western edge of the park.

—West Line (proposed by Hamilton) would go just to the west of the Regional Center and between the Center and the east edge of Pioneer Park.

Both lines will be disruptive, but the east line will disrupt 200 feet of park land while the west line would disrupt "an entire neighborhood of homes, a school district, a number of businesses, and the inmates of the Regional Center," according to the report.

By bisecting the Yankee Hill School district the west line would cut off about one-third of the school enrollment while the east line would only affect about 10% of the school enrollment, according to the report.

In addition, the west line would require the removal of about ½ mile of pine trees along West Van Dorn, trees that "frame" the entrance to Pioneers Park, the report stated.

The west line would also be near three cemeteries (Pleasant Hill, Haines Branch and Van Dorn) with a total of more than 750 graves, the report pointed out.

Because the east line is much closer to the core area of Lincoln, the report projected that 5,000 more cars per day would use it than would use the west line.

Money, Time Needs Cited To Expand Physical Rehab

Eighteen months and 30 to 50 thousand dollars is what it will take to get an expanded physical rehabilitation program ready for implementation at the Madonna Professional Care Center, according to Bill Joern, executive director of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council.

Requests for the necessary program development funding will probably "go to foundations," Joern told members of the Lancaster County Health Planning Council Tuesday.

The funding will cover expenses involved in obtaining a program coordinator and supportive services staff.

It will also provide a travel allowance which will permit staff members to view similar rehabilitative operations elsewhere in the country.

At the present time, Joern and Sister Phyllis Hunhoff, Madonna executive director, are putting the finishing touches on the initial project report.

According to Sister Phyllis, the program development phase will begin as soon as funding is received.

When the project is implemented, it will serve to create at Madonna a much-needed "regional rehabilitation center oriented towards physical disabilities," Joern said.

Project planners anticipate that the center will provide a "multi-disciplinary approach" to rehabilitation, he continued.

Expertise in a variety of areas will be provided by a professional staff which will, in part, include a physician consultant, a clinical psychologist, a speech and hearing therapist, a dietician and a chaplain.

AMPLIFIER?

A hearing aid is basically a simple amplifier. Its function is to make sound louder, but it is a complicated and delicate instrument. A noted ear doctor said "If you could see the inside of a hering aid and know something of its manufacture, you would have a great respect for (it)."

MAICO's background as the pioneer manufacturer of hearing test equipment for doctors, audiologists, hospitals and others made the company a natural to manufacture hearing aids, and has enabled them to offer the finest of hearing help to hundreds of thousands of people since 1937.

Call or write me for a great leaflet showing MAICO's complete line of hearing instruments. Located at 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln. Phone 432-8597.

Artificial Hip Joints Improving

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For many years I have suffered from a degenerative arthritic hip joint.

Recently I have been thinking of a total hip replacement. I am 74 and my doctor feels my age would not be objectionable for such an operation.

However the possibility of an infection during the operation or after exists. And should an infection occur, I understand that I would then have no hip joint at all and would have to spend the rest of my days in a wheelchair. I would appreciate your comments.—W.S.

The risk of infection exists with any operation, but you are overstating the case when you imply that any infection is going to result in a disaster

Both the effectiveness of artificial hip joints and the safety of implanting them have been steadily improving and are still being improved If I were you — if it were my hip in trouble — I would figure the risk of a disastrous infection being very small indeed

I have known people who deferred hip surgery for one reason or another until they reached the stage of being virtually incapacitated Then they had it done — and they are walking with ease today

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is once a year too often for a person to have the barium test (upper and lower) — with so many enemas and X-raying?

Also, is there any connection between a fistula and a polyp? Can one encourage the other?—Mrs. K.E.

The barium test is a method which enables the physician to obtain good pictures (X-ray or fluoroscope) of the stomach or of the colon The frequency of such tests would depend on just what the physician is looking for and the persistence of your symptoms

There is no connection between a fistula and a polyp The former is an abnormal passage in the tissues A polyp is a protruding growth from a mucous membrane.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am troubled with bursitis and I guess gout, too. My uric acid level must be high What I'd like to know is what foods contain purines?—Mrs. A B

Seems to me you're doing a powerful lot of guessing and supposing

In the first place bursitis is is not necessarily caused by gout, although this can be the case Bursitis — which is a painful inflammation of the bursa sac in arm and leg joints — can be brought on by injury, chronic infection, or other causes So uric acid levels may not be a factor at all

Rather than doing any further guesswork, why not have your blood checked for uric acid? If it is high, then a non-purine diet would be in order — or better still, one of the drugs used for gout

Purine foods are chiefly organ meats, such as sweetbread, liver, kidney, fish roe, and also certain vegetables such as peas, beans and asparagus

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Your diet has a good deal to do with gall bladder allergies and gallstones according to the Nebraska Medical Association

If you have gallstones, your physician can give you a list of foods suitable for you, after he finds out what foods you can tolerate

This means your own experience enters into the selection of foods you can eat There is no general list of foods applicable to persons with gallstone problems

What physicians may say generally, is that you should avoid too many fatty foods especially fried foods, as well as too much roughage in fruits and vegetables

If your physician determines that your gall bladder must be removed, you must be exceedingly careful with your diet

Money, Time Needs Cited To Expand Physical Rehab

Eighteen months and 30 to 50 thousand dollars is what it will take to get an expanded physical rehabilitation program ready for implementation at the Madonna Professional Care Center, according to Bill Joern, executive director of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council.

Requests for the necessary program development funding will probably "go to foundations," Joern told members of the Lancaster County Health Planning Council Tuesday.

The funding will cover expenses involved in obtaining a program coordinator and supportive services staff.

It will also provide a travel allowance which will permit staff members to view similar rehabilitative operations elsewhere in the country.

At the present time, Joern and Sister Phyllis Hunhoff, Madonna executive director, are putting the finishing touches on the initial project report.

According to Sister Phyllis, the program development phase will begin as soon as funding is received.

When the project is implemented, it will serve to create at Madonna a much-needed "regional rehabilitation center oriented towards physical disabilities," Joern said.

Project planners anticipate that the center will provide a "multi-disciplinary approach" to rehabilitation, he continued.

Expertise in a variety of areas will be provided by a professional staff which will, in part, include a physician consultant, a clinical psychologist, a speech and hearing therapist, a dietician and a chaplain.

School Absenteeism
. . . Headache For Administrators

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"There's some evidence," Supt. John Prasch says, "that parents put a lesser value on attendance than they did in the past, and we'd like to turn this around."

While absenteeism isn't a serious problem or on the increase in the Lincoln Public Schools, Prasch said he sees a "gradual deterioration of the value" of attendance.

A normal absentee rate should be no more than 5%, according to the National Association of Secondary School Principals, but in some urgan areas the rate now exceeds 30%.

Lincoln's rate generally stands at 5% to 7%, according to Prasch and other school officials who keep track. Nevertheless, "We decided last spring to try to improve our absence rates at the secondary level," Prasch said. There is "no significant problem at the elementary level."

High School Problem

Principals agree that absenteeism is a problem at all four public high schools.

"Generally, we think we've contributed" to that problem by offering, for example, more out-of-school experiences and individualized instruction, which Prasch said "may have tended to give kids the impression that attendance of itself is not really important.

"By contrast, everyone agrees — and we would support the notion — that success in school and attendance go hand in hand," he said. Conversely, there is a "relationship between poor attendance and poor achievement."

Schools this year have been assessing attendance procedures, and secondary principals have been comparing methods in each building to see how attendance rates have been affected.

"We're most interested in what we might have done internally" to destroy any interest in school, Prasch said.

Situation Snowballs

For example, absenteeism "may frequently be related to a kid getting himself into a situation where it's difficult to attend" after he misses numerous classes and fears he's too far behind in his work. Prasch said the "immediate tcacher response to tighten up might boomerang, because it forces a kid into an impossible situation."

"We are looking toward programming this" by computer, Prasch said, "so we can get better information back to parents" more quickly and accurately.

Meanwhile, "We know that industry has problems with absences," that could be traced to students' school attendance.

Polls since 1973 by the National Association of Secondary School Principals show absesnteeism is the "most perplexing student problem," outranking discipline by 2-1.

Strong Rules Work

Schools the association cited for successfully curbing absenteeism have one mutual approach — strong, clear, well publicized and consistently enforced policies.

Among the successful solutions, according to "Education U.S.A.," are transferring chronic truants to alternative programs, exempting students with good attendance from final exams, withholding course credit for excessive absences, enlisting volunteers to telephone parents and mailing attendance reports home regularly.

A Connecticut study suggests teachers contact parents rather than counselors or principals when attendance begins to create problems; special events be scheduled on Mondays and Fridays to encourage attendance; educational alternatives be expanded as well as counseling for the chronically absent; and students be made aware that employers will contact schools for attendance data.

Not Disciplinary

Student Services Director Eldon A. Heskett said in the high schools, "the approach to the problem has always been a counseling concern, and not a disciplinary concern," but no one has come up with the best approach.

Heskett said combating absenteeism will require "a total effort by the classroom teacher, counselor and parents," community agencies and businesses, but "parents have a real primary responsibility."

Sometimes, he said, parental "love blinds discipline," and while programs are available for parents to develop skills, too often they "don't go to the source of help until there's a crisis."

Moreover, "I don't accept this idea that kids might have, saying there's nothing at school," Heskett said. He noted a broad curriculum with alternative programs offered through flexible scheduling. Still, "the classroom situation has to be attractive to students."

Turnaround Hoped

While the "situation is not much more encouraging this year than it was last year," Heskett said, "we're going to see a turn. I think the economic situation is going to dictate that," as the labor market sets higher education standards.

Short of that, the No. 1 topic among principals the past year has been absenteeism. While most of the students are responsible and disciplined, Bill Bogar at Lincoln High said the attitude, "I want to do what I'd like to do, and do it now," is significantly reinforced by the youth culture.

Those students don't understand they "are really the losers," not the school, Bogar said. A student "may not feel the loss til he's 25."

Southeast Principal Wesley Lauterbach said "We are having to work harder" than in the past to curb absenteeism, although "Most of the time, we're able to head it off primarily through keeping parents informed."

Records Incomplete

All the principals agree they must continue to emphasize attendance. Northeast's Harold Dietrich said, however, school records do "not reflect the attendance problem of single- and double-period absences," which have increased the past two years in all schools.

Some teachers win almost perfect attendance, but others' classes are skipped more frequently. "That," Dietrich said, "tells us something about what might be going on in the classroom."

District-wide in 1973-74, attendance was slightly more than 94% on an average day. That rate is down, compared to every school year since 1962. The high of 96% was registered in 1964-65.

The past three-year average is 94.56% and the average of the last five years is 94.85%.

. . . Trap For Students

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Absenteeism for some students is "almost like the course of a disease," says Kathleen L. Dutton, Lincoln Public Schools social worker and licensed psychologist.

By the end of November last year, she said one junior high school student had "already been absent 29 days."

It should've been no surprise.

Total of 180 Days

School records show the student had been absent 11 days in kindergarten, his truancy trend increasing to 31½ days in the 6th grade. In those seven years, the student had been absent a total of 150 days.

A school year is 180 days.

In the first grade alone, the student missed 22½ days in one month, "and that's the month they learned how to read," Mrs. Dutton said.

She sees only a limited group of students who need help "after everything else has failed." Yet in a career of child welfare, she said, "I have never seen" a home situation that wasn't the cause of absenteeism in the extreme cases.

Permission At Home

There's "always somebody at home who consciously or unconsciously gives them (students) permission to stay at home," Mrs. Dutton said.

It could be an alcoholic parent who wants company, she said, or a parent who just doesn't care about an education for his child.

"Parents have to want to change" to combat absenteeism, she said. "This is what we're faced with." However, "Parents apparently don't think it's enough of a problem."

Once children "get down that hole" of truancy, "how do you get them out?" she asked: How can the schools show truants the value of attendance, even when the effect of missed work snowballs?

"You can draw them out one-to-one," offering special help, "but teachers haven't time" for that in all cases, she said.

'Earlier Emphasis'

"Our emphasis on attendance should come at a much earlier age," Mrs. Dutton said, because absenteeism "just doesn't blossom out at puberty," as a rule.

In the elementary schools, for example, "Parents call up with enough excuses that they must have a medical dictionary at home," considering the zany illnesses claimed. And "teachers don't say (to parents or principals), 'I don't think this kid is really sick.' "

Accepting bogus excuses can be stopped, she said.

In junior high, however, schools "look at kids with different eyes," Mrs. Dutton said; instead of faulting parents for absenteeism, the blame shifts to the kids because they're older.

'Good or Average'

Mrs. Dutton said "school avoidance kids" usually "have good or average ability" and intelligence, but as a result of truancy, they "are not part of the school and its activities."

She calls them "lost children."

"You've got to have some reason that the kids want to get there (to school)," Mrs. Dutton said. And she questioned what the school system is "handing out" if it "drives kids away."

For example, when one student entered Lincoln High School, Mrs. Dutton said a counselor told her the boy was "the most promising student" he'd ever seen. "Now," she said, "we can't keep him in school."

Mrs. Dutton spreads the blame evenly, but she ultimately backs off from the idea of ever eliminating unexcused absences, or expecting good attendance and interest from every student and family.

Rigid Schedules

Part of the problem, she said, is that the school has "middle class values." To wit, "Time is just sacrosanct to the school," she said; perhaps it "should be more flexible (and) allow kids to come later in the morning, if their parents have trouble getting them there on time."

Mrs. Dutton also advocates throwing out the policy forbidding late arrival to class. "We shouldn't alienate kids over being tardy," she said. "It's just not worth it."

Kicking kids out of school further alienates them, she said, pointing out that the problem is more complicated than that.

Shaking a "big stick" won't cure "school-phobia," she said, because the schools in fact cannot enforce the compulsory attendance law. No truancy cases are allowed before the juvenile court bench, she said, meaning the school has "only a piece of a leg" to stand on in cases with children under age 16. And the school has "no leg" after a student is 16, she said.

Nevertheless, "I don't know of any way we can make people come to school," Mrs. Dutton said. "I wonder if we are going to have to draw back from the idea of 100% of the people being educated," she said.

Musing that perhaps schools need to adjust to societal values, she said: "If we can get kids to come two hours a day," that's better than not at all.

Future Holds Metric Pants

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Don't be surprised if your waist size goes from 32 to 80 in the near future.

That's 32 inches to 80 centimeters.

Burton B. Ruby, president of Jaymar-Ruby here, says the manufacturer of men's slacks will begin incorporating the metric system in its entire line this fall.

Ruby quickly adds that the inch measurement will continue to be used also. The company will provide double markings on size tickets.

"It's not really a question of if the United States will adopt the metric system. It's only a question of when," Ruby asserts.

The company has already provided its retailers with tape measures which have inches on one side and centimeters on the other, to enable the sales person to measure a customer both ways.

Ruby admits that a complete changeover to the exclusive use of the metric system is unlikely in the near future. "But we're helping to educate people in the use of metrics by offering it now."

Bridge

Practice Your Dummy Play

By B. JAY BECKER

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Clubs. North leads the queen of spades. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A5 ♥ AQ ♦ A32 ♣ AJ9876
♠ 3 ♥ 9643 ♦ KJ75 ♣ KQ102	N W E S

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the six of clubs on which South plays the jack. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A62 ♥ KQ9 ♦ Q976 ♣ AQ5
♠ K94 ♥ J106 ♦ AJ1082 ♣ 83	N W E S

1. Win the spade with the ace, draw trumps, cash the K-A of diamonds, and play a diamond towards the jack. If North follows suit (or if the queen has already fallen) the slam is in the bag.

If North does not follow suit (and the queen has not fallen), you still have the heart finesse to fall back on.

Diamonds are led before hearts in the hope that a heart finesse will prove unnecessary. Thus, if the diamonds are divided 3-3, you make the slam wherever the queen is located.

It would be wrong to finesse the jack of diamonds. This could prove to be an expensive error if South had the Q-x of diamonds and North had the king of hearts.

2. Assuming that North has four or more clubs, which seems likely, the contract cannot be defeated.

Win the club with the queen and play a heart — preferably the nine. If it holds, play the queen of diamonds and finesse. Win or lose, you have at least nine tricks.

If the heart loses to the ace and a club is returned, duck once and win the continuation with the ace. Now try the diamond finesse. If North has the king, well and good, but even if South has the king you're home. He will not have a club to return if the suit was divided 5-3 or 6-2, and you make four notrump. If he does have a club to return, that means the suit was divided 4-4, and you make three notrump.

It would be wrong to attempt the diamond finesse at trick two. It would cost you the contract if the finesse lost and North had the ace of hearts and five or six clubs.

Westview Home

A Place For Those Who Have No Other Place

STAFF PHOTOS BY FRANK VARGA

OLDTIMER . . . one of 36 people living at home.

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

"He was just a boy when he came to us," said Mrs. Thelma Grubb, who with her husband manages Westview Home.

The boy, AWOL from the Army, had joined the circus and was injured when the circus played in Lincoln. His leg in a cast, no money and no place to go, he spent nine months at Westview Home.

"We mothered him and fathered him. We think maybe we helped make a man of him," said Mrs. Grubb, looking down the long kitchen table at a centerpiece of red carnations and spider web mums — a gift from the boy.

The warm smell of freshly baked cupcakes drifted from the large kitchen into the dining room where they sat drinking coffee from mugs.

"Now he's married, has children, a good job. He still writes us, says he's coming to visit this summer," continued Mrs. Grubb.

"You know, we're real proud of that centerpiece."

Not all the stories that Thelma and Dean Grubb tell are such success stories. They're merely warm, personal glimpses of the people who have come and gone — and some who have stayed — during the 15 years that the retired farm couple has been in charge of the county-owned Westview Home.

The two-story, stucco house about seven miles north of Lincoln was built in 1913, but the recorded history of the county's "poor farm" goes back to 1876.

'Did All The Work'

The land, formerly 200 acres and now down to seven acres, was farmed by poor residents who "did all the work," according to Mrs. Grubb.

The old record book, fascinating reading, according to the Grubbs, lists patients, their nationalities and their problems, including references like "sick in the head."

The home, no longer called a poor farm and not a nursing home, is a place for people who are "up and about and able to care for themselves, but who need supervision to some extent," according to Mrs. Grubb.

The current guest list of 36 people — ranging in age from 38 to 88 years — includes alcoholics, retarded adults, individuals on convalescent leave from the Regional Center and others who simply have no place else to go.

A few who come voluntarily leave when the weather warms enough to sleep on a blanket or in a box car. Others, placed in the home by guardians, stay for months or years.

Westview, in an open rural setting, is also home for geese, laying hens, 400 baby chicks, two dogs and cats and kittens by the bushelful.

"The first two geese started out as a joke, but it turned out to be good therapy," said Mrs. Grubb.

One man has the job of feeding the geese each day. His brother (and guardian) requested that he have one job. "He grumbles about it, but if someone else does it just one day, he's back at the job the next day," she explained.

Life Slow, Relaxing

For many, life at Westview is as slow and relaxing as the slightly rolling land surrounding the home.

In the summer, old men sit in the sun on the porch or walk with Kelly, the dog, out to the garden, which produces fresh vegetables for residents' meals.

In colder weather they rock in chairs beside their iron-frame single beds in the long dormitories, each housing 12 to 18 men.

"No, I don't go out much," said one older man, rocking and munching pop corn from a giant plastic bag. "I don't do anything. I'm retired."

"It's better you get that expanding waist from the food than from booze," said Mrs. Grubb, joking with him as she conducted a tour of the home.

Upstairs on the second floor women's dormitory, each woman has a small, partially enclosed area for her bed and dresser.

Jigsaw Puzzle

Two women were working a large jigsaw puzzle; another was straightening her room and watering her African violets, while half a dozen women sat around a portable color television on the cold spring day.

The men's dorm is on the first floor. In the basement is a television room, pool table and tool workshop area.

Westview has been criticized for lack of recreational activitites, but Mrs. Grubb hopes a new part-time staff person for recreation and a program with the mental health clinic will help in that area.

Nervous and a little defensive at first, Mrs. Grubb relaxed as she gave a tour of the house, which is also her home . . . a house, old and decorated with hand-me-downs, but rich with beautiful woodwork and always clean.

The residents have little private space within the house to call their own. Possessions are a bed and pillow, chair and old dresser.

But outside they have rolling land, open air and an unrestricted view of the serene countryside.

GREEN THUMB . . . woman keeps plants on windowsill.

Home's Future May Be On Line

The future of Westview Home will be discussed during a meeting with the Lancaster County Board Thursday morning, a meeting which will undoubtedly be lengthy with conflicting viewpoints.

Five architects will give their plans for remodeling and improvements to bring the home, already structurally sound, up to health and safety standards for licensing.

County federal revenue sharing funds have already been budgeted for improvements, including good sewage and water systems at the home.

Other persons, including County commissioner Bruce Hamilton, are expected to present possible alternative uses for the building — a detoxification center of halfway house for mental health patients.

The residents, according to Hamilton, could be placed in small, private foster care homes already available in Lincoln, at less expense to the county than maintaining them at Westview.

The last time the County Board discussed changing the use of Westview, "we had a packed room," according to Commissioner Robert Colin, who in the past has supported keeping Westview as a care home.

MEN'S DORMITORY . . . furnishings are spartan iron beds and occasional chests.

Let Husband Enjoy Privacy

DEAR ABBY: Paul (not his real name) and I have been married for 22 years, and I must say he has been an ideal husband and father. He is loving, sober, generous, and considerate.

About a year ago, Paul started going out every Wednesday night — "with the boys" — or so he says. He never mentions any of the "boys" by name, and I know of no one in our circle of friends who goes with him.

My problem is that Paul refuses to say where he goes — and with whom.

We can never make any plans for Wednesday night, because that is Paul's night out.

Abby, this not knowing where he goes is slowly driving me to distraction. My demands that he tell me, or to cease going, have gotten me nowhere.

I am seriously considering hiring a private detective to follow him, but wonder what harm it could do to our marriage if Paul is innocent of any wrongdoing, and learns that I've had him followed.

What is your advice?

DOUBTING DODO

DEAR DOUBTING: Grow up. You don't have to know where your husband is every minute of his life. Isn't an adult man (or woman) entitled to some real personal freedom without being held accountable for his time 24 hours a day? And wouldn't the hiring of a private detective be the ultimate assault on that freedom, and an insult as well?

If you want to ruin your ideal marriage, just continue to "demand" that your otherwise perfect husband give you an hourly accounting of his time. Or have him followed.

DEAR ABBY:
The saying, "live and let live"
Is a tolerant point of view.
But Abby, Live and HELP live
Is exactly what you do.

Your wisdom, wit and humor
Is a blessed inspiration
For 19 years of pleasure,
My sincere appreciation!

RAE SWIDLER (AGE 91)
GOLDEN CREST HOME:
L.A., CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My father is 59, and a retired coal miner on disability.

He bought U.S. Savings Bonds years ago through the payroll office, and kept them at home. Our house burned down 25 years ago, and all the bonds were destroyed. Dad never had copies of the bond numbers.

Is there any way he can trace these numbers? Everyone we talked to says we should forget it.

MRS. P.

DEAR MRS. P.: Don't forget it. Your father should contact his local bank, or the nearest Federal Reserve Bank, and request Form PD 1048.

He should then contact his former employer to help in filing out this form, as sometimes the payroll offices keep records of the serial numbers and dates. Your father should fill out the form in duplicate, keep one copy for himself and send the other to the Bureau of Public Debt (the address is on the form).

It may take a while, but eventually your father will get his bonds.

DEAR ABBY: You said that when a young, beautiful girl marries a man who is old enough to be her father, he is usually very rich — or famous.

Well, you're dead wrong. I am 15 and my husband is 49, and as for his being either rich or famous — forget it. We live on a farm and barely have enough money to pay our bills.

"Dumb chick," you might say. Sure, I could have maybe married some 20-year-old kid who wouldn't give a darn about me or the kids. My husband takes real good care of me and our two sons, who are 1½ years and three weeks old.

I think you owe me and a lot of other young girls an apology.

SATISFIED

DEAR SATISFIED: If I offended you, I'm sorry. I said "usually," which allows for some exceptions, but I never expected to hear from so many exceptions.

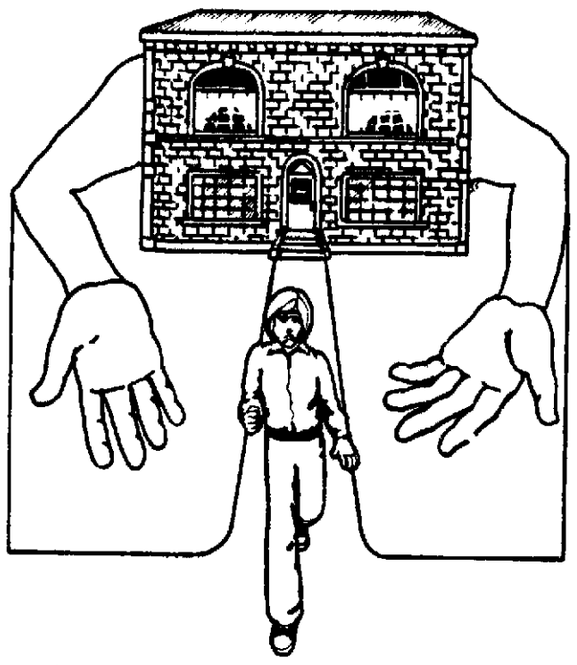
School Absenteeism
. . . Headache For Administrators

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"There's some evidence," Supt. John Prasch says, "that parents put a lesser value on attendance than they did in the past, and we'd like to turn this around"

While absenteeism isn't a serious problem or on the increase in the Lincoln Public Schools, Prasch said he sees a "gradual deterioration of the value" of attendance

A normal absentee rate should be no more than 5%, according to the National Association of Secondary School Principals, but in some urgan areas the rate now exceeds 30%



Lincoln's rate generally stands at 5% to 7%, according to Prasch and other school officials who keep track Nevertheless, "We decided last spring to try to improve our absence rates at the secondary level," Prasch said There is "no significant problem at the elementary level".

High School Problem

Principals agree that absenteeism is a problem at all four public high schools

"Generally, we think we've contributed' to that problem by offering, for example, more out-of-school experiences and individualized instruction, which Prasch said "may have tended to give kids the impression that attendance of itself is not really important

'By contrast, everyone agrees — and we would support the notion — that success in school and attendance go hand in hand" he said Conversely there is a "relationship between poor attendance and poor achievement"

Schools this year have been assessing attendance procedures, and secondary principals have been comparing methods in each building to see how attendance rates have been affected

"We re most interested in what we might have done internally" to destroy any interest in school, Prasch said

Situation Snowballs

For example, absenteeism "may frequently be related to a kid getting himself into a situation where it's difficult to attend" after he misses numerous classes and fears he's too far behind in his work Prasch said the "immediate teacher response to tighten up might boomerang, because it forces a kid into an impossible situation"

"We are looking toward programming this" by computer, Prasch said, "so we can get better information back to parents" more quickly and accurately

Meanwhile, "We know that industry has problems with absences," that could be traced to students' school attendance.

Polls since 1973 by the National Association of Secondary School Principals show absesnteeism is the "most perplexing student problem," outranking discipline by 2-1

Strong Rules Work

Schools the association cited for successfully curbing absenteeism have one mutual approach — strong, clear, well publicized and consistently enforced policies

Among the successful solutions, according to "Education USA," are transferring chronic truants to alternative programs, exempting students with good attendance from final exams, withholding course credit for excessive absences, enlisting volunteers to telephone parents and mailing attendance reports home regularly

A Connecticut study suggests teachers contact parents rather than counselors or principals when attendance begins to create problems, special events be scheduled on Mondays and Fridays to encourage attendance; educational alternatives be expanded as well as counseling for the chronically absent, and students be made aware that employers will contact schools for attendance data

Not Disciplinary

Student Services Director Eldon A Heskett said in the high schools, "the approach to the problem has always been a counseling concern, and not a disciplinary concern," but no one has come up with the best approach.

Heskett said combating absenteeism will require "a total effort by the classroom teacher, counselor and parents," community agencies and businesses, but "parents have a real primary responsibility"

Sometimes, he said, parental "love blinds discipline," and while programs are available for parents to develop skills, too often they "don't go to the source of help until there's a crisis"

Moreover, "I don't accept this idea that kids might have, saying there's nothing at school," Heskett said He noted a broad curriculum with alternative programs offered through flexible scheduling Still, "the classroom situation has to be attractive to students"

Turnaround Hoped

While the 'situation is not much more encouraging this year than it was last year," Heskett said, "we're going to see a turn I think the economic situation is going to dictate that," as the labor market sets higher education standards

Short of that, the No. 1 topic among principals the past year has been absenteeism. While most of the students are responsible and disciplined, Bill Bogar at Lincoln High said the attitude, "I want to do what I'd like to do, and do it now," is significantly reinforced by the youth culture.

Those students don't understand they "are really the losers," not the school, Bogar said. A student "may not feel the loss til he's 25"

Southeast Principal Wesley Lauterbach said "We are having to work harder" than in the past to curb absenteeism, although "Most of the time, we're able to head it off primarily through keeping parents informed"

Records Incomplete

All the principals agree they must continue to emphasize attendance Northeast's Harold Dietrich said, however, school records do "not reflect the attendance problem of single- and double-period absences," which have increased the past two years in all schools

Some teachers win almost perfect attendance, but others' classes are skipped more frequently "That," Dietrich said, "tells us something about what might be going on in the classroom."

District-wide in 1973-74, attendance was slightly more than 94% on an average day That rate is down, compared to every school year since 1962 The high of 96% was registered in 1964-65

The past three-year average is 94 56% and the average of the last five years is 94 85%.

. . . Trap For Students

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Absenteeism for some students is "almost like the course of a disease,' says Kathleen L Dutton, Lincoln Public Schools social worker and licensed psychologist

By the end of November last year she said one junior high school student had already been absent 29 days"

It should ve been no surprise

Total of 180 Days

School records show the student had been absent 11 days in kindergarten, his truancy trend increasing to 31½ days in the 6th grade In those seven years the student had been absent a total of 150 days

A school year is 180 days

In the first grade alone, the student missed 22½ days in one month, 'and that's the month they learned how to read," Mrs Dutton said

She sees only a limited group of students who need help "after everything else has failed" Yet in a career of child welfare, she said, "I have never seen" a home situation that wasn't the cause of absenteeism in the extreme cases

Permission At Home

There's 'always somebody at home who consciously or unconsciously gives them (students) permission to stay at home,' Mrs Dutton said

It could be an alcoholic parent who wants company, she said, or a parent who just doesn't care about an education for his child

'Parents have to want to change' to combat absenteeism, she said 'This is what we're faced with" However, "Parents apparently don t think it s enough of a problem"

Once children "get down that hole" of truancy, "how do you get them out?' she asked. How can the schools show truants the value of attendance, even when the effect of missed work snowballs?

"You can draw them out one-to-one," offering special help, "but teachers haven't time" for that in all cases, she said

'Earlier Emphasis'

"Our emphasis on attendance should come at a much earlier age," Mrs Dutton said, because absenteeism "just doesn't blossom out at puberty," as a rule

In the elementary schools, for example, "Parents call up with enough excuses that they must have a medical dictionary at home" considering the zany illnesses claimed And "teachers don t say (to parents or principals), 'I don t think this kid is really sick

Accepting bogus excuses can be stopped, she said

In junior high, however, schools 'look at kids with different eyes Mrs Dutton said instead of faulting parents for absenteeism, the blame shifts to the kids because they're older

'Good or Average'

Mrs Dutton said 'school avoidance kids" usually "have good or average ability" and intelligence but as a result of truancy, they "are not part of the school and its activities'

She calls them "lost children"

"You've got to have some reason that the kids want to get there (to school)," Mrs Dutton said And she questioned what the school system is "handing out" if it "drives kids away"

For example, when one student entered Lincoln High School, Mrs Dutton said a counselor told her the boy was "the most promising student" he d ever seen "Now," she said, "we can't keep him in school"

Mrs Dutton spreads the blame evenly, but she ultimately backs off from the idea of ever eliminating unexcused absences, or expecting good attendance and interest from every student and family

Rigid Schedules

Part of the problem, she said, is that the school has 'middle class values" To wit, "Time is just sacrosanct to the school," she said, perhaps it "should be more flexible (and) allow kids to come later in the morning, if their parents have trouble getting them there on time"

Mrs Dutton also advocates throwing out the policy forbidding late arrival to class "We shouldn't alienate kids over being tardy,' she said "It s just not worth it"

Kicking kids out of school further alienates them, she said, pointing out that the problem is more complicated than that

Shaking a "big stick" won't cure "school-phobia," she said, because the schools in fact cannot enforce the compulsory attendance law No truancy cases are allowed before the juvenile court bench, she said, meaning the school has "only a piece of a leg" to stand on in cases with children under age 16 And the school has "no leg" after a student is 16, she said

Nevertheless, "I don't know of any way we can make people come to school," Mrs Dutton said "I wonder if we are going to have to draw back from the idea of 100% of the people being educated," she said

Musing that perhaps schools need to adjust to societal values, she said "If we can get kids to come two hours a day," that s better than not at all

Future Holds Metric Pants

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Don't be surprised if your waist size goes from 32 to 80 in the near future.

That's 32 inches to 80 centimeters.

Burton B. Ruby, president of Jaymar-Ruby here, says the manufacturer of men's slacks will begin incorporating the metric system in its entire line this fall.

Ruby quickly adds that the inch measurement will continue to be used also. The company will provide double markings on size tickets.

"It's not really a question of if the United States will adopt the metric system. It's only a question of when," Ruby asserts.

The company has already provided its retailers with tape measures which have inches on one side and centumeters on the other, to enable the sales person to measure a customer both ways.

Ruby admits that a complete changeover to the exclusive use of the metric system is unlikely in the near future. "But we're helping to educate people in the use of metrics by offering it now."

Practice Your Dummy Play

By B. JAY BECKER

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Clubs. North leads the queen of spades. How would you play the hand?

♠ A5		♠ 3

♦ A32		♦ KJ75
♣ AJ9876		♣ KQ102

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the six of clubs on which South plays the jack. How would you play the hand?

♠ A62		♠ K94
♥ KQ9	N W E S	♥ J106
♦ Q976		♦ AJ1082
♣ AQ5		♣ 83

1. Win the spade with the ace, draw trumps, cash the K-A of diamonds, and play a diamond towards the jack. If North follows suit (or if the queen has already fallen) the slam is in the bag.

If North does not follow suit (and the queen has not fallen), you still have the heart finesse to fall back on.

Diamonds are led before hearts in the hope that a heart finesse will prove unnecessary. Thus, if the diamonds are divided 3-3, you make the slam wherever the queen is located.

It would be wrong to finesse the jack of diamonds. This could prove to be an expensive error if South had the Q-x of diamonds and North had the king of hearts.

2. Assuming that North has four or more clubs, which seems likely, the contract cannot be defeated.

Win the club with the queen and play a heart — preferably the nine. If it holds, play the queen of diamonds and finesse. Win or lose, you have at least nine tricks.

If the heart loses to the ace and a club is returned, duck once and win the continuation with the ace. Now try the diamond finesse. If North has the king, well and good, but even if South has the king you're home. He will not have a club to return if the suit was divided 5-3 or 6-2, and you make four notrump. If he does have a club to return, that means the suit was divided 4-4, and you make three notrump.

It would be wrong to attempt the diamond finesse at trick two. It would cost you the contract if the finesse lost and North had the ace of hearts and five or six clubs.

Westview Home

A Place For Those Who Have No Other Place

STAFF PHOTOS BY FRANK VARGA

OLDTIMER . . . one of 36 people living at home.

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

"He was just a boy when he came to us," said Mrs. Thelma Grubb, who with her husband manages Westview Home.

The boy, AWOL from the Army, had joined the circus and was injured when the circus played in Lincoln. His leg in a cast, no money and no place to go, he spent nine months at Westview Home.

"We mothered him and fathered him. We think maybe we helped make a man of him," said Mrs. Grubb, looking down the long kitchen table at a centerpiece of red carnations and spider web mums — a gift from the boy.

The warm smell of freshly baked cupcakes drifted from the large kitchen into the dining room where they sat drinking coffee from mugs.

"Now he's married, has children, a good job. He still writes us, says he's coming to visit this summer," continued Mrs. Grubb.

"You know, we're real proud of that centerpiece."

Not all the stories that Thelma and Dean Grubb tell are such success stories. They're merely warm, personal glimpses of the people who have come and gone — and some who have stayed — during the 15 years that the retired farm couple has been in charge of the county-owned Westview Home.

The two-story, stucco house about seven miles north of Lincoln was built in 1913, but the recorded history of the county's "poor farm" goes back to 1876.

'Did All The Work'

The land, formerly 200 acres and now down to seven acres, was farmed by poor residents who "did all the work," according to Mrs. Grubb.

The old record book, fascinating reading, according to the Grubbs, lists patients, their nationalities and their problems, including references like "sick in the head."

The home, no longer called a poor farm and not a nursing home, is a place for people who are "up and about and able to care for themselves, but who need supervision to some extent," according to Mrs. Grubb.

The current guest list of 36 people — ranging in age from 38 to 88 years — includes alcoholics, retarded adults, individuals on convalescent leave from the Regional Center and others who simply have no place else to go.

A few who come voluntarily leave when the weather warms enough to sleep on a blanket or in a box car. Others, placed in the home by guardians, stay for months or years.

Westview, in an open rural setting, is also home for geese, laying hens, 400 baby chicks, two dogs and cats and kittens by the bushelful.

"The first two geese started out as a joke, but it turned out to be good therapy," said Mrs. Grubb.

One man has the job of feeding the geese each day. His brother (and guardian) requested that he have one job. "He grumbles about it, but if someone else does it just one day, he's back at the job the next day," she explained

Life Slow, Relaxing

For many, life at Westview is as slow and relaxing as the slightly rolling land surrounding the home.

In the summer, old men sit in the sun on the porch or walk with Kelly, the dog, out to the garden, which produces fresh vegetables for residents' meals.

In colder weather they rock in chairs beside their iron-frame single beds in the long dormitories, each housing 12 to 18 men.

"No, I don't go out much," said one older man, rocking and munching pop corn from a giant plastic bag. "I don't do anything. I'm retired."

"It's better you get that expanding waist from the food than from booze," said Mrs. Grubb, joking with him as she conducted a tour of the home.

Upstairs on the second floor women's dormitory, each woman has a small, partially enclosed area for her bed and dresser.

Jigsaw Puzzle

Two women were working a large jigsaw puzzle; another was straightening her room and watering her African violets, while half a dozen women sat around a portable color television on the cold spring day.

The men's dorm is on the first floor. In the basement is a television room, pool table and tool workshop area.

Westview has been criticized for lack of recreational activitites, but Mrs. Grubb hopes a new part-time staff person for recreation and a program with the mental health clinic will help in that area.

Nervous and a little defensive at first, Mrs. Grubb relaxed as she gave a tour of the house, which is also her home . . . a house, old and decorated with hand-me-downs, but rich with beautiful woodwork and always clean.

The residents have little private space within the house to call their own. Possessions are a bed and pillow, chair and old dresser.

But outside they have rolling land, open air and an unrestricted view of the serene countryside.

GREEN THUMB . . . woman keeps plants on windowsill.

Home's Future May Be On Line

The future of Westview Home will be discussed during a meeting with the Lancaster County Board Thursday morning, a meeting which will undoubtedly be lengthy with conflicting viewpoints.

Five architects will give their plans for remodeling and improvements to bring the home, already structurally sound, up to health and safety standards for licensing.

County federal revenue sharing funds have already been budgeted for improvements, including good sewage and water systems at the home.

Other persons, including County commissioner Bruce Hamilton, are expected to present possible alternative uses for the building — a detoxification center of halfway house for mental health patients.

The residents, according to Hamilton, could be placed in small, private foster care homes already available in Lincoln, at less expense to the county than maintaining them at Westview.

The last time the County Board discussed changing the use of Westview, "we had a packed room," according to Commissioner Robert Colin, who in the past has supported keeping Westview as a care home.

MEN'S DORMITORY . . . furnishings are spartan iron beds and occasional chests.

Let Husband Enjoy Privacy

DEAR ABBY: Paul (not his real name) and I have been married for 22 years, and I must say he has been an ideal husband and father. He is loving, sober, generous, and considerate.

About a year ago, Paul started going out every Wednesday night — "with the boys" — or so he says. He never mentions any of the "boys" by name, and I know of no one in our circle of friends who goes with him.

My problem is that Paul refuses to say where he goes — and with whom.

We can never make any plans for Wednesday night, because that is Paul's night out.

Abby, this not knowing where he goes is slowly driving me to distraction. My demands that he tell me or to cease going, have gotten me nowhere.

I am seriously considering hiring a private detective to follow him, but wonder what harm it could do to our marriage if Paul is innocent of any wrongdoing, and learns that I've had him followed.

What is your advice?

DOUBTING DODO

DEAR DOUBTING: Grow up. You don't have to know where your husband is every minute of his life. Isn't an adult man (or woman) entitled to some real personal freedom without being held accountable for his time 24 hours a day? And wouldn't the hiring of a private detective be the ultimate assault on that freedom, and an insult as well?

If you want to ruin your ideal marriage, just continue to "demand" that your otherwise perfect husband give you an hourly accounting of his time. Or have him followed.

DEAR ABBY:
The saying, "live and let live"
Is a tolerant point of view.
But Abby, Live and HELP live
Is exactly what you do.

Your wisdom, wit and humor
Is a blessed inspiration
For 19 years of pleasure,
My sincere appreciation!

RAE SWIDLER (AGE 91)
GOLDEN CREST HOME:
L.A., CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My father is 59, and a retired coal miner on disability.

He bought U.S. Savings Bonds years ago through the payroll office, and kept them at home. Our house burned down 25 years ago, and all the bonds were destroyed. Dad never had copies of the bond numbers.

Is there any way he can trace these numbers? Everyone we talked to says we should forget it.

MRS. P

DEAR MRS. P.: Don't forget it. Your father should contact his local bank, or the nearest Federal Reserve Bank, and request Form PD 1048.

He should then contact his former employer to help in filing out this form, as sometimes the payroll offices keep records of the serial numbers and dates. Your father should fill out the form in duplicate, keep one copy for himself and send the other to the Bureau of Public Debt (the address is on the form).

It may take a while, but eventually your father will get his bonds.

DEAR ABBY: You said that when a young, beautiful girl marries a man who is old enough to be her father, he is usually very rich — or famous.

Well, you're dead wrong. I am 15 and my husband is 49, and as for his being either rich or famous — forget it. We live on a farm and barely have enough money to pay our bills.

"Dumb chick," you might say. Sure, I could have maybe married some 20-year-old kid who wouldn't give a darn about me or the kids. My husband takes real good care of me and our two sons, who are 1½ years and three weeks old.

I think you owe me and a lot of other young girls an apology.

SATISFIED

DEAR SATISFIED: If I offended you, I'm sorry. I said "usually," which allows for some exceptions, but I never expected to hear from so many exceptions.

Prices Broadly Lower In Quiet Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over the Southeast Asia situation and first quarter earnings prospects kept the stock market on the defensive Tuesday, pushing prices broadly lower in the quietest trading in more than nine weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 2.11 Monday, dropped another 6.57 to 761.58.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gave up .72 to 82.64, and the New York Stock Exchange composite lost .37 to 43.84.

Declines rang up a 983-to-372 plurality over advances among the 1,804 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached only 14.48 million shares—the lightest total since a 13.45 million-share day Jan. 20, a week before the explosive surge in activity of late January and February began.

Analysts noted that a strong prop under the market in recent days—buying by institutions preparing their portfolios for first quarter reports—had been removed with the end of the quarter at Monday's close.

What remained was an air of caution, dominated by expectation of poor first quarter earnings showings by many companies in the weeks ahead, along with some possible dividend cuts.

The continuing grim picture presented by the situation in Cambodia and South Vietnam also seemed to be weighing on the market.

Borden, the day's most active issue, slid 1⅜ to 22¼ in trading marked by a 164,200-share block at 22 shortly after the opening.

Walt Disney Productions was also active, climbing 1½ to 47. The company reported attendance gains for its second fiscal quarter of 50 per cent at Florida's Walt Disney World and 19 per cent at Disneyland in California.

Elsewhere in a widely mixed glamor group, Polaroid rose 1⅛ to 25⅛ and Texas Instruments rose 1⅛ to 91⅜, but Johnson & Johnson was off 1¼ at 89½ and Burroughs dropped 1⅞ to 89⅛.

Airlines were generally weak. UAL slipped a point to 19⅞ with the holding company's United Airlines subsidiary reporting a 4.8 per cent drop in passenger traffic last month; TWA lost ⅝ to 10½ and Delta Airlines gave up ⅝ to 36¾.

Data General added 2⅜ to 24¼. The company reported a strong earnings gain for the quarter ended March 15.

Cummins Engine fell 1⅝ to 20 on the company's announcement of plans to cut back production and employment for the second time this year.

Frigitronics led the active list at the American Stock Exchange, up ⅜ at 8½.

"You can't quantify it in terms of immediate effects on the economy," observed Alan R. Shaw at Harris, Upham & Co. "But psychologically it's got to have an inhibiting influence.

The pace of trading contrasted sharply with the daily average of more than 20 million shares through the first three months of the year.

The Amex market-value index declined .43 to 79.50.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index closed at 75.42, off .24.

Hog, Cattle Marketings Near Normal

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hog and cattle marketings on the Omaha livestock market got back to about normal Tuesday for the first time in a week, and the prices generally acted about as expected.

Actually, the hog run of 7,500 head was much more than expected, but the trade was still moderately active.

Handyweight barrows and gilts retreated somewhat from the sharp gains posted during last week's storm sessions, turning $1.00 to as much as $1.75 lower. Heavier weights traded 50-cents to $1.00 down.

Top-graded uniform butchers bulked from $30.00-$39.50.

Sows followed suit, dropping 25-to-50 cents on tickets that ranged from $35.25-$37.25.

The cattle marketings were a bit more to the moderate side than the hogs, with sellers bringing in 6,500 head.

However, the shortage of numbers over the past week and the threat of more bad weather through the northern and western portions of the state enabled the cattle to pretty much hold their own.

Steers and heifers were moderately active and mostly steady, but in some instances steer sales were weak to 25-cents lower.

Cows were moderately active, posting a trend of strong to 50-cents higher.

A load of high-choice and prime steer offerings averaging 1,250 pounds pulled the day's outside top at $42.25, while most choice steers bulked from $40.00-$41.50.

A load of high-choice and prime heifers averaging 1,150 pounds peaked the day's she stock trade at $41.00. Choice heifers cashed mostly from $38.50-$40.00.

Utility and commercial cows earned $22.00-$24.00, with a few utilities ranging upwards from $24.50-$25.00. Canners and cutters brought $17.50-$22.00.

There were only 100 sheep offered, and that just wasn't enough to test the trade.

The USDA estimated Wednesday's receipts at 5,000 cattle and calves, 4,500 hogs and 200 sheep.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

"Your understanding of Pisces is amazing. You comprehend the Neptunian aspects of the character. Your insights into the psychology of this zodiacal symbol are to be envied." — Anais Nin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on how you relate to those in authority, including professional superiors. You find you have plenty in common with those who appeared to be distant. You are going to collect favors due.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with long trip, communication from afar, higher education. Spread wings. Refuse to be painted into corner. Open lines of communication. Bridge generation, language gaps. You can do it!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Dig beneath surface indications. Get real story, especially where finances are concerned. Partner, mate and taxes are spotlighted. Thorough approach rings bell. What was a mystery can be solved — and resolved. You'll comprehend!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent is on what happens in legal area. Take nothing for granted. Be positive your statements are being properly interpreted. One who apparently opposes you is sending secret peace signal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Low-key approach is best — avoid ruffling feathers of one associated with employment. Make adjustments, concessions. Family member expresses appreciation for past favors. Learn to accept compliment without kicking toe in sand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romance could create illusions. Enjoy, but protect yourself in clinches. You know what should be done — the doing, however, is something else. Change, variety, intensified relationships are highlighted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get lowdown, inside information. You are able to close deal, to finish what you start. What was a logjam boomerangs to your advantage. Another Libran could figure prominently. Your questions are going to be answered.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Relatives take initiative and may appear aggressive. Key is to hold your ground — and to maintain sense of humor. Gossip should not be accorded dignity of serious consideration. Key now is to finish, to distribute and publicize. Get ideas on paper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on personal possessions, right to buy and sell, title to deed and special clauses. Speak up in your own behalf. Delegating duties now would be an error. One who makes grand gesture may have petty motive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get what you request. Know it and be selective. One who is in responsible position is willing to make room for you at top. Cycle is high and your judgment is on target. Know it and proceed toward goal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Special event for benefit of charitable organization could be featured. You are active as active participant, spokesman. Hospital, institution could be in picture. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You do some revising, tearing down for purpose of rebuilding on a more solid base. Emphasis is on romance, friends, desires and reward from business or professional efforts. Read between the lines — be aware of fine print.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, moody and you are getting proverbial second chance now, with July and September indicated as outstanding months for you in 1975. Cancer, Capricorn persons play significant roles in your life. You enter new phase of activity this year and you will have chance for greater self-expression.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Prices Broadly Lower In Quiet Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over the Southeast Asia situation and first quarter earnings prospects kept the stock market on the defensive Tuesday, pushing prices broadly lower in the quietest trading in more than nine weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 2.11 Monday, dropped another 6.57 to 761.58.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gave up .72 to 82 64, and the New York Stock Exchange composite lost .37 to 43.84.

Declines rang up a 983-to-372 plurality over advances among the 1.804 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached only 14.48 million shares—the lightest total since a 13.45 million-share day Jan. 20, a week before the explosive surge in activity of late January and February began.

Analysts noted that a strong prop under the market in recent days—buying by institutions preparing their portfolios for first quarter reports—had been removed with the end of the quarter at Monday's close

What remained was an air of caution, dominated by expectation of poor first quarter earnings showings by many companies in the weeks ahead, along with some possible dividend cuts

The continuing grim picture presented by the situation in Cambodia and South Vietnam also seemed to be weighing on the market.

Borden, the day's most active issue, slid 1⅜ to 22¼ in trading marked by a 164,200-share block at 22 shortly after the opening.

Walt Disney Productions was also active, climbing 1½ to 47. The company reported attendance gains for its second fiscal quarter of 50 per cent at Florida's Walt Disney World and 19 per cent at Disneyland in California.

Elsewhere in a widely mixed glamor group, Polaroid rose 1⅛ to 25⅛ and Texas Instruments rose 1⅛ to 91⅜, but Johnson & Johnson was off 1¼ at 89½ and Burroughs dropped 1⅞ to 89⅛.

Airlines were generally weak. UAL slipped a point to 19⅞ with the holding company's United Airlines subsidiary reporting a 4 8 per cent drop in passenger traffic last month; TWA lost ⅝ to 10½ and Delta Airlines gave up ⅝ to 36¾.

Data General added 2⅜ to 24¼. The company reported a strong earnings gain for the quarter ended March 15.

Cummins Engine fell 1⅜ to 20 on the company's announcement of plans to cut back production and employment for the second time this year.

Frigitronics led the active list at the American Stock Exchange, up ⅜ at 8½.

"You can't quantify it in terms of immediate effects on the economy," observed Alan R. Shaw at Harris, Upham & Co. "But psychologically it's got to have an inhibiting influence.

The pace of trading contrasted sharply with the daily average of more than 20 million shares through the first three months of the year.

The Amex market-value index declined .43 to 79.50.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index closed at 75 42, off .24

Hog, Cattle Marketings Near Normal

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hog and cattle marketings on the Omaha livestock market got back to about normal Tuesday for the first time in a week, and the prices generally acted about as expected.

Actually, the hog run of 7,500 head was much more than expected, but the trade was still moderately active.

Handyweight barrows and gilts retreated somewhat from the sharp gains posted during last week's storm sessions, turning $1.00 to as much as $1.75 lower. Heavier weights traded 50-cents to $1.00 down.

Top-graded uniform butchers bulked from $30.00-$39.50.

Sows followed suit, dropping 25-to-50 cents on tickets that ranged from $35.25-$37.25.

The cattle marketings were a bit more to the moderate side than the hogs, with sellers bringing in 6,500 head.

However, the shortage of numbers over the past week and the threat of more bad weather through the northern and western portions of the state enabled the cattle to pretty much hold their own.

Steers and heifers were moderately active and mostly steady, but in some instances steer sales were weak to 25-cents lower.

Cows were moderately active, posting a trend of strong to 50-cents higher.

A load of high-choice and prime steer offerings averaging 1,250 pounds pulled the day's outside top at $42.25, while most choice steers bulked from $40.00-$41.50.

A load of high-choice and prime heifers averaging 1,150 pounds peaked the day's she stock trade at $41.00. Choice heifers cashed mostly from $38.50-$40.00.

Utility and commercial cows earned $22.00-$24.00, with a few utilities ranging upwards from $24.50-$25.00. Canners and cutters brought $17.50-$22.00.

There were only 100 sheep offered, and that just wasn't enough to test the trade.

The USDA estimated Wednesday's receipts at 5,000 cattle and calves, 4,500 hogs and 200 sheep.

Bucks Still Alive For Playoff Spot

By Associated Press

The Milwaukee Bucks, with reserve Mickey Davis sparking a fourth-quarter surge, defeated the Detroit Pistons 98-91 Tuesday night to keep their slender National Basketball Association playoff hopes alive.

The Chicago Bulls moved a notch closer to wrapping up the Midwest Division championship in the NBA with a 98-93 victory over the Buffalo Braves.

Earl Monroe and Walt Frazier combined for 47 points and triggered a New York comeback that helped the Knicks beat Philadelphia 99-95, enhancing their NBA playoff chances.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points and reserve George Thompson added 18, 10 in the second half, for the Bucks, who snapped a skid of seven defeats in their last eight games.

However, one Detroit victory or one Milwaukee defeat still would clinch a playoff berth for the Pistons and eliminate the Bucks from postseason play for the first time since their expansion season of 1968-69.

The Pistons have two games left and the Bucks three, including another meeting Saturday at Detroit. But Detroit can clinch a berth by beating Chicago Wednesday night.

The lead changed hands six times in the third quarter until a hook by Abdul-Jabbar and a driving layup and jump shot by Thompson put the Bucks ahead 72-67 going into the final period.

The Pistons came back to lead 85-84, but the Bucks retaliated with a 10-2 spurt to take permanent command. A jump shot by Thompson ignited the surge.

Dave Bing, effectively driving the lane against the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar, and Mengelt, bombing from outside, each poured in 10 points as the Pistons opened a 34-25 lead after one quarter.

The Bucks retaliated with 10 points in a row, including two driving layups by Thompson, in the first 2:13 of the second period to grab a one-point lead.

However, Porter sank three jump shots as the Pistons built a seven-point advantage and led 50-49 at the half.

The victory gave the Knicks a 39-40 record and a one-half game lead over idle Cleveland in the battle for the fifth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

New York has three games remaining and could clinch a playoff berth by beating the Cavaliers at Cleveland Thursday night. Cleveland has two games left.

Monroe led the Knicks with 26 points, including their last two field goals in the closing minutes, and Frazier finished with 21, including the field goal that put New York ahead for good 91-89 with 2:51 remaining.

John Gianelli and Bill Bradley each scored 16 points for New York, Phil Jackson added 12 and Harthorne Wingo came off the bench to trigger the Knicks' fast break that enabled them to overcome an early 16-point Philadelphia lead.

Fred Carter topped the 76ers with 23 points, Billy Cunningham scored 22 and Leroy Ellis and Doug Collins each colelcted 19.

The Bulls got a 24-point performance from Chet Walker and a clutch tip-in by Tom Boerwinkle in the last two minutes to snap a three-game losing streak and end Buffalo's five-game winning streak.

Chicago is two games in front of Kansas City-Omaha with only three games left to play.

Two free throws by Chicago's Rowland Garrett with 4:32 remaining broke an 85-85 deadlock and the Bulls scored six more points and stayed on the top the rest of the way.

Jim McMillian scored two field goals for Buffalo, drawing the Braves close, but Boerwinkle's tip-in came with 1:36 left. The Bulls then used free throws to wrap up the victory.

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo led all scorers with 36 points. Garrett came off the bench and scored 16 for Chicago.

Young Kevin Kummert and veteran Rudy Tomjanovich combined for 53 points, sparking the hot-shooting Houston Rockets to a 113-104 victory over the Atlanta Hawks and virutally clinching an NBA playoff spot with a third straight win.

Houston leads Cleveland by one game for the second place spot in the NBA Central Division with one game to play.

Elvin Hayes and Nick Weatherspoon combined for 57 points and 27 rebounds to lead the Washington Bullets to a 110-101 victory over the New Orelans Jazz.

Hayes scored 33 points and pulled down 13 rebounds while Weatherspoon came off the bench to score 24 points and grab 14 rebounds as the Bullets boosted their record to 57-21, the best in the NBA.

The team with the best record gets $80,000 in bonus money, while the runner-up gets $30,000 — a difference that works out to $4,500 a player. The Boston Celtics are second with a 57-22 record.

New Orleans got 19 points from Pete Maravich and 17 from E. C. Coleman but couldn't regain hhe lead even though it came close several times.

The Jazz is now 23-57, the fourth best record for an expansion team in NBA history.

Norton Predicts He'll Fight Ali

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Boxer Ken Norton predicted Tuesday that he would fight heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali within the year.

Ali "is not anxious to fight me, but he will," Norton said. "He won't fight bums much longer," referring to New Jersey liquor salesman Chuck Wepner, whom Ali toyed with for 15 rounds in Cleveland March 24 before knocking him out.

On that same night, Norton battered fellow Californian Jerry Quarry and stopped him in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Sports Events Weather Victim

The cold and snow forced cancellations and postponements of several sports events Tuesday for Nebraska, Nebraska Wesleyan and area high schools.

The Huskers' doubleheader with Morningside, Iowa, College's baseball team was cancelled. NU's next scheduled games are Friday when Oklahoma State comes to Lincoln.

The Plainsmen's double header with UNO was postponed until April 10 at Frecke Field in Papillion at 2 p.m.

NWU's next games are set for Thursday at Sherman Field at 3 p.m. against Peru State.

The Lincoln Pius X boys were suppose to compete in a track triangular with Norris and Syracuse, Northeast girls were scheduled at Papillion in track and the Thunderbolt baseball team was slated to play at Omaha Holy Name.

Who Will Succeed Wooden At UCLA?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Now the big question. Who will succeed the Wizard of Westwood? Who will try to carry on the legend of John Wooden?

As the UCLA Bruins went home to Los Angeles Tuesday, their 10th NCAA title secure and their phenomenal little coach no longer at the helm, Athletic Director J. D. Morgan said he would have an announcement soon on a successor for Wooden.

In Memphis, Tenn., a newspaper, the Press-Scimitar, said UCLA has been in touch with Illinois Coach Gene Bartow. "The word here is that he (Bartow) has the inside track" on Wooden's job, the newspaper said.

Bartow coached four years at Memphis State, compiling an 82-32 record and taking the Tigers to the NCAA final game in 1973, where they lost to—who else?—Wooden and UCLA. Bartow moved to Illinois this year, where his team had an 8-18 record.

There are reports here that Morgan, who realizes no man can replace Wooden, already has decided on a replacement.

Regardless, the Bruins and Wooden could bask in another of their finest hours, a 10th national championship in 12 years, one which came 92-85 over a physical Kentucky team that gave UCLA all it wanted.

But in the end, it was Wooden's virtuoso performance, and the skill with which his final class executed it, that made the difference.

"There was no way that we were going to lose the coach's last game," said guard Andre McCarter, who had 14 assists and ran the tempo of the game the way Wooden wanted it—first fast, then slow, then fast again. It kept the Bruins one step ahead of the Wildcats.

Wooden used just six players to Kentucky's 10, defying the Wildcats' muscle and depth with muscle, quickness, condition and finesse. Dave Meyers, Rich Washington, Pete Trgovich and McCarter played all 40 minutes. No Kentucky player did, and the experts would have told you that would wear UCLA down.

The Bruins' single substitute—7-foot-1 Ralph Drollinger—played 16 minutes. But Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall thought he was the key man. Drollinger had 10 points and 13 rebounds—more than offsetting the Wildcats' three 6-10 freshmen centers, who were not a major factor.

"When Ralph plays tall, so do we," said Meyers. And the Bruins front line, which also included Washington, did just that, combining for 62 points and 36 rebounds.

"I never got tired," said McCarter. "There was just too much at stake. I'm sure Coach Wooden is a large part of the reason. He told us his leaving should have nothing to do with the game. But, well, he's such a great person."

The emotion of the game became most evident to the 15,153 who packed the San Diego Sports Arena when Meyers fouled Kevin Grevey. Meyers banged his hand on the floor and was slapped with a technical.

Wooden was furious, shouting madly for some time at official Hank Nichols. His team's 10-point lead had been cut to one at 76-75 and now Kentucky had a chance for five points—the free throws plus possession.

They got none. Grevey, who had 34 points, missed the free throws and his team committed an offensive foul before it could get a shot off.

"I was upset on the call because I felt Grevey went under me as I got off a shot," said Meyers, whose 24 points were second for the Bruins to Washington's 28.

But the key was Drollinger, who said he guessed he'd picked the right time "to put it on again. I'm an introspective person. Coach Wooden didn't have to tell me to go in and play as hard as I could for as long as I could. He didn't have to tell any of us that."

NU Gymnasts Seeking Crown

Terre Haute, Ind. (AP) — Indiana State University has a solid opportunity to win the 33rd NCAA gymnastics championships this week.

Coach Roger Counsil's squad heads the eight-team field that includes defending national champion Iowa State, Louisiana State, four-time winner Southern Illinois, California, Arizona State, Nebraska and Michigan.

Doug Griffith and Kurt Thomas of Indiana State will be among the top all-around contenders when the three-day meet gets under way Thursday with preliminary compulsories.

Optional preliminary action will be Friday, with team title competition Saturday afternoon and individual finals Saturday night.

The Sycamores, ranked No. 1 most of the year, have been one of the nation's most consistent teams, averaging 216.11 points in 15 dual meets.

Iowa State, which has won the meet the past two years and captured 54 straight dual meets, qualified 10 individuals, including defending NCAA rings champion Keith Heaver.

Louisiana State, winner of 12 straight dual meets this season and 35 of its last 36, turned in the top NCAA qualifying score this season at 431.45.

Southern Illinois, which last won the NCAA in 1972, will be without all-around favorite Jim Ivicek, who broke his arm last week in a fall from the high bar.

California finished third last year, behind Iowa State and Arizona State, and returns All-America Mark Lundy in the rings.

Arizona State has seven individuals in 12 qualifying spots, including All-Americas Gary Alexander in floor exercise, L.J. Larson in pommel horse and Rick Curtis on rings.

Nebraska, who like Southern Illinois qualified despite a second-place conference finish, are led by versatile Gene Mackie and specialist Jim Unger.

Other top all-around performers include Wayne Young of Brigham Young, Mark Graham of Iowa State, Tom Weeden of California, Yoichi Tomita of Long Beach State, Peter Korman of Southern Connecticut and Chuck Wanner of Illinois-Chicago Circle.

'Jinxed' South Favored Again As Prep All-Star Rosters Picked

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Jinx, hex, spell, whatever you call it. The North holds something over the South in the Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star High School Basketball Game.

The South has been favored, sometimes heavily so, the past four summers. But each time the North has manufactured an upset win to take a 4-2 lead in the all-star series.

Lincoln Pius X coach Don Kelley and assistant John Johnette of Omaha Burke will direct the South team for this year's all-star contest Aug. 15 at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

They may have inherited an unwanted label. The South again looms the favorite to defeat the North, coached by Jim Morrison of Howells and assisted by Ed Colleran of Spalding Academy.

Three Sunday Journal and Star Super Staters and nine first team all-staters dot the South lineup.

The North roster features one Super Stater and five first team all-state choices. The Yankees, therefore, lack the South identity. But they again hope to offer the best all-star unit in terms on balance and teamwork.

Guard Clayton Bullard and forward John C. Johnson are Super State selections from state Class A champion Omaha Central on the South roster. Omaha Burke's Rob Hayner is the other Rebel Super Stater.

Class B all-staters Mark Etzelmiller of Minden, Denis Lessor of Auburn and Doug Sweeney of Aurora, Class C all-staters Russ Andersen of Wilber and Evan Schnegelberger of Geneva and Class D all-stater Bill Anderson of Shickley cracked the South lineup.

Seward's Vic Streufert and Omaha Westside's Hughes Wilcox, a pair of second team all-state choices, and McCook's 6-7 John Kugler also were named to the South team by the coaches and a 16-man all-star committee.

Creighton Prep's 6-7 Dave Wesely is the Super Stater headlining the North team selections.

Class A all-stater Bruce Kucera of North Platte, Class B all-stater Chuck Haupt of Sidney and Class C all-staters Pete Tipton of Hartington and Bill Ourada of Elm Creek lend solid support to the North cause.

Terry O'Doherty of Class A Creighton Prep, Glenn Randel of Class B West Point Central Catholic and Tim Lamb of Class D Clarks were second team all-state choices.

Omaha Tech's Howard Cotton, Columbus' Lowell Greenwall, Columbus Scotus' Gregg Grubaugh and North Platte's Bob Von Behren are North all-star selections who gained honor roll all-state status.

The 1975 game marks the first year that no Lincoln players were named to compete in the all-star game. The favored team has failed to win in the first six games.

The South training camp opens Aug. 7 at Kearney State College. The North all-stars will train at Wayne State College.

Brewers Limited To Just One Hit

By Associated Press

Oakland pitchers combined to hold the Milwaukee Brewers to just one hit—an infield single—and Reggie Jackson broke out of his spring slump with four hits as the A's crushed the Brewers 9-1 Tuesday in exhibition baseball.

Mike Norris pitched the first five innings, walking seven and striking out three. Rollie Fingers and Blue Moon Odom completed the game. Milwaukee scored its lone run in the sixth on Charlie Moore's sacrifice fly.

In other exhibition games it was Cincinnati 8, New York Mets 2; Houston 3, St. Louis 2; Montreal 9, Minnesota 5; Baltimore 4, Texas 3; Atlanta 4, New York Yankees 1; Los Angeles 11, San Francisco 7; Chicago Cubs 4, San Diego 2; Oakland 9, Milwaukee 1; and Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh split a doubleheader, the White Sox winning the opener 4-1 and the Pirates taking the nightcap 6-3.

The White Sox snapped a six-game losing streak behind Wilbur Wood's five-hit pitching in the seven-inning first game, but Pittsburgh won the nightcap as pitcher Wayne Simpson doubled home three runs in the six-run second inning.

A 19-hit attack by Cincinnati, led by home runs by Ed Armbrister and Tony Perez, powered the Reds past the Mets. Jose Cruz hit a two-run homer in the seventh, then scored the winning run in the ninth as Houston edged St. Louis. Rookie Gary Carter drove in three runs with a home run and double as the Expos defeated Minnesota.

Baltimore edged Texas in the 11th inning on a bad-hop single by Bobby Grich. Home runs by Tommy Davis and Lee May accounted for the first two Baltimore runs.

A bases-loaded double by Dusty Baker in the eighth inning broke a 1-1 tie and lifted Atlanta past the Yankees. Catfish Hunter went the first seven innings for New York but the winning rally was scored off reliever Mike Wallace.

Willie McCovey's two-run homer and Ron Davis' triple gave San Diego a victory over the Cubs. Two triples by Dave Lopes, one coming in a threerun third, lifted Los Angeles past San Francisco.

University of Arizona sophomore Pete Van Horne hit a bases-loaded double in the ninth as the Wildcats upset the Cleveland Indians 6-5.

Boston ripped three Detroit pitchers for 13 hits and cashed in on Luke Walker's wild streak for a 9-0 victory over Detroit. Bernie Carbo and Rick Miller hit three-run homers and Red Sox pitchers Bill Lee, Diego Segui and Dick Pole fashioned a six-hitter.

Pheasants Harmed By Blizzard

Alliance — Nebraska's Panhandle pheasant population was apparently hit hard by the recent blizzard, according to officials at the Game and Parks Commission's Alliance Office.

Richard Fuley, the Commission's supervisor of law enforcement for the Panhandle, said numerous reports of pheasant mortality have been received at his office. One farmer estimated that he lost half of the pheasants on his farm.

"Pheasants must face into the wind to prevent ice from forming under their feathers, and they suffocate when ice blocks their mouths and nostrils," Fuley said.

Most of the pheasants found after such storms in the past had balls of ice formed over their bills and breathing passages.

Gary Schlichtemeier, field supervisor for the Commission's Resource Services Division, counted 10 dead pheasants and numerous other species of birds dead or near death while checking on livestock in the Alliance area over the weekend.

"With county roads still blocked, and many areas completely closed, it is hard to get a good estimate of the pheasant kill. But, from every indication I've seen, there is no doubt that the mortality was high," he said.

Ironically, it was the shelterbelts and road ditches, normally the best cover available, that drifted over first.

Sailboat Classes To Begin Monday

Classes in beginning sailboating will be offered on six consecutive Monday nights starting Monday at 7 p.m. at the Lincoln School of Commerce.

A nominal fee will be charged for the class to be taught by Lincolnite Ernie French, the 1974 Nebraska laster champion.

Patriettes Eye Title, Former 'Kids' Foes

Gallup, N.M. (AP) — George Nicodemus hopes his John F. Kennedy College team can win it all at the Women's National AAU basketball tournament.

But he says if that doesn't happen he hopes some of his kids will cart away the big prize. Nicodemus' "kids" are former players he coached at John F. Kennedy, who have since graduated and moved on to play for other women's AAU squads.

Nicodemus' 1975 club is the No. 3 seed in the tourney. He guilded his 1972 and 1973 teams to the championship and finished second last year to this year's tourney favorite, the Flying Queens from Wayland Baptist College in Plainview, Tex.

JFK, Wayland and the other six top-seeded teams had first-found byes on Tuesday. But Nicodemus saw some familiar faces on the hardcourt as 14 former JFK players, including his wife, are on four teams participating in the 24-team field.

"I'd like to see them succeed," Nicodemus, the JFK coach for five years, said of his former players. "But I sure don't want to get beat by them."

He then added, "But, if we can't win it all, I'd like to see some of my kids win it. I shouldn't say 'my kids' now that they have graduated," he laughed, "but I guess that's the way all coaches feel about their players."

The Omaha, Neb., club has seven former JFK players and the host Gallup Cathedral squad has five while the New York City and Raytown, Mo., entries each have one, Nicodemus said.

Cage Clinics Set At NWU

Three basketball clinics will be offered during the summer sports program at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Boys who will be in grades six, seven and eight next fall may participate in a five-day clinic June 9-13, according to Dr. Irvin L. Peterson, head basketball coach at NWU.

A clinic for boys in grades three, four and five next fall is planned for June 18-20 while boys in grades 9-12 will be able to participate in a clinic set for July 7-11.

Each session is limited to 40 boys, Peterson said, with instruction to be provided in game fundamentals and rules, practice skills, conditioning exercises and competition.

In addition, a cheerleader clinic will be held on the NWU campus June 1-5. That clinic will be offered in cooperation with the National Cheerleader Association.

Knights Tip Oilers, 6-4

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Omaha's Knights turned back the Tulsa Oilers, 6-4, Tuesday night and severely dampened Tulsa's hopes of making the Central Hockey League playofks.

Fort Worth, a 4-3 victor over Denver, tied the Oilers for third place in the southern division. A Fort Worth victory or tie in Denver Wednesday, while the Oilers are idle, would give the final playoff berth to the Texans.

Bob Law scored twice for the Knights, as they ended their series with Tulsa on a decisive 9-1 note. Other Omaha goals were by John Huber, Pat Ribble, Glenn Surbey and Jerry Byers.

Ray DeLorenzi and Murray Myers put the Oilers ahead twice in the first period, but Law and Ribble scored on long screen shots 42 seconds apart to put the Knights ahead to stay. Bob Barlow got the third Tulsa goal while the Knights werestwo men short near the end of the middle period. Garry Larivere scored for the Oilers in the third period.

The Oilers outshot the Knights 52-27, but Omaha's goal keeping tandem of John Voss and George Hulme played brilliantly. Hulme relieved Voss at the start of the final period to give the regular goalie some rest.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

"Your understanding of Pisces is amazing. You comprehend the Neptunian aspects of the character. Your insights into the psychology of this zodiacal symbol are to be envied." — Anais Nin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on how you relate to those in authority, including professional superiors. You find you have plenty in common with those who appeared to be distant. You are going to collect favors due.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with long trip, communication from afar, higher education. Spread wings. Refuse to be painted into corner. Open lines of communication. Bridge generation, language gaps. You can do it!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Dig beneath surface indications. Get real story, especially where finances are concerned. Partner, mate and taxes are spotlighted. Thorough approach rings bell. What was a mystery can be solved — and resolved. You'll comprehend!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent is on what happens in legal area. Take nothing for granted. Be positive your statements are being properly interpreted. One who apparently opposes you is sending secret peace signal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Low-key approach is best — avoid ruffling feathers of one associated with employment. Make adjustments, concessions. Family member expresses appreciation for past favors. Learn to accept compliment without kicking toe in sand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romance could create illusions. Enjoy, but protect yourself in clinches. You know what should be done — the doing, however, is something else. Change, variety, intensified relationships are highlighted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get low-down, inside information. You are able to close deal, to finish what you start. What was a logjam boomerangs to your advantage. Another Libran could figure prominently. Your questions are going to be answered.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Relatives take initiative and may appear aggressive. Key is to hold your ground — and to maintain sense of humor. Gossip should not be accorded dignity of serious consideration. Key now is to finish, to distribute and publicize. Get ideas on paper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on personal possessions, right to buy and sell, title to deed and special clauses. Speak up in your own behalf. Delegating duties now would be an error. One who makes grand gesture may have petty motive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get what you request. Know it and be selective. One who is in responsible position is willing to make room for you at top. Cycle is high and your judgment is on target. Know it and proceed toward goal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Special event for benefit of charitable organization could be featured. You are active as active participant, spokesman. Hospital, institution could be in picture. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You do some revising, tearing down for purpose of rebuilding on a more solid base. Emphasis is on romance, friends, desires and reward from business or professional efforts. Read between the lines — be aware of fine print.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, moody and you are getting proverbial second chance now, with July and September indicated as outstanding months for you in 1975. Cancer, Capricorn persons play significant roles in your life. You enter new phase of activity this year and you will have chance for greater self-expression.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Trainer Von Hemel Wins Fonner's Daily Double

Grand Island — Fonner Park's leading trainer, Don Von Hemel, saddled both winners of Tuesday's daily double.

He scored in the opening race with C.K. Bland's Wild Colonial Boy, who tallied a $5.40 payoff for jockey Dave King while M.C. Graber's Political Party won at a $4.60 return for jockey Dave Pettinger in the second.

The double returned a paltry $13.00.

In the feature race, the Kansas City Racing Stable's Meadow Duel scored a wire-to-wire verdict over nine foes for his first victory in four starts this year.

Ridden by Ken Jones, the 4-year-old gelding won by 1½ lengths over W.A. Morris' Rough Kid in a time of 1:18 4-5 — just 3-5ths of a second off the track record for 6½ furlongs.

"I'm sure there are other applications on the way," he said.

AP's Final Poll Picks UCLA No. 1 Club

By Associated Press

UCLA, which made Coach John Wooden's farewell to college basketball a memorable one by beating Kentucky 92-85 for the NCAA championship, is the No. 1 team in the nation according to The Associated Press' final poll of the 1974-75 season.

But the vote was not unanimous.

The Bruins, winners of the collegiate championship in 10 of the past 12 years, received 45½ of 49 first place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. UCLA's total of 969 points gave the Bruins first place by a wide margin over runnerup Kentucky, which pulled down 830 points in the balloting announced Tuesday.

UCLA, which finished its season with a 28-3 record, succeeds North Carolina State, No. 1 in the final poll last year. It is the seventh time UCLA has finished in the top spot, all in the past 12 years under Wooden, who announced last weekend his retirement from coaching after a total of 40 seasons. The Bruins also have finished second in the poll three times in the past 12 years.

North Carolina State had been picked No. 1 in the preseason poll, with UCLA No. 2.

Trailing Kentucky, 26-5, in the balloting was Indiana, which finished the regular season undefeated but lost 92-90 to Kentucky in the NCAA Mideast Regionals. The Hoosiers collected 2½ first-place votes and 787 points.

One voter, Hubert Mizell, sports editor of the St. Petersburg Times, listed his top four in order as Syracuse, Indiana, Kentucky and UCLA, saying that he voted for them in reverse order of their finish in the NCAA playoffs "in protest over The AP's holding a ballot after the legitimate championship tournament."

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press' final 1974-75 major college basketball poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1

Bucks Still Alive For Playoff Spot

By Associated Press

The Milwaukee Bucks, with reserve Mickey Davis sparking a fourth-quarter surge, defeated the Detroit Pistons 98-91 Tuesday night to keep their slender National Basketball Association playoff hopes alive.

The Chicago Bulls moved a notch closer to wrapping up the Midwest Division championship in the NBA with a 98-93 victory over the Buffalo Braves.

Earl Monroe and Walt Frazier combined for 47 points and triggered a New York comeback that helped the Knicks beat Philadelphia 99-95, enhancing their NBA playoff chances.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points and reserve George Thompson added 18, 10 in the second half, for the Bucks, who snapped a skid of seven defeats in their last eight games.

However, one Detroit victory or one Milwaukee defeat still would clinch a playoff berth for the Pistons and eliminate the Bucks from postseason play for the first time since their expansion season of 1968-69.

The Pistons have two games left and the Bucks three, including another meeting Saturday at Detroit. But Detroit can clinch a berth by beating Chicago Wednesday night.

The lead changed hands six times in the third quarter until a hook by Abdul-Jabbar and a driving layup and jump shot by Thompson put the Bucks ahead 72-67 going into the final period.

The Pistons came back to lead 85-84, but the Bucks retaliated with a 10-2 spurt to take permanent command. A jump shot by Thompson ignited the surge.

Dave Bing, effectively driving the lane against the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar, and Mengelt, bombing from outside, each poured in 10 points as the Pistons opened a 34-25 lead after one quarter.

The Bucks retaliated with 10 points in a row, including two driving layups by Thompson, in the first 2:13 of the second period to grab a one-point lead.

However, Porter sank three jump shots as the Pistons built a seven-point advantage and led 50-49 at the half.

The victory gave the Knicks a 39-40 record and a one-half game lead over idle Cleveland in the battle for the fifth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

New York has three games remaining and could clinch a playoff berth by beating the Cavaliers at Cleveland Thursday night Cleveland has two games left.

Monroe led the Knicks with 26 points, including their last two field goals in the closing minutes, and Frazier finished with 21, including the field goal that put New York ahead for good 91-89 with 2:51 remaining.

John Gianelli and Bill Bradley each scored 16 points for New York, Phil Jackson added 12 and Harthorne Wingo came off the bench to trigger the Knicks' fast break that enabled them to overcome an early 16-point Philadelphia lead.

Fred Carter topped the 76ers with 23 points, Billy Cunningham scored 22 and Leroy Ellis and Doug Collins each colelcted 19.

The Bulls got a 24-point performance from Chet Walker and a clutch tip-in by Tom Boerwinkle in the last two minutes to snap a three-game losing streak and end Buffalo's five-game winning streak.

Chicago is two games in front of Kansas City-Omaha with only three games left to play.

Two free throws by Chicago's Rowland Garrett with 4:32 remaining broke an 85-85 deadlock and the Bulls scored six more points and stayed on the top the rest of the way.

Jim McMillian scored two field goals for Buffalo, drawing the Braves close, but Boerwinkle's tip-in came with 1.36 left. The Bulls then used free throws to wrap up the victory.

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo led all scorers with 36 points. Garrett came off the bench and scored 16 for Chicago.

Young Kevin Kummert and veteran Rudy Tomjanovich combined for 53 points, sparking the hot-shooting Houston Rockets to a 113-104 victory over the Atlanta Hawks and virutally clinching an NBA playoff spot with a third straight win.

Houston leads Cleveland by one game for the second place spot in the NBA Central Division with one game to play.

Elvin Hayes and Nick Weatherspoon combined for 57 points and 27 rebounds to lead the Washington Bullets to a 110-101 victory over the New Orelans Jazz.

Hayes scored 33 points and pulled down 13 rebounds while Weatherspoon came off the bench to score 24 points and grab 14 rebounds as the Bullets boosted their record to 57-21, the best in the NBA

The team with the best record gets $80.000 in bonus money, while the runner-up gets $30,000 — a difference that works out to $4.500 a player. The Boston Celtics are second with a 57-22 record.

New Orleans got 19 points from Pete Maravich and 17 from E. C. Coleman but couldn't regain hhe lead even though it came close several times.

The Jazz is now 23-57, the fourth best record for an expansion team in NBA history.

Norton Predicts He'll Fight Ali

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Boxer Ken Norton predicted Tuesday that he would fight heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali within the year.

Ali "is not anxious to fight me, but he will," Norton said. "He won't fight bums much longer," referring to New Jersey liquor salesman Chuck Wepner, whom Ali toyed with for 15 rounds in Cleveland March 24 before knocking him out.

On that same night, Norton battered fellow Californian Jerry Quarry and stopped him in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden in New York

Sports Events Weather Victim

The cold and snow forced cancellations and postponements of several sports events Tuesday for Nebraska, Nebraska Wesleyan and area high schools.

The Huskers' doubleheader with Morningside, Iowa, College's baseball team was cancelled. NU's next scheduled games are Friday when Oklahoma State comes to Lincoln.

The Plainsmen's double header with UNO was postponed until April 10 at Frecke Field in Papillion at 2 p m.

NWU's next games are set for Thursday at Sherman Field at 3 p.m. against Peru State.

The Lincoln Pius X boys were suppose to compete in a track triangular with Norris and Syracuse, Northeast girls were scheduled at Papillion in track and the Thunderbolt baseball team was slated to play at Omaha Holy Name.

Who Will Succeed Wooden At UCLA?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Now the big question. Who will succeed the Wizard of Westwood? Who will try to carry on the legend of John Wooden?

As the UCLA Bruins went home to Los Angeles Tuesday, their 10th NCAA title secure and their phenomenal little coach no longer at the helm, Athletic Director J. D. Morgan said he would have an announcement soon on a successor for Wooden.

In Memphis, Tenn., a newspaper, the Press-Scimitar, said UCLA has been in touch with Illinois Coach Gene Bartow. "The word here is that he (Bartow) has the inside track" on Wooden's job, the newspaper said.

Bartow coached four years at Memphis State, compiling an 82-32 record and taking the Tigers to the NCAA final game in 1973, where they lost to—who else?—Wooden and UCLA. Bartow moved to Illinois this year, where his team had an 8-18 record.

There are reports here that Morgan, who realizes no man can replace Wooden, already has decided on a replacement.

Regardless, the Bruins and Wooden could bask in another of their finest hours, a 10th national championship in 12 years, one which came 92-85 over a physical Kentucky team that gave UCLA all it wanted.

But in the end, it was Wooden's virtuoso performance, and the skill with which his final class executed it, that made the difference.

"There was no way that we were going to lose the coach's last game," said guard Andre McCarter, who had 14 assists and ran the tempo of the game the way Wooden wanted it—first fast, then slow, then fast again. It kept the Bruins one step ahead of the Wildcats.

Wooden used just six players to Kentucky's 10, defying the Wildcats' muscle and depth with muscle, quickness, condition and finesse. Dave Meyers, Rich Washington, Pete Trgovich and McCarter played all 40 minutes. No Kentucky player did, and the experts would have told you that would wear UCLA down.

The Bruins' single substitute—7-foot-1 Ralph Drollinger—played 16 minutes. But Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall thought he was the key man Drollinger had 10 points and 13 rebounds—more than offsetting the Wildcats' three 6-10 freshmen centers, who were not a major factor.

"When Ralph plays tall, so do we," said Meyers And the Bruins front line, which also included Washington, did just that, combining for 62 points and 36 rebounds.

"I never got tired," said McCarter. "There was just too much at stake. I'm sure Coach Wooden is a large part of the reason. He told us his leaving should have nothing to do with the game. But, well, he's such a great person "

The emotion of the game became most evident to the 15,153 who packed the San Diego Sports Arena when Meyers fouled Kevin Grevey. Meyers banged his hand on the floor and was slapped with a technical.

Wooden was furious, shouting madly for some time at official Hank Nichols. His team's 10-point lead had been cut to one at 76-75 and now Kentucky had a chance for five points—the free throws plus possession.

They got none. Grevey, who had 34 points, missed the free throws and his team committed an offensive foul before it could get a shot off.

"I was upset on the call because I felt Grevey went under me as I got off a shot," said Meyers, whose 24 points were second for the Bruins to Washington's 28.

But the key was Drollinger, who said he guessed he'd picked the right time "to put it on again. I'm an introspective person Coach Wooden didn't have to tell me to go in and play as hard as I could for as long as I could. He didn't have to tell any of us that."

NU Gymnasts Seeking Crown

Terre Haute, Ind. (AP) — Indiana State University has a solid opportunity to win the 33rd NCAA gymnastics championships this week.

Coach Roger Counsil's squad heads the eight-team field that includes defending national champion Iowa State, Louisiana State, four-time winner Southern Illinois, California, Arizona State, Nebraska and Michigan.

Doug Griffith and Kurt Thomas of Indiana State will be among the top all-around contenders when the three-day meet gets under way Thursday with preliminary compulsories.

Optional preliminary action will be Friday, with team title competition Saturday afternoon and individual finals Saturday night.

The Sycamores, ranked No. 1 most of the year, have been one of the nation's most consistent teams, averaging 216 11 points in 15 dual meets

Iowa State, which has won the meet the past two years and captured 54 straight dual meets, qualified 10 individuals, including defending NCAA rings champion Keith Heaver.

Louisiana State, winner of 12 straight dual meets this season and 35 of its last 36, turned in the top NCAA qualifying score this season at 431.45.

Southern Illinois, which last won the NCAA in 1972, will be without all-around favorite Jim Ivicek, who broke his arm last week in a fall from the high bar.

California finished third last year, behind Iowa State and Arizona State, and returns All-America Mark Lundy in the rings

Arizona State has seven individuals in 12 qualifying spots, including All-Americas Gary Alexander in floor exercise, L.J. Larson in pommel horse and Rick Curtis on rings.

Nebraska, who like Southern Illinois qualified despite a second-place conference finish, are led by versatile Gene Mackie and specialist Jim Unger.

'Jinxed' South Favored Again As Prep All-Star Rosters Picked

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Jinx, hex, spell, whatever you call it. The North holds something over the South in the Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star High School Basketball Game.

The South has been favored, sometimes heavily so, the past four summers. But each time the North has manufactured an upset win to take a 4-2 lead in the all-star series.

Lincoln Pius X coach Don Kelley and assistant John Johnette of Omaha Burke will direct the South team for this year's all-star contest Aug. 15 at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium

They may have inherited an unwanted label. The South again looms the favorite to defeat the North, coached by Jim Morrison of Howells and assisted by Ed Colleran of Spalding Academy.

Three Sunday Journal and Star Super Staters and nine first team all-staters dot the South lineup.

The North roster features one Super Stater and five first team all-state choices. The Yankees, therefore, lack the South identity. But they again hope to offer the best all-star unit in terms on balance and teamwork.

Guard Clayton Bullard and forward John C. Johnson are Super State selections from state Class A champion Omaha Central on the South roster. Omaha Burke's Rob Hayner is the other Rebel Super Stater.

Class B all-staters Mark Etzelmiller of Minden, Denis Lessor of Auburn and Doug Sweeney of Aurora, Class C all-staters Russ Andersen of Wilber and Evan Schnegelberger of Geneva and Class D all-stater Bill Anderson of Shickley cracked the South lineup.

Seward's Vic Streufert and Omaha Westside's Hughes Wilcox, a pair of second team all-state choices, and McCook's 6-7 John Kugler also were named to the South team by the coaches and a 16-man all-star committee.

Creighton Prep's 6-7 Dave Wesely is the Super Stater headlining the North team selections.

Class A all-stater Bruce Kucera of North Platte, Class B all-stater Chuck Haupt of Sidney and Class C all-staters Pete Tipton of Hartington and Bill Ourada of Elm Creek lend solid support to the North cause.

Terry O'Doherty of Class A Creighton Prep, Glenn Randel of Class B West Point Central Catholic and Tim Lamb of Class D Clarks were second team all-state choices.

Omaha Tech's Howard Cotton, Columbus' Lowell Greenwall, Columbus Scotus' Gregg Grubaugh and North Platte's Bob Von Behren are North all-star selections who gained honor roll all-state status.

The 1975 game marks the first year that no Lincoln players were named to compete in the all-star game. The favored team has failed to win in the first six games.

The South training camp opens Aug. 7 at Kearney State College. The North all-stars will train at Wayne State College.

Alternative Lifestyles Confronted By Women

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Not all women are truck-driving lesbians. Not all women are no-mind homebodies.

There are any number of ways of women to live, as was evidenced Tuesday by a panel discussion on alternative lifestyles for women in Lincoln.

Suzanne Brown has a pleasant marriage, children, a four-bedroom house in the suburbs and a career.

Lanelle Fredrickson has her 6-year-old daughter, will soon have a divorce and later a college degree.

Vivian Bowman and Betty Leviton have husbands, two children, and the same home, "a big old house on the wrong side of O St."

Sheila Collins and her daughter Corinne have a communal living arrangment in one house — and an "annex", where the nuclear Collins family lived earlier.

All of the members of the panel assembled for Women/Speak, the series of continuing programs on women sponsored by the Student Y, had positive things to say about their style of living.

Suzanne Brown, although characterizing her lifestyle as traditional, noted that in some ways her life does not fit that mold.

She is in her second marriage. She has a career, sometimes taking trips out of town. She splits many household chores with her husband. She pays the bills.

The thing she and her husband enjoy most, she said, is begin alone together, drinking wine and talking.

"I don't think marriage will die," she said, adding that it is a choice fewer people should take, and only after serious consideration of alternatives.

Lanelle Fredrickson, married seven years, is now in the process of getting a divorce.

"I'm still going through the adjustments you have to make," she said. "The biggest change is the way I have to deal with my daughter."

"Our lifestyle, although it's not the most stable, is probably the best thing we have going," she said.

Betty Leviton and Vivian Bowman and their husbands have lived together for three years. Three children later (the Bowmans already had one) they are still happy.

They decided to move in together after they experienced loneliness and disillusionment when they returned from Peace Corps stints in Africa, where they had grown accustomed to "people dropping by all the time."

Sheila Collins now experimenting with communal living, said she, like the Bowmans and Levitons, was friendless after moving to Lincoln. "Talk about isolation, its unbelievable when you don't have any grandparents, aunts or uncles around."

"I decided Margaret Mead (a distinguished anthropologist) was right," she said. "There aren't enough parents to take care of the children. In our own family we were outnumbered" by three children.

"In our house on A Street a number of people are attempting to live together. The problem is my husband is not interested in living with a lot of people. So it's kind of an alternative to marriage and alternative to divorce."

Pheasants Harmed By Blizzard

Alliance — Nebraska s Panhandle pheasant population was apparently hit hard by the recent blizzard, according to officials at the Game and Parks Commission s Alliance Office

Richard Fuley, the Commission s supervisor of law enforcement for the Panhandle, said numerous reports of pheasant mortality have been received at his office One farmer estimated that he lost half of the pheasants on his farm

"Pheasants must face into the wind to prevent ice from forming under their feathers, and they suffocate when ice blocks their mouths and nostrils," Fuley said

Most of the pheasants found after such storms in the past had balls of ice formed over their bills and breathing passages

Gary Schlichtemeier, field supervisor for the Commission s Resource Services Division, counted 10 dead pheasants and numerous other species of birds dead or near death while checking on livestock in the Alliance area over the weekend

With county roads still blocked and many areas completely closed it is hard to get a good estimate of the pheasant kill But from every indication I've seen there is no doubt that the mortality was high he said

Ironically it was the shelterbelts and road ditches, normally the best cover available that drifted over first

Patriettes Eye Title, Former 'Kids' Foes

Gallup, N M (AP) — George Nicodemus hopes his John F Kennedy College team can win it all at the Women's National AAU basketball tournament

But he says if that doesn't happen he hopes some of his kids will cart away the big prize Nicodemus' "kids" are former players he coached at John F Kennedy, who have since graduated and moved on to play for other women's AAU squads

Nicodemus' 1975 club is the No 3 seed in the tourney He guided his 1972 and 1973 teams to the championship and finished second last year to this year's tourney favorite, the Flying Queens from Wayland Baptist College in Plainview, Tex

JFK, Wayland and the other six top-seeded teams had first-round byes on Tuesday But Nicodemus saw some familiar faces on the hardcourt as 14 former JFK players, including his wife, are on four teams participating in the 24-team field

"I'd like to see them succeed," Nicodemus, the JFK coach for five years, said of his former players "But I sure don't want to get beat by them"

He then added, "But, if we can't win it all, I'd like to see some of my kids win it I shouldn't say 'my kids' now that they have graduated," he laughed, "but I guess that's the way all coaches feel about their players"

The Omaha, Neb , club has seven former JFK players and the host Gallup Cathedral squad has five while the New York City and Raytown, Mo , entries each have one, Nicodemus said

Knights Tip Oilers, 6-4

TULSA, Okla (AP)— Omaha's Knights turned back the Tulsa Oilers, 6-4, Tuesday night and severely dampened Tulsa's hopes of making the Central Hockey League playoffs

Fort Worth, a 4-3 victor over Denver, tied the Oilers for third place in the southern division A Fort Worth victory or tie in Denver Wednesday, while the Oilers are idle, would give the final playoff berth to the Texans

Bob Law scored twice for the Knights, as they ended their series with Tulsa on a decisive 9-1 note Other Omaha goals were by John Huber, Pat Ribble, Glenn Surbey and Jerry Byers

Ray DeLorenzi and Murray Myers put the Oilers ahead twice in the first period, but Law and Ribble scored on long screen shots 42 seconds apart to put the Knights ahead to stay Bob Barlow got the third Tulsa goal while the Knights werestwo men short near the end of the middle period Garry Larivere scored for the Oilers in the third period

The Oilers outshot the Knights 52-27, but Omaha's goal keeping tandem of John Voss and George Hulme played brilliantly Hulme relieved Voss at the start of the final period to give the regular goalie some rest

Agencies Collide On Vitek Payment

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Two state agencies are taking opposing views on the question of reimbursing job applicants for travel expenses.

The question arose when State Corrections Director Joseph Vitek was listed as a "consultant" and paid $263 for coming to Lincoln on April 20, 1974 to interview for his present position.

State Auditors took exception to that expenditure and have told Vitek to return the money to the state.

Vitek was apparently ready to return the expense money when the State Department of Administrative Services (DAS) was informed by a reporter what the auditors told Vitek.

OK To Be Asked

DAS Director Stan Matzke said Tuesday he will write Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson and ask him to allow the payment since the state asked Vitek to come for the interview.

Auditors, somewhat ironically, are relying on a DAS memorandum dated May 2, 1972 to ask for repayment.

That memo, written by Gus Lieske, Matzke's predecessor, said:

"Designated state employes are entitled to reimbursement to interview prospective employes for expenses, but not for meals or any other expenses of applicants.

'No Provision'

"At present there is no provision in the statutes of the state providing for payment of any expenses incurred by a prospective employe while interviewing with the State of Nebraska."

The voucher covered Vitek's plane ticket to and from Boston's Logan International Airport, meals, one night's motel bill and car rental.

However, instead of listing Vitek as a prospective employe, the voucher said he was a corrections consultant. The voucher was signed by Vitek and approved by Acting Corrections Director Donald Best and DAS.

Vitek said he typed in the consultant designation, but he said he does not remember whether it was his or someone else's suggestion to include it. Vitek said at the time he did not know a prospective employe could not be reimbursed for expenses.

Doesn't Remember

Best, now director of the Youth Development Center at Geneva, said he does not remember where the direction came from to list Vitek as a consultant.

Matzke said he was not aware of the 1972 memo and noted that there is no state law banning such reimbursement.

Travel expenses for other job applicants have been paid by the state, reportedly including the University of Nebraska.

"If a man comes in on his own volition to apply for a job, I don't feel we have to pay his expenses," Matzke said. "But if he comes at our request, I feel we should pay his expenses."

If the state is going to attract quality personnel, Matzke said the state should be willing to pay the expenses of certain applicants to come to interview.

Service To State

John Jacobson, DAS budget administrator, said the prospective employe's expenses should be borne by the state because he is actually performing a service to the state.

Matzke said the consultant designation was not an attempt to hide anything, but was probably used for lack of a better description.

Matzke said he believes a recent applicant for the post of state institutions director also had his travel expenses paid. The applicant was not hired.

As for the 1972 memo, Matzke said, "I think I'll probably revise it."

College Grad Numbers To Exceed Suitable Jobs

The number of college graduates will exceed the number of jobs requiring their skills by about 800,000 between now and 1985, according to projections from the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

As a result, the bureau says, college graduates are "likely to obtain jobs previously held by individuals with less than four years of college," according to the newspaper, "The Chronicle of Higher Education."

"Problems for college graduates will more likely be employment below the level of skill for which they were trained, resulting in job dissatisfaction and high occupational mobility, rather than unemployment," the breau predicts.

It adds, however, that "the availability of more college-trained workers is expected to have an adverse effect on many of the less-educated. It is likely to mean that, in the future, workers with less than a college education will have less chance of advancing to professional positions . . ."

The bureau's estimates are included in "Occupational Manpower and Training Needs, Revised 1974," which projects demand from various works from 1972 to 1985.

The bureau estimates that 15.3 million people with BA or higher degrees will be looking for jobs over the period. The total includes 11.2 million new bachelor's-degree recipients, 1.2 million new MAs, 770,000 new recipients of doctorates or first professional degrees, and 2.1 million women and persons leaving military service who have college training.

Over the same period, the bureau predicts, 14.5 million jobs requiring college-level training will be available. That total includes 7.7 million new positions and 6.8 million that will open up because of deaths and retirements.

UMA Trustees Back Course Development

The University of Mid-America's three chief governing and advisory bodies agreed Tuesday the regional "open-learning" consortium should develop a "significant number of courses" of high quality as quickly as possible, while maintaining low costs to students.

The UMA Board of Trustees, the National Council of Advisors and the Academic Council concluded two days of meetings in Lincoln Tuesday. Members represent five Midwest universities participating in the multimedia college-at-home project, and include regional and national leaders.

Themes that emerged for UMA staff to give priority attention include developing mass consumption and use of UMA-produced learning opportunities, and ensuring that courses developed and offered respond continually to the citizenry's actual needs.

There was also general agreement among the officials that UMA shouldn't expect tuition and external revenue (such as federal money and foundation grants) to support the entire program, and that there should be state subsidies to the four states' course delivery systems.

The board and council members, noting the diversity of media and methods available to develop the course delivery systems, agreed it's important they be unique to each of the states and their residents' needs.

Frisco Chronicle Raises Price

San Francisco — The San Francisco Chronicle, the city's only general morning daily newspaper, said it is raising its monthly subscription price to $6.25 from $5.50, starting immediately.

Newsstand prices are not affected.

The newspaper linked the boost to a "recent sharp increase in the cost of newsprint."

The Chronicle publishes independently six days a week, and on Sundays its staff edits some sections that are included in the Sunday San Francisco Examiner, a Hearst Corp.-owned afternoon newspaper here. The Examiner hasn't yet announced any monthly subscription price increase from the current $5.50.

Trainer Von Hemel Wins Fonner's Daily Double

Grand Island — Fonner Park's leading trainer, Don Von Hemel, saddled both winners of Tuesday's daily double.

He scored in the opening race with C.K. Bland's Wild Colonial Boy, who tallied a $5.40 payoff for jockey Dave King while M.C. Graber's Political Party won at a $4.60 return for jockey Dave Pettinger in the second.

The double returned a paltry $13.00.

In the feature race, the Kansas City Racing Stable's Meadow Duel scored a wire-to-wire verdict over nine foes for his first victory in four starts this year.

Ridden by Ken Jones, the 4-year-old gelding won by 1½ lengths over W.A. Morris' Rough Kid in a time of 1:18 4-5 — just 3-5ths of a second off the track record for 6½ furlongs.

Meadow Duel returned $6.60, $4.60 and $3.40. Rough Kid placed for $18.80 and $11.40 while the Golden Key Stable's Double Bourbon showed for $4.60.

AP's Final Poll Picks UCLA No. 1 Club

By Associated Press

UCLA, which made Coach John Wooden's farewell to college basketball a memorable one by beating Kentucky 92-85 for the NCAA championship, is the No. 1 team in the nation according to The Associated Press' final poll of the 1974-75 season.

But the vote was not unanimous.

The Bruins, winners of the collegiate championship in 10 of the past 12 years, received 45½ of 49 first place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. UCLA's total of 969 points gave the Bruins first place by a wide margin over runnerup Kentucky, which pulled down 830 points in the balloting announced Tuesday.

UCLA, which finished its season with a 28-3 record, succeeds North Carolina State, No. 1 in the final poll last year. It is the seventh time UCLA has finished in the top spot, all in the past 12 years under Wooden, who announced last weekend his retirement from coaching after a total of 40 seasons. The Bruins also have finished second in the poll three times in the past 12 years.

North Carolina State had been picked No. 1 in the preseason poll, with UCLA No. 2.

Trailing Kentucky, 26-5, in the balloting was Indiana, which finished the regular season undefeated but lost 92-90 to Kentucky in the NCAA Mideast Regionals. The Hoosiers collected 2½ first-place votes and 787 points.

One voter, Hubert Mizell, sports editor of the St. Petersburg Times, listed his top four in order as Syracuse, Indiana, Kentucky and UCLA, saying that he voted for them in reverse order of their finish in the NCAA playoffs "in protest over The AP's holding a ballot after the legitimate championship tournament."

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press' final 1974-75 major college basketball poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1

Justice Dept. 'At Complete Loss' On Cook Reprimand

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The State Justice Department Tuesday said it is "at a complete loss" to understand how a referee could recommend that G. Bradford Cook only get a reprimand for lying under oath.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Mel Kammerlohr told the Nebraska Supreme Court in a brief released Tuesday that lawyers are held to a higher standard of conduct than the average person. Cook, a Lincoln native and former chairman of the federal Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), breached that code on a number of occasions and should be disbarred or suspended, the brief said.

Cook is charged with lying to a 1973 federal grand jury investigating an illegal contribution to the 1972 campaign of ex-President Richard Nixon.

5 Counts Contested

Cook has acknowledged that incident, saying he made a mistake. However, he has contested five other counts where he is charged with violating the Bar's code of conduct in testimony before congressional committees.

John Kuns, a retired district judge from Kimball, was appointed to act as a referee in a hearing on the subject of disciplinary action.

In his recommendation to the Supreme Court, Juns found Cook guilty only on the first county and said a reprimand, the mildest form of censure, is in order.

"In light of all the foregoing admissions of lying. . .we are at a complete loss to understand how the honorable referee could conclude" that the evidence does not support counts two through six and that Cook's explanations are sufficient, Kammerlohr said.

'Higher Standard'

"As is obvious from the many holdings of the Nebraska Supreme Court a person admitted to practice law in the State of Nebraska is held to a much higher standard than the average individual," he said.

"It would appear that the conduct of (Cook) certainly runs contrary to these standards laid down by the Supreme Court of Nebraska. The finding of (Kuns) that the admitted lie. . .does not come within the Code of Professional Responsibility unless the hearers believed it. .simply does not measure up to the announced standards of this court."

Kammerlohr called Kuns' controversial statement that lawyers cannot be expected to tell the truth at all times "an unfortunate finding" which deserves "no further comment."

Cook's explanation for his testimony is not convicing, Kammerlohr said, in light of the evidence.

U.S. Support Voiced

Aberdeen, Scotland (UPI) — American fisherman sent a message of support to their British colleagues who are blockading ports throughout northeast Britain in protest against the dumping of cut-price fish by foreign boats.

Peace Chief Urges Aid To Rebuild Vietnam

The United States should provide assistance to rebuild Vietnam once the war is concluded, Nebraskans for Peace Coordinator Dick Littleton said Tuesday.

In the meantime, he said, he hopes the U.S. will help organize, "through the international community," efforts to take care of refugees in South Vietnam.

"If we are interested in the welfare of the Vietnamese people, we should get people involved in the effort who have more credibility there than we do," Littleton said.

"The U.S. has no credibility over there anymore."

No further military assistance should be forthcoming from the U.S., Littleton said.

Instead, this nation should concentrate its efforts on humanitarian goals, he suggested, including the repair and rebuilding of Vietnam no matter what the outcome of the war.

"We should most definitely provide assistance to whatever or whoever results," he said.

"I think we have to realize that Vietnam is a country, one country, which needs assistance to overcome the effects the U.S. has had on it in the last 20 years."

International efforts to meet the current refugee problem could be coordinated through the Red Cross or the United Nations, Littleton said.

Marilyn McNabb, a Nebraskans for Peace staff member, suggested that a new U.S. ambassador in Saigon might also be helpful.

Ambassador Graham Martin seems to be tied to President Thieu, she said.

"It might be a good idea to have a new ambassador who could relate to somebody else," she said.

4 States Get $58 Million For Manpower Programs

Kansas City (AP) — The U.S. Labor Department has announced it will allocate at least $58,153,144 in the four-state Mid-America region to the 23 prime sponsors designated to operate manpower programs under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The funds are for the fiscal year beginning July 1 and are for the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.

Richard G. Miskimins, regional head of the Manpower Administration, said the 23 state, county and local government sponsors will now be able to plan local programs of training, work experience, summer youth jobs, job counseling and placement, transitional public service employment and other manpower services for fiscal 1976.

The funding breakdown for Nebraska's $7,752,074 allocation follows: Lincoln city $713,286; Governor's office $3,957,035; and Omaha Consortium $3,081,753.

Energy Forum Is Scheduled

A forum on energy for Nebraska will be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education Tuesday.

"If we in Nebraska are to continue our development and enjoy the good life we must face the question of how to meet our energy needs now and in the future," Gov. J. James Exon said in an invitation sent to prospective participants in the forum.

The program is being jointly sponsored by the State Energy Office and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Engineering and Technology.

Nebraska leaders in public and private sectors of energy production and distribution are being invited to the conference.

Charges Against Youth Dropped

Hastings (AP) — Adams County Atty. Arthur Toogood said Tuesday he has dropped charges against William Snell, 19, of Hastings.

Snell had been charged with two counts of shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim. The charges were filed following a November incident in which Snell and another Hastings man, John D. Clancy, 19, allegedly fired at the homes of a Hastings police detective, and a State Patrol cruiser.

WHY WAS AN X RATED FILM NOMINATED FOR AN ACADEMY AWARD*
Because "TURKISH DELIGHT" is the most real, explicit and tender love story ever filmed.
THE CRITICS AGREE:
"TURKISH DELIGHT isn't the kind of movie they used to nominate for an Oscar. It stacks up as an imported Dutch treat that can be cited for its liberating impact in the same breath with Last Tango in Paris." —Playboy Magazine
"One of the most tempestuous, tumultuous and finally heartbreaking love stories ever filmed, "TURKISH DELIGHT" fervently asserts that life and love are too precious to be stifled by obeisance to convention. A surprisingly liberating and affirmative experience." —Los Angeles Times
"TURKISH DELIGHT blends slashing ribald comedy with romance, pain and rage. It suggests the framework for such films as "The Graduate" and "Love Story"—except TURKISH DELIGHT is incalculably more adventurous, angry, and graphic." —Los Angeles Herald Examiner
"TURKISH DELIGHT is among the most compelling love stories ever recorded on film. An artistic breakthrough." —Hollywood Reporter

Alternative Lifestyles Confronted By Women

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Not all women are truck-driving lesbians. Not all women are no-mind homebodies.

There are any number of ways of women to live, as was evidenced Tuesday by a panel discussion on alternative lifestyles for women in Lincoln.

Suzanne Brown has a pleasant marriage, children, a four-bedroom house in the suburbs and a career.

Lanelle Fredrickson has her 6-year-old daughter, will soon have a divorce and later a college degree.

Vivian Bowman and Betty Leviton have husbands, two children, and the same home, "a big old house on the wrong side of O St."

Sheila Collins and her daughter Corinne have a communal living arrangment in one house — and an "annex", where the nuclear Collins family lived earlier.

All of the members of the panel assembled for Women/Speak, the series of continuing programs on women sponsored by the Student Y, had positive things to say about their style of living.

Suzanne Brown, although characterizing her lifestyle as traditional, noted that in some ways her life does not fit that mold.

She is in her second marriage. She has a career, sometimes taking trips out of town. She splits many household chores with her husband. She pays the bills.

The thing she and her husband enjoy most, she said, is begin alone together, drinking wine and talking.

"I don't think marriage will die," she said, adding that it is a choice fewer people should take, and only after serious consideration of alternatives.

Lanelle Fredrickson, married seven years, is now in the process of getting a divorce.

"I'm still going through the adjustments you have to make," she said. "The biggest change is the way I have to deal with my daughter."

"Our lifestyle, although it's not the most stable, is probably the best thing we have going," she said.

Betty Leviton and Vivian Bowman and their husbands have lived together for three years. Three children later (the Bowmans already had one) they are still happy.

They decided to move in together after they experienced loneliness and disillusionment when they returned from Peace Corps stints in Africa, where they had grown accustomed to "people dropping by all the time."

Sheila Collins now experimenting with communal living, said she, like the Bowmans and Levitons, was friendless after moving to Lincoln. "Talk about isolation, its unbelievable when you don't have any grandparents, aunts or uncles around."

"I decided Margaret Mead (a distinguished anthropologist) was right," she said. "There aren't enough parents to take care of the children. In our own family we were outnumbered" by three children.

"In our house on A Street a number of people are attempting to live together. The problem is my husband is not interested in living with a lot of people. So it's kind of an alternative to marriage and alternative to divorce."

Smoke Still Unsafe

New York (UPI) — The American Lung Association, in a new challenge to the tobacco industry, charged that nonsmokers can inhale unsafe quantities of carbon monoxide from second-hand smoke.

PEO Groups Tab Officers

Several PEO chapters in Lincoln recently elected officers for the 1975-76 year.

Mrs. Kathleen Sayre was elected president of Chapter DL. Other officers are Mrs. Keith Schafer, vice president; Mrs. Lee Liggett, treasurer; Mrs. Norton Warner, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Dunn, corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Pierce, chaplain; and Mrs. Robin Walters, guard.

Mrs. Sayer also will serve as delegate to the state PEO convention and Miss Janet Smith was named alternate.

New preisdent for chapter GV is Mrs. Verne Traudt. The chapter's other new officers include Mrs. William Edgecomb, vice president; Mrs. James Stange, recording secretary; Mrs. William Folger, corresponding; Mrs. Daniel Cuda, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Stear, chaplain; and Mrs. George Brockley, guard.

Mrs. Traudt and Mrs. Edgecomb were named delegate and alternate, respectively, to the state convention.

Helicopters Available To Help Locate Cattle

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Ranchers in snow-stricken western Nebraska Tuesday were told they can obtain assistance in locating lost cattle.

Stockmen with missing animals were advised to contact their Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service county office.

ASCS officials said they will work with Civil Defense personnel to send a helicopter to pick up the rancher and fly over his range searching for missing herds of cattle that strayed downwind in the snowstorms.

New Snow Falls

New snow fell throughout most of Tuesday in the area but fortunately there has been little wind. Snow depths ranged from 2 or 3 inches in the southern area to over 20 inches of new snow in the Bridgeport area.

Terry Shannon at the Alliance ASCS office reported 10 inches of new snow there Tuesday.

"We have six choppers on hand now to aid in finding cattle," Shannon said. "This will help the ranchers who can handle the feeding problems if we can just find these strayed herds for them. The choppers won't feed cattle, just find them."

Shannon reported that many grain bins and even attics of homes were packed full of snow. "They have to shovel it out because if it melts it can ruin walls in homes and entire bins full of grain. We have been on the radio warning everyone of the problem, which they might not suspect if they don't check the buildings," he said.

Cattle Losses 10-20%

Shannon said cattle losses in the area were running from 10% to 15% of the adult cattle and 20% of the small calves.

"Reports from Sioux and Dawes Counties are not quite that bad, but Sheridan County is probably worse than that," he said.

Haven Hendricks at the Meat Animal Research Center at Clay Center said some calves in that area had been lost due to rain, but "nothing like the problems we had in the west."

The ASCS office in Ogallala reported a lot of calves and cows were missing. "The helicopters haven't arrived yet, but we understand they are coming. We have 3 to 4 inches of new snow but no wind. If we don't get wind and do get the choppers I think we will be all right. The moisture sure is welcome," a spokesman at the office said.

49 Head Lost

Clinton Hoefer at the North Platte ASCS office said he had received one report of 49 cattle lost, but added "the ranch has its headquarters here in Lincoln County, but most of the losses were in McPherson and Logan Counties where they also run cattle. The loss was calves. We were pretty lucky here. I understand we are to get one helicopter here. Most of them will be farther west," Hoefer said.

ASCS officials repeatedly praised the National Guard and other agencies for their efforts on behalf of farmers and ranchers in the storm-ravaged area.

2,400 FFA Members Invade Lincoln For Meet

The blue jackets are coming to Lincoln. Officials of the Nebraska Association of the Future Farmers of America estimated that 2,400 of the state's 6,350 members will be in Lincoln throughout the remainder of the week attending the state FFA convention.

In addition to the delegates to the convention, members of the state FFA band and FFA chorus are in Lincoln practicing for their performances.

Along with the convention are dozens of FFA-sponsored contests and the annual vocational agricultural contests.

FFA members come from 136 schools that maintain vocational agriculture classes. Most of the students are boys but there are an increasing number of girls in FFA each year.

The convention will wind up Saturday noon with the election of a new slate of officers.

Accident Victims Identified

Valley — Officials Tuesday released identification of the three Saunders County youths who were killed instantly Monday afternoon in a freak highway accident near Valley.

The dead:
John A. Rosenquist, 17, Ceresco.
Randy L. Kovanda, 20, also of Ceresco.
Paul L. Nichelson, 17, Valparaiso.

Douglas County Deputy Sheriff Wayne Neeley said the eastbound car in which the victims were riding collided with a refrigerated trailer which had broken loose from a westbound truck-tractor. The runaway trailer crossed into the opposite lane of U.S. 275 and the two vehicles collided head on.

Neeley said the top half of the car was ripped off as it passed under the trailer.

The 57-year-old truck driver, Lyle Bicknell of Omaha, escaped injury.

"We'll probably never know who was driving the car," Neeley said.

Meanwhile, funeral arrangements were announced for the youths.

Services for young Nichelson, a Raymond Central High School senior, will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Methodist Church in Valpariaso.

Funeral services for the Rosenquist youth, also a Raymond Central High School senior, are scheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday at Immanuel Lutheran Church at Ceresco.

Services for young Kovanda, formerly of Geneva, will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday at the Farmer and Son Funeral Home in Geneva.

Omaha Emergency Center To Cut Back

Omaha (AP) — Services at the controversial Community Emergency Center on Omaha's near north side will be curtailed by May 1.

Officials said the facility is not generating enough funds to keep itself operating around the clock.

The controversy surrounding the center arose last summer when Immanuel Hospital closed down its old campus to move to a new facility.

Residents in the area of the old campus protested the closing to the Douglas County Board of Commissioners, saying Immanuel was going back on a promise to keep medical facilities in the area until the completion of the new Creighton University-St. Joseph's Hospital, which is now under construction.

The board agreed with the residents, and filed suit.

Immanuel officials responded by opening the emergency center with staff drawn from Creighton University.

The center opened Oct. 28, but by the end of February the funds for the center's first 12 months of operations were gone, officials told the Douglas County Board Tuesday.

Immanuel provided $182,000 in cash and another $70,000 in equipment, remodeling and utilities, according to Dr. Joseph Holthaus, dean of Creighton's medical school.

"At the end of February, we were operating at a $12,000 deficit . . . If the center were to continue operating at that level until Creighton's new hospital opens in 1978, we would face a $837,000 deficit," Holthaus told the board.

Immanuel's operating subsidy has been used up because of the low number of actual emergency cases being handled by the center, the initial starting costs for such a facility and the low collection rate from patients.

Holthaus proposed changes in the hours that the center operates.

He suggested that operations between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. at least be dropped, or possibly moving to a 12-hour daily operation for a 60-day period to assess the financial situation.

The county board did not take action on the report, but Chairman George Buglewicz said he supported the hospital's plan.

Holthaus said he will report back to the board in 60 days.

Free 'Butch & Sundance' To Kick Off Western Days

If you were unfortunate enough to miss one of the zaniest, most entertaining Western films ever on the theater circuit, or would like to catch it again at no cost, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" will kick off the 1975 University of Nebraska-Lincoln Western Days, April 8-12.

The annual event is sponsored by the NU East Campus student organization and the film at 9 p.m. Tuesday begins a week of entertainment that probably would appeal even to the most ardent Eastern city slicker.

Dormitory floor and Greek house residents are encouraged to enter their "best athletes" Wednesday as teams compete for the Western Day games traveling trophy, now held by East Campus' Love Hall. Games are slated at the Tractor Testing Oval.

The events would not be found in the Olympics, but should offer ample excitement to competitors and spectators alike. Beginning at 3 p.m., the curtain draws on a VW race, bale stacking contest, tug o' war, human pyramid and eleven-legged race. A Bar-B-Que sponsored by the East Union hospitality committee, will be served at 5 p.m. Dinner tickets cost $1.50.

A quarter horse show, steer show and rodeo sponsored by the NU Block and Bridle and Rodeo Clubs are scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the State Fairgrounds.

Trucks Collide Near Bristow; 2 People Killed

Bristow (UPI) — Two persons were killed late Tuesday afternoon in the collision of two trucks 1.5 miles west of here on Neb. 12. Boyd County Sheriff Wayne Kenzie identified the victims as Marlin M. Eilers, 20, Bristow, and Janis K. Hoffman, 18, Spencer.

Kenzie said Eilers was the driver of a pickup which ran off the road, then veered back onto the highway and skidded into a truck driven by Frank Reimer of Norfolk. Reimer suffered a broken leg and was hospitalized at Lynch.

Both vehicles were traveling in the same direction, the sheriff said.

He said slippery highway conditions were a contributing factor in the accident.

Scholarships Memorialize Fred Seaton

Hastings (AP) — The establishment of eight Seaton Memorial Communication Scholarships at Hastings College was announced Tuesday by the family of the late Fred A. Seaton.

The scholarships will be funded by memorial gifts made at the time of Seaton's death last year.

The scholarships will be awarded to students studying in the area of communications at Hastings College.

They will be awarded at the rate of $200 during the freshman year, $400 during the sophomore year and $500 in each the junior and senior years.

Seaton came to Hastings in 1937 as publisher of the Hastings Tribune. He was appointed to fill out an unexpired term in the U.S. Senate in 1951 and served 1½ years in the Senate.

NPPD '74 Payments Topped $1 Million

Columbus (UPI) — The Nebraska Public Power District said Tuesday in-lieu-of-tax and 5% revenue tax payments totaling more than $1 million were made to 64 Nebraska counties last year. NPPD said cities and villages served at retail or under lease agreements by NPPD received the majority of the payments. By law, the payments are made in counties where NPPD has property and where cities are served at retail by NPPD. Buffalo County received the largest payment, $146,270, followed by Madison County with $109,740. The smallest payment, $1,067, was made to Morrill County.

Roberts Jr., North Platte, will be sentenced April 14, Lincoln County court officials said Tuesday. Isley was convicted of manslaughter in connection with an incident outside a North Platte tavern March, 1972. Agencies Collide On Vitek Payment

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Two state agencies are taking opposing views on the question of reimbursing job applicants for travel expenses.

The question arose when State Corrections Director Joseph Vitek was listed as a "consultant" and paid $263 for coming to Lincoln on April 20, 1974 to interview for his present position.

State Auditors took exception to that expenditure and have told Vitek to return the money to the state.

Vitek was apparently ready to return the expense money when the State Department of Administrative Services (DAS) was informed by a reporter what the auditors told Vitek

OK To Be Asked

DAS Director Stan Matzke said Tuesday he will write Auditor Ray A C. Johnson and ask him to allow the payment since the state asked Vitek to come for the interview

Auditors, somewhat ironically, are relying on a DAS memorandum dated May 2, 1972 to ask for repayment

That memo, written by Gus Lieske, Matzke's predecessor, said

"Designated state employes are entitled to reimbursement to interview prospective employes for expenses, but not for meals or any other expenses of applicants

'No Provision'

"At present there is no provision in the statutes of the state providing for payment of any expenses incurred by a prospective employe while interviewing with the State of Nebraska '

The voucher covered Vitek's plane ticket to and from Boston's Logan International Airport, meals, one night s motel bill and car rental

However, instead of listing Vitek as a prospective employe, the voucher said he was a corrections consultant The voucher was signed by Vitek and approved by Acting Corrections Director Donald Best and DAS

Vitek said he typed in the consultant designation, but he said he does not remember whether it was his or someone else's suggestion to include it. Vitek said at the time he did not know a prospective employe could not be reimbursed for expenses.

Doesn't Remember

Best, now director of the Youth Development Center at Geneva, said he does not remember where the direction came from to list Vitek as a consultant

Matzke said he was not aware of the 1972 memo and noted that there is no state law banning such reimbursement

Travel expenses for other job applicants have been paid by the state, reportedly including the University of Nebraska.

' If a man comes in on his own volition to apply for a job, I don't feel we have to pay his expenses," Matzke said "But if he comes at our request, I feel we should pay his expenses "

If the state is going to attract quality personnel, Matzke said the state should be willing to pay the expenses of certain applicants to come to interview

Service To State

John Jacobson, DAS budget administrator, said the prospective employe's expenses should be borne by the state because he is actually performing a service to the state

Matzke said the consultant designation was not an attempt to hide anything, but was probably used for lack of a better description

Matzke said he believes a recent applicant for the post of state institutions director also had his travel expenses paid The applicant was not hired

As for the 1972 memo, Matzke said, "I think I'll probably revise it '

College Grad Numbers To Exceed Suitable Jobs

The number of college graduates will exceed the number of jobs requiring their skills by about 800,000 between now and 1985, according to projections from the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics

As a result, the bureau says, college graduates are "likely to obtain jobs previously held by individuals with less than four years of college," according to the newspaper, "The Chronicle of Higher Education "

"Problems for college graduates will more likely be employment below the level of skill for which they were trained, resulting in job dissatisfaction and high occupational mobility, rather than unemployment," the breau predicts.

It adds, however, that "the availability of more college-trained workers is expected to have an adverse effect on many of the less-educated It is likely to mean that, in the future, workers with less than a college education will have less chance of advancing to professional positions

The bureau s estimates are included in "Occupational Manpower and Training Needs Revised 1974,' which projects demand from various works from 1972 to 1985

The bureau estimates that 15 3 million people with BA or higher degrees will be looking for jobs over the period The total includes 11 2 million new bachelor's-degree recipients, 1 2 million new MAs 770 000 new recipients of doctorates or first professional degrees and 2 1 million women and persons leaving military service who have college training

Over the same period, the bureau predicts, 14 5 million jobs requiring college-level training will be available That total includes 7 7 million new positions and 6 8 million that will open up because of deaths and retirements

UMA Trustees Back Course Development

The University of Mid-America's three chief governing and advisory bodies agreed Tuesday the regional "open-learning" consortium should develop a "significant number of courses" of high quality as quickly as possible, while maintaining low costs to students.

The UMA Board of Trustees, the National Council of Advisors and the Academic Council concluded two days of meetings in Lincoln Tuesday Members represent five Midwest universities participating in the multimedia college-at-home project, and include regional and national leaders.

Themes that emerged for UMA staff to give priority attention include developing mass consumption and use of UMA-produced learning opportunities, and ensuring that courses developed and offered respond continually to the citizenry s actual needs

There was also general agreement among the officials that UMA shouldn't expect tuition and external revenue (such as federal money and foundation grants) to support the entire program, and that there should be state subsidies to the four states' course delivery systems

The board and council members, noting the diversity of media and methods available to develop the course delivery systems, agreed it's important they be unique to each of the states and their residents' needs

Frisco Chronicle Raises Price

San Francisco — The San Francisco Chronicle, the city's only general morning daily newspaper, said it is raising its monthly subscription price to $6.25 from $5.50, starting immediately.

Newsstand prices are not affected.

The newspaper linked the boost to a "recent sharp increase in the cost of newsprint "

The Chronicle publishes independently six days a week, and on Sundays its staff edits some sections that are included in the Sunday San Francisco Examiner, a Hearst Corp - owned afternoon newspaper here. The Examiner hasn't yet announced any monthly subscription price increase from the current $5.50

Sexuality Center's Goal Is Counseling

For a long time people have suffered with sexual problems and had no clear and definite place in the community to which they could turn for help, according to George Scofield, vice chairman of a group of people trying to establish a Human Sexuality Center.

Speaking at a meeting of the Lincoln Human Rights Commission Tuesday night, Scofield said that people with sexual problems are similar in some ways to women and blacks in that all have had to endure suffering.

Scofield, a psychiatric social worker with the Lincoln-Lancaster County Mental Health Center, said the main goals of the group are to develop expert sexual counseling on a full-time basis and to provide educational opportunities for graduate and undergraduate students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and local colleges.

He said the group also wants to provide consultation and education for the community and to conduct research needed particularly in this area of the country.

Scofield said only recently have people begun to talk openly about sexual problems, and counselors and researchers are discovering the "massive difficulties they are having with sexuality."

He said according to research done by Masters and Johnson there is "50% sexual dysfunction in marriages."

He said 15% of a family physician's cases and 77% of a psychiatrist's cases deal with sexual problems, adding that 20% to 25% of the calls handled by the Personal Crisis Service deal with sexual problems.

Scofield told the group that the director of the center would be required to have at least a masters degree and training and experience in behavioral science and sexual counseling.

The group is requesting money from the City Council to finance their proposed $30,000 budget.

Scofield said the group had approached all Nebraska based foundations and some out of state foundations without success.

Scofield said the group was addressing the commission in a continuing effort to gain moral and financial support for the Human Sexuality Center.

In other business, Mrs. Lenora Letcher was introduced as a new member of the Human Rights Commission.

Mrs. Letcher has served on the boards of directors of the Malone Center and the Lincoln Action Program. She is president of the Lincoln chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Talk Scheduled On Handicapped

Mrs. Weslee D'Audney, consultant coordinator of a statewide service for handicapped children, will speak at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday at a meeting of parents of handicapped children in Park School orthopedic unit, 714 F St.

Mrs. D'Audney will explain her service, the Outreach Project at Meyer Children's Rehabilitation Institutes, and possibilities of organizing a Lincoln group.

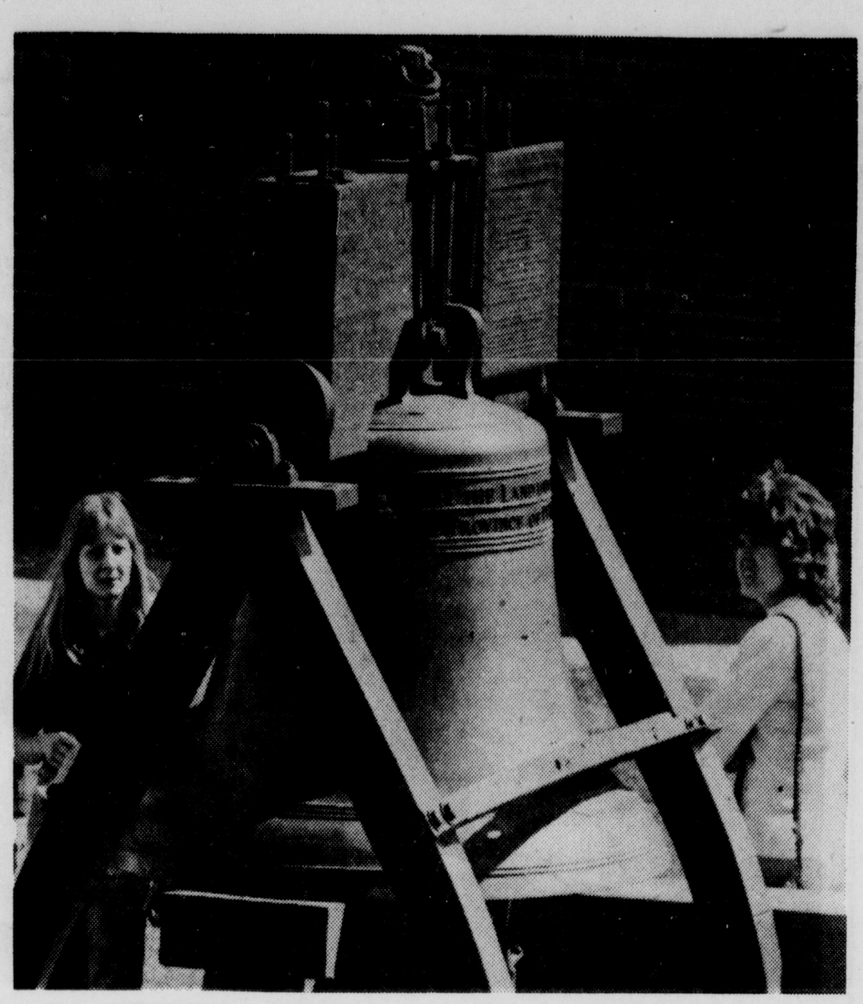
London (UPI) — Baroness Clementine Churchill, widow of Sir Winston Churchill, celebrated her 90th birthday with a family lunch at Claridge's Hotel. Friends said she was in good spirits despite failing eyesight which has afflicted her in recent years.



Replica Of Liberty Bell Displayed

On view at Hawthorne School, this replica of the Liberty Bell is identical in size and tone to the original in Philadelphia. It is one of 53 cast in France in 1950 and given to the U.S. The bell weighs 2,080 pounds, is 12 feet in circumference at its widest and has a 3 foot, 2 inch clapper. Sponsored by the Lincoln Association of Independent Insurance Agents, Lincoln Equipment Co., Nebraska National Guard and the Nebraska Bicentennial Commission, the replica is available to any community in the state until the end of 1976. DeCamp Escorts 17 Vietnam Orphans

Honolulu (AP) — A lounge area at Honolulu International Airport was covered with blankets and transformed into a nursery for two hours Tuesday for 17 tiny Vietnamese orphans bound for new homes in the United States.

Local members of Friends of the Children of Vietnam and Holt International turned up at the airport to attend and entertain the babies during the layover.

Nebraska State Sen. John DeCamp, a Vietnam veteran, was in the party escorting the orphans, who ranged in age from a few months to about 3 years.

"We're trying to get as many out as we can," DeCamp said. "We're concerned that the rest will be slaughtered if we don't."

For some of the orphans, it is too late, DeCamp said. "We had a whole batch of kids ready to go out of Da Nang, but we lost them," he said.

"We're going to try to get organizations to charter flights that would bring out 1,000 more babies," DeCamp said.

Persons at the airport indicated there are several lifts a week, bringing Vietnamese orphans into the United States.

Justice Dept. 'At Complete Loss' On Cook Reprimand

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The State Justice Department Tuesday said it is "at a complete loss" to understand how a referee could recommend that G Bradford Cook only get a reprimand for lying under oath

Asst Atty. Gen. Mel Kammerlohr told the Nebraska Supreme Court in a brief released Tuesday that lawyers are held to a higher standard of conduct than the average person Cook, a Lincoln native and former chairman of the federal Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), breached that code on a number of occasions and should be disbarred or suspended, the brief said.

Cook is charged with lying to a 1973 federal grand jury investigating an illegal contribution to the 1972 campaign of ex-President Richard Nixon.

5 Counts Contested

Cook has acknowledged that incident, saying he made a mistake. However, he has contested five other counts where he is charged with violating the Bar's code of conduct in testimony before congressional committees.

John Kuns, a retired district judge from Kimball, was appointed to act as a referee in a hearing on the subject of disciplinary action.

In his recommendation to the Supreme Court, Juns found Cook guilty only on the first county and said a reprimand, the mildest form of censure, is in order.

"In light of all the foregoing admissions of lying. . .we are at a complete loss to understand how the honorable referee could conclude" that the evidence does not support counts two through six and that Cook's explanations are sufficient, Kammerlohr said.

'Higher Standard'

"As is obvious from the many holdings of the Nebraska Supreme Court a person admitted to practice law in the State of Nebraska is held to a much higher standard than the average individual," he said.

"It would appear that the conduct of (Cook) certainly runs contrary to these standards laid down by the Supreme Court of Nebraska The finding of (Kuns) that the admitted lie. . .does not come within the Code of Professional Responsibility unless the hearers believed it. .simply does not measure up to the announced standards of this court."

Kammerlohr called Kuns' controversial statement that lawyers cannot be expected to tell the truth at all times "an unfortunate finding" which deserves "no further comment."

Cook's explanation for his testimony is not convicing, Kammerlohr said, in light of the evidence.

U.S. Support Voiced

Aberdeen, Scotland (UPI) — American fisherman sent a message of support to their British colleagues who are blockading ports throughout northeast Britain in protest against the dumping of cut-price fish by foreign boats.

Peace Chief Urges Aid To Rebuild Vietnam

The United States should provide assistance to rebuild Vietnam once the war is concluded, Nebraskans for Peace Coordinator Dick Littleton said Tuesday.

In the meantime, he said, he hopes the U.S. will help organize, "through the international community," efforts to take care of refugees in South Vietnam.

"If we are interested in the welfare of the Vietnamese people, we should get people involved in the effort who have more credibility there than we do," Littleton said.

"The U.S. has no credibility over there anymore."

No further military assistance should be forthcoming from the U.S., Littleton said.

Instead, this nation should concentrate its efforts on humanitarian goals, he suggested, including the repair and rebuilding of Vietnam no matter what the outcome of the war.

"We should most definitely provide assistance to whatever or whoever results," he said.

"I think we have to realize that Vietnam is a country, one country, which needs assistance to overcome the effects the U.S. has had on it in the last 20 years."

International efforts to meet the current refugee problem could be coordinated through the Red Cross or the United Nations, Littleton said.

Marilyn McNabb, a Nebraskans for Peace staff member, suggested that a new U.S. ambassador in Saigon might also be helpful.

Ambassador Graham Martin seems to be tied to President Thieu, she said.

"It might be a good idea to have a new ambassador who could relate to somebody else," she said.

4 States Get $58 Million For Manpower Programs

Kansas City (AP) — The U.S. Labor Department has announced it will allocate at least $58,153,144 in the four-state Mid-America region to the 23 prime sponsors designated to operate manpower programs under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The funds are for the fiscal year beginning July 1 and are for the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.

Richard G. Miskimins, regional head of the Manpower Administration, said the 23 state, county and local government sponsors will now be able to plan local programs of training, work experience, summer youth jobs, job counseling and placement, transitional public service employment and other manpower services for fiscal 1976.

The funding breakdown for Nebraska's $7,752,074 allocation follows: Lincoln city $713,286, Governor's office $3,957,035; and Omaha Consortium $3,081,753.

Energy Forum Is Scheduled

A forum on energy for Nebraska will be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education Tuesday.

"If we in Nebraska are to continue our development and enjoy the good life we must face the question of how to meet our energy needs now and in the future," Gov. J. James Exon said in an invitation sent to prospective participants in the forum.

The program is being jointly sponsored by the State Energy Office and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Engineering and Technology.

Nebraska leaders in public and private sectors of energy production and distribution are being invited to the conference.

Charges Against Youth Dropped

Hastings (AP) — Adams County Atty. Arthur Toogood said Tuesday he has dropped charges against William Snell, 19, of Hastings.

Snell had been charged with two counts of shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim. The charges were filed following a November incident in which Snell and another Hastings man, John D Clancy, 19, allegedly fired at the homes of a Hastings police detective, and a State Patrol cruiser.

WHY WAS AN X RATED FILM NOMINATED FOR AN ACADEMY AWARD*
Because "TURKISH DELIGHT" is the most real, explicit and tender love story ever filmed.
THE CRITICS AGREE:
"TURKISH DELIGHT isn't the kind of movie they used to nominate for an Oscar. It stacks up as an imported Dutch treat that can be cited for its liberating impact in the same breath with Last Tango in Paris."
—Playboy Magazine
"One of the most tempestuous, tumultuous and finally heartbreaking love stories ever filmed. TURKISH DELIGHT fervently asserts that life and love are too precious to be stifled by obsessive to convention. A surprisingly liberating and affirmative experience."
—Los Angeles Times
"TURKISH DELIGHT blends slashing ribald comedy with romance, pain and rage. It suggests the framework for such films as 'The Graduate' and 'Love Story,' except TURKISH DELIGHT is incalculably more adventurous, angry, and graphic."
—Los Angeles Herald Examiner
"TURKISH DELIGHT is among the most compelling love stories ever recorded on film. An artistic breakthrough."
—Hollywood Reporter

Helicopters Available To Help Locate Cattle

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Ranchers in snow-stricken western Nebraska Tuesday were told they can obtain assistance in locating lost cattle.

Stockmen with missing animals were advised to contact their Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service county office

ASCS officials said they will work with Civil Defense personnel to send a helicopter to pick up the rancher and fly over his range searching for missing herds of cattle that strayed downwind in the snowstorms.

New Snow Falls

New snow fell throughout most of Tuesday in the area but fortunately there has been little wind. Snow depths ranged from 2 or 3 inches in the southern area to over 20 inches of new snow in the Bridgeport area.

Terry Shannon at the Alliance ASCS office reported 10 inches of new snow there Tuesday.

"We have six choppers on hand now to aid in finding cattle," Shannon said. "This will help the ranchers who can handle the feeding problems if we can just find these strayed herds for them. The choppers won't feed cattle, just find them."

Shannon reported that many grain bins and even attics of homes were packed full of snow. "They have to shovel it out because if it melts it can ruin walls in homes and entire bins full of grain. We have been on the radio warning everyone of the problem, which they might not suspect if they don't check the buildings," he said.

Cattle Losses 10-20%

Shannon said cattle losses in the area were running from 10% to 15% of the adult cattle and 20% of the small calves.

"Reports from Sioux and Dawes Counties are not quite that bad, but Sheridan County is probably worse than that," he said

Haven Hendricks at the Meat Animal Research Center at Clay Center said some calves in that area had been lost due to rain, but "nothing like the problems we had in the west."

The ASCS office in Ogallala reported a lot of calves and cows were missing. "The helicopters haven't arrived yet, but we understand they are coming. We have 3 to 4 inches of new snow but no wind. If we don't get wind and do get the choppers I think we will be all right. The moisture sure is welcome," a spokesman at the office said.

49 Head Lost

Clinton Hoefer at the North Platte ASCS office said he had received one report of 49 cattle lost, but added "the ranch has its headquarters here in Lincoln County, but most of the losses were in McPherson and Logan Counties where they also run cattle. The loss was calves. We were pretty lucky here. I understand we are to get one helicopter here. Most of them will be farther west," Hoefer said.

ASCS officials repeatedly praised the National Guard and other agencies for their efforts on behalf of farmers and ranchers in the storm-ravaged area.

2,400 FFA Members Invade Lincoln For Meet

The blue jackets are coming to Lincoln. Officials of the Nebraska Association of the Future Farmers of America estimated that 2,400 of the state's 6,350 members will be in Lincoln throughout the remainder of the week attending the state FFA convention.

In addition to the delegates to the convention, members of the state FFA band and FFA chorus are in Lincoln practicing for their performances.

Along with the convention are dozens of FFA-sponsored contests and the annual vocational agricultural contests.

FFA members come from 136 schools that maintain vocational agriculture classes. Most of the students are boys but there are an increasing number of girls in FFA each year.

The convention will wind up Saturday noon with the election of a new slate of officers.

Accident Victims Identified

Valley — Officials Tuesday released identification of the three Saunders County youths who were killed instantly Monday afternoon in a freak highway accident near Valley.

The dead:

John A. Rosenquist, 17, Ceresco.

Randy L. Kovanda, 20, also of Ceresco.

Paul L. Nichelson, 17, Valparaiso.

Douglas County Deputy Sheriff Wayne Neeley said the eastbound car in which the victims were riding collided with a refrigerated trailer which had broken loose from a westbound truck-tractor. The runaway trailer crossed into the opposite lane of U.S. 275 and the two vehicles collided head on.

Neeley said the top half of the car was ripped off as it passed under the trailer.

The 57-year-old truck driver, Lyle Bicknell of Omaha, escaped injury.

"We'll probably never know who was driving the car," Neeley said.

Meanwhile, funeral arrangements were announced for the youths.

Services for young Nichelson, a Raymond Central High School senior, will be at 10 a m Thursday at the Methodist Church in Valparaiso

Funeral services for the Rosenquist youth, also a Raymond Central High School senior, are scheduled for 2 p m. Thursday at Immanuel Lutheran Church at Ceresco.

Services for young Kovanda, formerly of Geneva, will be at 10 30 a m Friday at the Farmer and Son Funeral Home in Geneva.

Omaha Emergency Center To Cut Back

Omaha (AP) — Services at the controversial Community Emergency Center on Omaha's near north side will be curtailed by May 1.

Officials said the facility is not generating enough funds to keep itself operating around the clock.

The controversy surrounding the center arose last summer when Immanuel Hospital closed down its old campus to move to a new facility.

Residents in the area of the old campus protested the closing to the Douglas County Board of Commissioners, saying Immanuel was going back on a promise to keep medical facilities in the area until the completion of the new Creighton University-St Joseph's Hospital, which is now under construction.

The board agreed with the residents, and filed suit.

Immanuel officials responded by opening the emergency center with staff drawn from Creighton University

The center opened Oct 28 but by the end of February the funds for the center's first 12 months of operations were gone, officials told the Douglas County Board Tuesday.

Immanuel provided $182,000 in cash and another $70,000 in equipment, remodeling and utilities, according to Dr Joseph Holthaus, dean of Creighton's medical school.

"At the end of February, we were operating at a $12,000 deficit . If the center were to continue operating at that level until Creighton's new hospital opens in 1978, we would face a $837,000 deficit," Holthaus told the board.

Immanuel's operating subsidy has been used up because of the low number of actual emergency cases being handled by the center, the initial starting costs for such a facility and the low collection rate from patients.

Holthaus proposed changes in the hours that the center operates

He suggested that operations between 11 p m. and 7 a m. at least be dropped, or possibly moving to a 12-hour daily operation for a 60-day period to assess the financial situation.

The county board did not take action on the report, but Chairman George Buglewicz said he supported the hospital's plan.

Holthaus said he will report back to the board in 60 days.

Free 'Butch & Sundance' To Kick Off Western Days

If you were unfortunate enough to miss one of the zaniest, most entertaining Western films ever on the theater circuit, or would like to catch it again at no cost, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" will kick off the 1975 University of Nebraska-Lincoln Western Days, April 8-12.

The annual event is sponsored by the NU East Campus student organization and the film at 9 p.m Tuesday begins a week of entertainment that probably would appeal even to the most ardent Eastern city slicker.

Dormitory floor and Greek house residents are encouraged to enter their "best athletes" Wednesday as teams compete for the Western Day games traveling trophy, now held by East Campus' Love Hall Games are slated at the Tractor Testing Oval

The events would not be found in the Olympics, but should offer ample excitement to competitors and spectators alike. Beginning at 3 p.m., the curtain draws on a VW race, bale stacking contest, tug o' war, human pyramid and eleven-legged race A Bar-B-Que sponsored by the East Union hospitality committee, will be served at 5 p.m. Dinner tickets cost $1.50.

A quarter horse show, steer show and rodeo sponsored by the NU Block and Bridle and Rodeo Clubs are scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the State Fairgrounds

Trucks Collide Near Bristow; 2 People Killed

Bristow (UPI) — Two persons were killed late Tuesday afternoon in the collision of two trucks 1.5 miles west of here on Neb 12. Boyd County Sheriff Wayne Kenzie identified the victims as Marlin M Eilers, 20, Bristow, and Janis K Hoffman, 18, Spencer.

Kenzie said Eilers was the driver of a pickup which ran off the road, then veered back onto the highway and skidded into a truck driven by Frank Reimer of Norfolk. Reimer suffered a broken leg and was hospitalized at Lynch.

Both vehicles were traveling in the same direction, the sheriff said

He said slippery highway conditions were a contributing factor in the accident

Scholarships Memorialize Fred Seaton

Hastings (AP) — The establishment of eight Seaton Memorial Communication Scholarships at Hastings College was announced Tuesday by the family of the late Fred A. Seaton

The scholarships will be funded by memorial gifts made at the time of Seaton's death last year.

The scholarships will be awarded to students studying in the area of communications at Hastings College.

They will be awarded at the rate of $200 during the freshman year, $400 during the sophomore year and $500 in each the junior and senior years.

Seaton came to Hastings in 1937 as publisher of the Hastings Tribune. He was appointed to fill out an unexpired term in the U.S. Senate in 1951 and served 1½ years in the Senate.

NPPD '74 Payments Topped $1 Million

Columbus (UPI) — The Nebraska Public Power District said Tuesday in-lieu-of-tax and 5% revenue tax payments totaling more than $1 million were made to 64 Nebraska counties last year. NPPD said cities and villages served at retail or under lease agreements by NPPD received the majority of the payments. By law, the payments are made in counties where NPPD has property and where cities are served at retail by NPPD. Buffalo County received the largest payment, $146,270, followed by Madison County with $109,740 The smallest payment, $1,067, was made to Morrill County

Isley Sentencing Set For April 14

North Platte (UPI) — Melvin Isley, 23, North Platte, convicted two weeks ago in the beating death of Fred C. Roberts Jr., North Platte, will be sentenced April 14, Lincoln County court officials said Tuesday. Isley was convicted of manslaughter in connection with an incident outside a North Platte tavern March. 1972 While out on bail awaiting sentencing, Isley was arrested on three counts of alleged motorcycle theft, one count of petty larceny and one count of giving false information to a police officer.

Sexuality Center's Goal Is Counseling

For a long time people have suffered with sexual problems and had no clear and definite place in the community to which they could turn for help, according to George Scofield, vice chairman of a group of people trying to establish a Human Sexuality Center.

Speaking at a meeting of the Lincoln Human Rights Commission Tuesday night, Scofield said that people with sexual problems are similar in some ways to women and blacks in that all have had to endure suffering.

Scofield, a psychiatric social worker with the Lincoln-Lancaster County Mental Health Center, said the main goals of the group are to develop expert sexual counseling on a full-time basis and to provide educational opportunities for graduate and undergraduate students at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and local colleges.

He said the group also wants to provide consultation and education for the community and to conduct research needed particularly in this area of the country.

Scofield said only recently have people begun to talk openly about sexual problems, and counselors and researchers are discovering the "massive difficulties they are having with sexuality."

He said according to research done by Masters and Johnson there is "50% sexual dysfunction in marriages."

He said 15% of a family physician's cases and 77% of a psychiatrist's cases deal with sexual problems, adding that 20% to 25% of the calls handled by the Personal Crisis Service deal with sexual problems.

Scofield told the group that the director of the center would be required to have at least a masters degree and training and experience in behavioral science and sexual counseling.

The group is requesting money from the City Council to finance their proposed $30,000 budget.

Scofield said the group had approached all Nebraska based foundations and some out of state foundations without success.

Scofield said the group was addressing the commission in a continuing effort to gain moral and financial support for the Human Sexuality Center.

In other business, Mrs. Lenora Letcher was introduced as a new member of the Human Rights Commission.

Mrs. Letcher has served on the boards of directors of the Malone Center and the Lincoln Action Program. She is president of the Lincoln chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Replica Of Liberty Bell Displayed

On view at Hawthorne School, this replica of the Liberty Bell is identical in size and tone to the original in Philadelphia. It is one of 53 cast in France in 1950 and given to the U.S. The bell weighs 2,080 pounds, is 12 feet in circumference at its widest and has a 3 foot, 2 inch clapper. Sponsored by the Lincoln Association of Independent Insurance Agents, Lincoln Equipment Co., Nebraska National Guard and the Nebraska Bicentennial Commission, the replica is available to any community in the state until the end of 1976. DeCamp Escorts 17 Vietnam Orphans

Honolulu (AP) — A lounge area at Honolulu International Airport was covered with blankets and transformed into a nursery for two hours Tuesday for 17 tiny Vietnamese orphans bound for new homes in the United States.

Local members of Friends of the Children of Vietnam and Holt International turned up at the airport to attend and entertain the babies during the layover.

Nebraska State Sen. John DeCamp, a Vietnam veteran, was in the party escorting the orphans, who ranged in age from a few months to about 3 years.

"We're trying to get as many out as we can," DeCamp said. "We're concerned that the rest will be slaughtered if we don't."

For some of the orphans, it is too late, DeCamp said. "We had a whole batch of kids ready to go out of Da Nang, but we lost them," he said.

"We're going to try to get organizations to charter flights that would bring out 1,000 more babies," DeCamp said.

Persons at the airport indicated there are several lifts a week, bringing Vietnamese orphans into the United States.
